*This revised supplementary appeal document includes adjusted population planning figures: other people of concern to UNHCR should total 127,550 (not 619,050 as indicated in the original Iraq Situation Emergency Response Supplementary Appeal document). The overall estimated population of concern in 2015 for the Iraq Situation therefore currently totals 3.87 million people. There is no change to the financial requirements of USD 621.5 million as presented in the original supplementary appeal.

AT A GLANCE

A total of 3.87 million people of concern

A total of USD 621.5 million* financial requirements for the Iraq Situation, including:

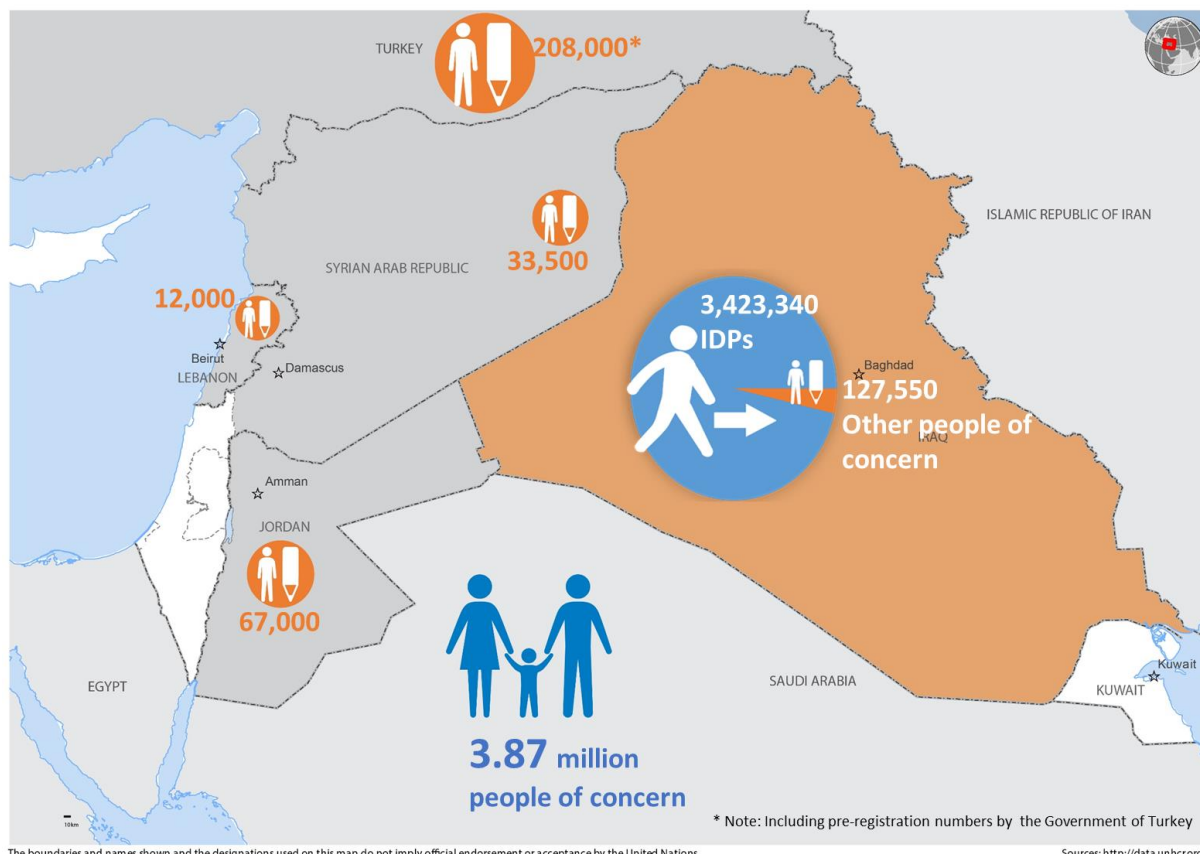

* Refugees from countries other than Syria, stateless people and Iraqi returnees.

 This total includes regional and global activities, and support costs (7%).

CONTEXT

Introduction

The situation in Iraq continues to deteriorate: it is estimated that more than 2.1 million people were displaced in 2014 alone. Rekindled by the conflict in the Syrian Arab Republic (Syria) and the rise of extremist militant groups, the violence and insecurity in large parts of Iraq threaten to displace yet more people in 2015, both internally and into neighbouring countries. Barring a significant improvement in the maintenance of rule-of-law and security, it is anticipated that there could be up to 400,000 new internally displaced persons (IDPs) by December 2015. Taking into account Iraq's pre-2014 IDP population of 900,000, as well as last year's displacement, this may raise the total number of Iraqi IDPs to 3.4 million people by the end of 2015, including an estimated 800,000 in Northern Iraq. Furthermore, the conflict will have a negative impact on 127,550 other people of concern to UNHCR, including refugees¹, Iraqi returnees seeking to reintegrate, and stateless people who are in need of legal support.

Alongside the internal displacement, there are growing numbers of Iraqis seeking asylum in neighbouring countries in the region. Throughout 2014, more than 187,000 Iraqi refugees approached UNHCR – a considerable rise in numbers from previous years, particularly in Turkey and Jordan which both witnessed an increase of nearly 400 per cent. It is projected that the number of anticipated new Iraqi refugees approaching UNHCR in 2015 may reach more than 113,000, bringing the overall total of Iraqi refugees seeking protection to more than 320,000 by end-December 2015. Within the agreed cluster set-up in Iraq, UNHCR is leading the Protection, Shelter/Non-Food Items (NFI) and Camp Coordination and Camp Management (CCCM) clusters. UNHCR engages in Iraq through the UN and Humanitarian Country Team (HCT), under the leadership of the Special Representative of the Secretary General (SRSG), and the Deputy SRSG and Humanitarian Coordinator (HC) who is leading the Iraq humanitarian response to internal displacement.

The massive displacement of people has created a grave humanitarian crisis and is pushing the limits of the capacity of the Government of Iraq, the Kurdistan Regional Government (KRG) and the United Nations (UN) to meet the most basic needs of the IDPs and refugees. While humanitarian partners and government actors have escalated their response to address critical needs throughout 2014, the requirements have exceeded available financial resources, and large gaps remain.

This supplementary appeal outlines UNHCR’s requirements to assist and protect a total of up to 3.4 million Iraqi IDPs, as well as some 127,550 other people of concern in Iraq; and over 320,500 Iraqi refugees in neighbouring countries. It combines the requirements already approved by UNHCR’s Executive Committee with the supplementary needs, and presents revised needs and consolidated financial requirements for UNHCR’s activities from 1 January to 31 December 2015.

A portion of these needs and requirements for Iraq were included in the 2014-2015 inter-agency Iraq Strategic Response Plan (SRP); however it is important to note that at the time of drafting the SRP, UNHCR had not finalized its 2015 planning. The Iraq component of this appeal will be included in the revised Iraq SRP.

This supplementary appeal also includes the additional needs of Iraqi refugees in Jordan, Syria and Turkey. For neighbouring countries, 60 per cent of the financial requirements were foreseen and included in the UNHCR Executive Committee-approved 2015 budget. However, given the pace and number of new arrivals, their needs and financial requirements have been increased and included in this supplementary appeal for Iraqi refugees in Jordan, Syria and Turkey. Lebanon’s financial requirements to protect and assist Iraqis were included in the ExCom-approved 2015 budget and UNHCR’s Global Appeal, and no additional financial requirements in 2015 are foreseen for the Lebanon operation at this point.

* This amount includes USD 7 million for the Regional Refugee Coordinator's Office in Amman to enhance operational support, coordination and oversight of the Iraq situation regionally; and USD 20 million for region-wide and global management, including emergency preparedness, protection and assistance for Iraqi refugees who have fled to countries other than those listed above.

Overall strategy and coordination

Inside Iraq:

UNHCR's main objectives are to deliver protection and humanitarian assistance for Iraqi refugees, and for IDPs within the cluster mechanism through UNHCR's lead roles in the Protection, Shelter/NFI, and CCCM clusters, with particular focus on the most vulnerable individuals.

The Anbar crisis, which occurred at the beginning of January 2014, brought about significant challenges for the Humanitarian Country Team (HCT) as well as for the Government of Iraq (GoI) to address the IDP situation. At the onset of the Anbar crisis, the cluster system was introduced in Iraq, with UNAMI (ICODHA) assuming the overall coordination role for the HCT. In this context, UNHCR shifted its strategic engagement with IDPs, gradually moving its operation within the framework of the global cluster system.

Protection monitoring and the provision of legal assistance continue to be the main protection activities. UNHCR will contribute to the improvement of the overall protection environment for Iraqi refugees and IDPs, both during their displacement as well as upon their return, in close partnership with all stakeholders, including Iraqi communities. Targeted advocacy will be a priority, and UNHCR also aims to strengthen the capacity of civil society and the affected communities to respond to their protection needs.

In surrounding countries:

Recent events are also forcing Iraqis to flee abroad within the region, in search of safety and protection, mainly to Jordan, Syria and Turkey. UNHCR is strengthening its capacity to lead operations in refugee-hosting countries, and to support the respective Governments' responses. UNHCR will incorporate Iraqi new arrivals into existing programmes with an enhanced focus on outreach activities and protection solutions, as appropriate. It is anticipated that a resettlement strategy in a number of countries will help the organization to develop clear and appropriate counselling to asylum-seekers and refugees registering with UNHCR, to lobby for resettlement spaces and to maintain a protection space already under strain. Planned activities in the refugee countries include:

- Early identification of specific protection needs, starting with registration;
- Identification of the most vulnerable refugees, including unaccompanied women, female-heads of families and those who may have been exposed to sexual and gender-based violence (SGBV);
- Provision of basic assistance;
- Promotion of solutions, including where possible the strategic use of resettlement.

PLANNED RESPONSE

IRAQ

Existing response

The 2014-2015 inter-agency Strategic Response Plan (SRP) is coordinated by OCHA. UNHCR leads the Protection, Shelter/NFI and CCCM clusters. So far, UNHCR and partner protection monitoring teams have reached 816,989 individuals throughout Iraq to determine their needs, vulnerabilities, registration status, demographic information, and accommodation circumstances. More than 84,000 households have been reached with emergency relief items across the country. UNHCR has constructed 10 of the 32 IDP camps across the country and supports more than 500 collective centres, primarily in central and southern Iraq. CCCM activities include training and capacity-building for local CCCM actors and government authorities working in managed camps and collective centres. UNHCR also supports the construction of shelter units for IDP families.

Non-Syrian refugees in Iraq have no immediate prospects for long-term local integration. While some refugee populations – particularly ethnic Kurds – may consider local integration in the Kurdistan Region, resettlement will also be needed for some, owing to the traumatic experiences they have encountered, risks they still face in Iraq, or special needs that cannot be catered for in Iraq. Though many refugees in Iraq are entitled to Iraqi nationality under the 2006 Iraqi Nationality Law, this is feasible only if the application is endorsed by the central Government.

The affected population in Iraq also includes returnees (mainly returning to Baghdad governorate), most of whom are coming back from Syria, and tens of thousands of people who may be stateless.

Strategy and coordination

UNHCR supports the Government's activities and coordination efforts and will work to the relevant authorities' capacities in registration and camp management. UNHCR's strategy complements OCHA's general coordination leadership, supporting cluster strategy and objectives while remaining in line with global and regional UNHCR policy. UNHCR-led clusters develop participatory and needs-based strategies in cooperation with authorities, UN agencies, and non-governmental partners.

UNHCR's shelter strategy, in line with the Shelter cluster strategy and in close coordination with the CCCM cluster, is to support the Government of Iraq in ensuring basic shelter for an estimated 800,000 vulnerable Iraqi IDPs in need of shelter through support for planned tented camps or rehabilitation of collective centres. Vulnerable families will receive basic domestic items to meet their needs. People living in sub-standard shelter will be prioritized. UNHCR will assess and target individuals with winter assistance, particularly in Northern Iraq where winter can be harsh, including through one-off cash assistance.

UNHCR's protection strategy will focus on improving registration throughout the country by training national authorities to strengthen capacity while establishing standard operating procedures for minimum standards for reception conditions, in order wherever possible to support government ministries to discharge this function. UNHCR is working in particular to address the protection concerns of the most vulnerable population; this includes female-headed households, elderly people and people with disabilities. The lack of job opportunities leads to further vulnerabilities, with the risk of a rising incidence of violence and negative coping mechanisms, including prostitution.

UNHCR continues to lead efforts, through the Cash Coordination group in coordination and consultation with other clusters, to maximize efficiencies in assessing, targeting and monitoring the cost of cash transfers. One-time cash assistance has proven to be a vital activity for assisting IDPs to cope with their immediate needs such as rent, food, fuel and medical care. IDPs are selected following thorough assessment of their vulnerability and ability to sustain themselves, in accordance with agreed criteria.

Many displaced members of communities – who are in theory eligible for Iraqi citizenship – lack documentation and are at risk of statelessness. Discrimination, reluctance to register, financial difficulties, and practical obstacles prevent these communities from accessing their rights as Iraqi nationals. Under its protection mandate, UNHCR will assist these communities to obtain important pieces of documentation, thereby preventing a chain of events that would make it even more difficult for future generations to trace and prove their Iraqi origins.

For Iraqi returnees and other populations of concern, UNHCR’s priorities for 2015 include protection monitoring, the provision of legal assistance, individual protection interventions, advocacy, and building the capacity of government authorities. Protection monitoring remains a key activity for refugee returnees, carried out through the existing Protection Assistance and Reintegration Centres. In addition, communication channels will be diversified to help identify people of concern in need of assistance in all areas. One-time cash assistance will be considered for the most vulnerable returnee families after a case-by-case assessment.

Planned activities

Fair protection processes and documentation

Access to and quality of Status determination procedures improved

Civil registration and status documentation strengthened

Identification of statelessness improved

Level of individual documentation increased

Quality of registration and profiling improved and maintained

Reception conditions improved

- Carry out RSD for small minority of cases in need of RSD for protection reasons – especially for reasons of resettlement such as i) EVIs, in particular medical cases without treatment available in KR; ii) high profile cases with protection concerns; and iii) detention cases.
- Issue 100% of new-borns with a birth certificate. Based on previous birth rates for the non-Syrian population, it is estimated that during the year, 117 children will be registered and issued documentation under regular birth registration procedures
- Conduct in-depth analysis based on the outcomes of the 2014 mapping exercise to help the Government to develop the policies to attend to the specific needs of particular groups at risk of statelessness.
- Provide to government entities support and capacity development in protection principles and specific needs of various groups, including women and children.
- Support and strengthen the capacity of government officials. 250 national authorities will be trained on registration and documentation of IDPs
- Establish and develop SOPs in coordination with local authorities and stakeholders to ensure that reception conditions meet minimum standards.

Favourable protection environment

Access to legal assistance and remedies

- Establish 50 mobile protection monitoring teams to

Public attitude towards people of concern improved

Law and policy developed and or strengthened

International and regional instruments acceded to, ratified and strengthened

- assess and analyse the protection conditions of 150,000 families.
- Provide legal assistance to up to 51,000 families.
- Organize 27 information and awareness campaigns.
- Organize 50 events to support the capacity of the national authorities.
- Undertake advocacy and capacity building with government authorities, and provide a workshop, training, or study tour for the concerned government officials.

Security from violence and exploitation

Protection of children strengthened

Prevention of and response to SGBV

- Extend and reinforce interventions on prevention and response for children at risk in the Kurdistan Region (KR-I) to enhance the well-being of internally displaced girls, boys and adolescents.
- Provide counselling and psychosocial assistance to 1,500 survivors through protection monitoring and assistance centres.
- Conduct awareness raising campaigns. Including organizing 180 events. Enable and sustain participation of community in SGBV prevention and response.
- Provide capacity building for 150 national authorities on SGBV prevention and response.
- Provide 10,000 dignity kits to victims of SGBV.

Basic needs and essential services

Health status of the population improved

Sanitation and hygiene

Shelter and infrastructure established, improved and maintained

Population has sufficient basic and domestic items

Population has sufficient access to energy

Services for people with specific needs

Population has optimal access to education

- Provide refugees in camps and settlements with free primary health care services at the same level as nationals.
- Construct community sanitary facilities/latrines in 15 camps and/or camp-like settlements.
- Rehabilitate 17,000 shelter units. Rehabilitation will focus on basic needs and conditions (e.g. as roof repairs, doors and windows, partition walls, safety of the electrical system, repairs for water piping, shower and toilets).
- Distribute 30,000 tents to meet emergency shelter needs in camp settings throughout Iraq.
- Establish or rehabilitate 538 collective centres.
- Construct or rehabilitate 2,000 long-term shelters.
- Construct and maintain 10 camp and camp-like settlements.
- Identify and provide one-time cash assistance (cash for rent) to 5,650 IDP families living with host families or renting accommodation.
- Identify 14,400 families for cash assistance in the form of cash or multi-purpose vouchers.
- Distribute 60,000 CRI kits to IDPs across Iraq.
- Distribute 60,000 winterization kits and 35,000 tent insulation kits and 35,000 polyester boards for tents to IDPs.
- Provide 190,000 litres of fuel (contingent on availability), which will cover 10 per cent of refugee families (750 households)
- Identify 30,000 families for cash assistance, targeting at-risk and vulnerable groups including female-headed households, children, persons with disabilities and the elderly.
- Support access to primary education of 2,000 non-Syrian refugee children.

Durable solutions

Comprehensive solution strategies developed and strengthened

Voluntary return

Greater reduction of statelessness is achieved

Potential for resettlement realized

- Advocate for durable solutions. UNHCR with the UNCT will support a coherent strategy that addresses the basic needs and promotes durable solutions for IDPs.
- Identify and assist 39,450 individuals with return packages.
- Carry out individual interventions on a case-by-case basis for 2,000 individuals, which may include financial assistance and legal support to families at risk of statelessness; conduct campaigns on birth registration or the benefits of civil registration aiming towards 20,000 individuals.
- Submit 60 cases / 160 individuals for non-Syrian nationalities for resettlement.

Community empowerment and self-reliance

Co-existence with local communities

Community mobilization strengthened and expanded

Self-reliance and livelihoods improved

- Implement an additional 200 Quick Impact Projects (QIPs) to benefit IDPs, refugees and the host community.
- Engage 10 additional females in management roles to increase by 10 per cent the active female participation in leadership and the decision making process.
- Through Community Technology Access centres for refugees, provide life-skills training for livelihood purposes for 800 refugees, combined with guidance on business market opportunities.

Leadership, coordination and partnership

Coordination and partnerships strengthened

Camp management and coordination refined and improved

Donor relations and resource mobilization strengthened

- Train Government entities and partners in coordination and management of 38 camps and informal settlements. Support an inter-agency call centre to harmonize the collection and dissemination of information.
- Capacitate Government and partners to better coordinate and manage activities and services in 100% identified sites.
- Ensure 100% of the targeted population in all IDP camps UNHCR is operating in has access to humanitarian assistance and protection services.
- Ensure 100% supported IDP locations meet agreed upon standards
- Address 100% of gaps and needs identified in a timely manner.
- Submit reporting for donors in a timely manner. Keep donors and opinion-makers informed about the situation, achievements and challenges.

Logistics and operations support

Logistics and supply optimized to serve operational needs

Operations management, coordination and support strengthened and optimized

- Reinforce and establish a solid logistics and supply structure to respond to the requirements of both the camp and non-camp population, in order to meet the basic needs of the population and provide timely responses.
- Rent additional warehouse space to hold its contingency and running stock. Secure transport capacity to move the items to the warehouses and from the warehouses to the distribution points in the northern and the centre regions. Establish a new warehouse in addition to the existing warehouses in Iraq's central and northern regions to cater to the needs of the additional population.
- For the implementation of its programme, UNHCR relies on 12 international and national partners. Headquarters Overhead costs will be paid to INGOs.

JORDAN

Existing response

UNHCR continues to support the Government through its leadership of the protection response to the influx of Iraqi refugees, including through registration and the provision of direct protection counselling and referrals to specialized service providers for child protection, SGBV and legal assistance. As there are a limited number of partners with funding for Iraqi refugees, UNHCR has been working closely with the Ministries of the Interior and Social Development, the Departments of Civil Status and Family Protection, and NGO partners to provide protection services to the Iraqi population.

A key element of the response has been support to community-based protection networks: Community Support Committees (CSCs), consisting of Jordanians and Iraqis, play an important role in protection referrals, identification of basic needs (including winterization needs), awareness-raising and social cohesion. UNHCR also provides direct support to survivors of SGBV through individual case management and multi-sectoral services, including psychosocial support, legal counselling and the provision of safe shelter.

Strategy and coordination

Given the growing insecurity and violence in Iraq and a substantial increase in the flow of Iraqi asylum-seekers to Jordan (7,000 in 2013, tripling to 21,499 in 2014), it is necessary to explore more efficient refugee status determination (RSD) and resettlement processing for the population. The registration capacity of UNHCR in Jordan is being increasingly stretched by the growing number of arrivals. Additional staffing for filing, registration and renewal of asylum-seeker certificates will therefore be required. RSD acceptance rates of Iraqi asylum-seekers are, and will remain, very high (92.2 per cent) as most profiles of Iraqi asylum-seekers arriving in Jordan meet the definition in the 1951 Convention. The enhanced role of registration to identify resettlement needs and vulnerabilities of individuals, groups at risk and specific profiles will be essential to ensure that RSD and resettlement processing become more targeted and strategic. Therefore, close cooperation between registration, RSD, resettlement and protection is crucial for the successful implementation of the RSD and resettlement strategies for Iraqi refugees across the region.

UNHCR will also continue to focus on providing safe and confidential multi-sectoral services to survivors of SGBV and children at risk. Increased support for mental health and psychosocial support and SGBV service providers will form part of the response strategy given the increased numbers of Iraqi refugees reporting that they experienced SGBV or other forms of violence in Iraq. UNHCR will ensure that people of concern with specific needs, including those with disabilities, are identified through registration and protection outreach activities in order to provide rehabilitation sessions, and ensure access to education and other community-based protection services. CSCs and psychosocial support for families will also continue to be a key element of UNHCR's protection response, in order to strengthen family and community support structures and the resilience of refugee families. UNHCR will also continue to work closely with the Ministry of the Interior, the Civil Status Department and legal-aid service providers to address the legal and physical protection needs of Iraqis.

Without legal residence and work permits, most refugees do not have access to legal employment and therefore cannot afford some of the basic needs for their families. Lack of access to a work permit for refugees remains a major obstacle to improving livelihood opportunities for Iraqis in Jordan. Therefore UNHCR cash assistance is a critical tool to assist the most vulnerable.

Planned activities

Fair protection processes and documentation

Quality of registration and profiling improved or maintained

- Register 23,000 new arrivals. Ensure that new asylum-seekers undergo RSD at first instance during the year and waiting periods are kept below 6 months.

Favourable protection environment

Access to legal assistance and legal remedies improved

- Provide 1,000 cases with legal consultations.

Security from violence and exploitation

Protection of children strengthened

LEBANON

Existing response

There is no legal or administrative framework to manage refugee affairs in Lebanon. After negotiations with the Government, the draft MoU that would recognize UNHCR's mandate and provide an agreed framework for the protection and assistance of asylum-seekers and refugees in Lebanon has been finalized but is still pending approval by the General Security Office.

In 2013, no amnesty period was announced by the General Security Office to allow legalization of stay in Lebanon for those asylum-seekers and refugees who entered the country unofficially. During 2013, a total of 983 non-Syrian refugees were provided with legal counselling.

Groups with specific needs have continued to depend on UNHCR and partners' assistance programmes to be able to survive, given the increasing cost of living and difficulties in finding work either legally or in the informal sector. An improved case management system and more community outreach helped the Office identify and assist refugees and asylum-seekers with specific needs, including SGBV survivors and cases of separated children. Increased awareness-raising activities for women, and efforts to provide them with skills/vocational training and job placement are being continued.

The number of school-aged Iraqi refugees in school has dropped from 1,580 to 767, mainly due to local schools prioritizing Syrian admission over Iraqis, insufficient information sharing, resettlement and a high rate of child labour reported by partner agencies. UNHCR and its partners are supporting the national health system and have ensured access for refugees to primary health care through expansion of the primary health care network.

Strategy and coordination

The overarching strategy for UNHCR remains to provide protection and solutions for refugees and others of concern in Lebanon. This will be achieved through continued close partnership with the Government, Parliament and the judiciary, the UNCT as well as local NGOs and partners.

UNHCR will continue to ensure coverage of work permits and regularization fees for Iraqi refugees, with primary focus on the most vulnerable. Advocacy with government authorities will continue to address the challenges facing Iraqi refugees. The risk of detention for persons of concern who have no legal residency in Lebanon is serious, particularly for Iraqis. At the end of 2013, there were 52 non-Syrian asylum-seekers and refugees in detention. The General Security Office is reluctant to release persons of concern to UNHCR unless they have been accepted for resettlement or have been able to identify a Lebanese sponsor to regularize their status. Further advocacy with prison authorities will be prioritized, expanding legal representation for detainees, including advocating for the release of detainees, especially minors (charged with illegal entry). UNHCR will continue to strengthen coordination with partners operating with juveniles in detention for better follow-up, and to ensure linkages with their parents/families outside of detention, as well as partners.

Immediate measures have been put in place by UNHCR to better organize the reception and registration areas. UNHCR will expand livelihood programmes and activities for Iraqis, with a focus on programmes targeting women, youth and older persons, as well as refugees without resettlement prospects. Cash support will be provided for those most in need, using the same modalities as for Syrian refugees (ATM), and their situation will be monitored.

UNHCR will also ensure that Iraqi refugees enjoy the same health services and access to the same facilities as Syrian refugees, and are aware of such services. The provision of medication for chronic conditions at the public health centre level will be monitored. Mental health services will be strengthened, including specialized mental health services. UNHCR will continue to focus on the promotion of access of children with disabilities to formal education, and will provide the necessary means to ensure this, as well as identifying disability-friendly schools. UNHCR will ensure timely education assistance to Iraqi refugee children ahead of the school year, in order to prevent non-enrolment/child labour for financial reasons.

Financial requirements (USD)

Lebanon's financial requirements to protect and assist Iraqis were included in the ExCom-approved 2015 budget (as detailed below) and UNHCR's Global Appeal. No additional financial requirements in 2015 are foreseen.

SYRIAN ARAB REPUBLIC

Existing response

For urban-based refugees, UNHCR's programme in Syria will continue to prioritize cash assistance to support fundamental non-food and shelter needs and address the vulnerability of those Iraqis who arrived in 2014. UNHCR's active resettlement programme, though facing challenges, is a key mechanism for durable solutions for persons of concern.

The Government of Syria continues to accommodate the presence of refugees in the country, which has allowed UNHCR to maintain refugee reception and counselling services, including refugee status determination (RSD) and resettlement. The main modality for assistance continues to be the cash assistance programme, where cash-for-food (provided by WFP) and monthly allowances are disbursed through ATM cards. This system allows refugees to prioritize their needs and access cash in their neighbouring vicinity, without having to travel across cities and face difficulties at various checkpoints. UNHCR continues to provide legal assistance to refugees and asylum-seekers through counselling and legal representation, directly or through contracted lawyers and implementing partners. With the aim of meeting the basic needs of refugees and enhancing their protection, UNHCR has increased the cash assistance programme to include winterization allowances. While security constraints have resulted in less frequent verification visits by UNHCR staff, UNHCR outreach volunteers have continued to access refugees so they do not need to travel to UNHCR offices.

Prior to the influx, UNHCR had prepositioned core relief items (CRIs) for 50,000 people in Hassakeh. At the start of the influx UNHCR provided transport to individuals from the border area to the Newroz camp. Additionally, UNHCR distributed CRI kits to over 6,200 individuals. The Office has also maintained an identification system in the camp to monitor new arrivals, capture special needs, and facilitate assistance and services. UNHCR has led the inter-agency response, mobilizing the support of WFP and UNICEF to provide food assistance and WASH services. UNHCR has also taken additional mitigation measures to prevent misuse of water in camps and to allow site preparation work to continue.

Strategy and coordination

UNHCR in Syria projects the arrival of 500 Iraqi individuals on average each month, amounting to 6,000 individuals (1,200 families) in 2015. The Office will organize transport to and shelter at the Newroz camp and will continue coordinating the inter-agency response. The response involves, inter alia, the expansion of protection outreach to newly arriving Iraqis, registration, documentation, SGBV monitoring and response, child protection, family reunification, and counselling. UNHCR will continue working with the Kurdish Relief Committee in the camp to address basic needs, including health. This will require setting up a basic primary-health care centre with an ambulance for emergency referrals to the public hospital.

As part of its 2015 project, UNHCR will work with its implementing partner to complete the construction of Newroz camp to initially accommodate 800 tents and all related services. The camp can be expanded to accommodate an additional 1,200 families. UNICEF contributes with WASH infrastructure and education activities. In addition, CRI assistance and other services will be extended to the host communities. In line with UNHCR's strategy of providing cash-for-food and cash assistance for vulnerable refugee families, cash assistance will be included as part of the emergency response, in particular for the population opting to reside outside the camp.

TURKEY

Existing response

Since June 2014, the number of Iraqi refugees in Turkey has continued to increase daily: some 87,250 people arrived between June and December 2014. The profile of the caseload continues to be diverse, including Christians, Sunnis and Shia, with a notable increase in the arrival of Yazidi Iraqis following the events in Sinjar.

Following the adoption of the Law on Foreigners and International Protection that entered into force in April 2014, Iraqis who arrived in Turkey before May 2014 are issued with identity documents by the Turkish authorities that provide access to rights including health care, education and social assistance. Iraqis who arrived after May 2014 are provided with documentation similar to those being given to Syrian refugees that benefit from temporary protection regime, even though the declaration of temporary protection as such for Iraqis has not been made yet.

The sudden population increase in several urban areas in Turkey has further strained government resources. This has resulted in a backlog in registration by the Foreigners' Police and those pending registration cannot access public services. In order to improve reception conditions of Iraqis arriving after May 2014, the Council of Ministers has announced that the health costs for this group will be covered by the Government. Post-May 2014 Iraqi arrivals are not entitled to apply for work permits.

UNHCR continues to carry out RSD and to search for durable solutions. Refugees who are registered with the Office can benefit from assistance provided by UNHCR and its partners, including psychosocial support, education support and cash assistance for the most vulnerable. The overall Iraqi refugee population in Turkey as of 31 December 2014 stood at 123,748. Of the total Iraqi refugees in Turkey, 20,995 are registered, 51,067 Iraqis are pre-registered, and 51,686 are pending pre-registration.

To expedite registration and documentation needs, UNHCR is working to further streamline RSD and registration; strengthen training activities; and increase its capacity to review cases by hiring additional staff.

Strategy and coordination

UNHCR will maintain its support to the Government and its local authorities in order to process and receive Iraqi refugees and respond to their immediate needs, while increasing its own registration capacity to reduce the backlog and simultaneously strengthen community outreach and psychosocial support, as well as assistance activities through its implementing partners. UNHCR is advocating for the removal of obstacles limiting Iraqis' access to services, in particular healthcare, regardless of whether they are yet to be registered or arrived after May 2014. Although the Turkish authorities have announced the extension of health coverage to Iraqis who have arrived after May 2014, the details and extent of the services need to be clarified.

Iraqis who arrived after May 2014 and those who are awaiting registration by national officials live in difficult conditions, as they are dependent on humanitarian assistance. Key unmet needs of asylum-seekers, most of whom have left behind all their belongings, include domestic items, clothes, medical care, accommodation, food, as well as transport.

In order to mitigate the growing pressure on the local reception capacity of the hosting communities, UNHCR will support the Turkish Government and the relevant public institutions including in facilitating access to healthcare, social assistance and education. UNHCR will provide support to the Ministry of National Education to enhance access to the Turkish education system and to Turkish language classes.

UNHCR and its partners will also continue to provide counselling and information on registration and access to services in Turkey; to identify and follow up on persons with special needs, including survivors and persons at risk of SGBV, UASC and other children at risk, and persons with disabilities and chronic medical problems, through its registration, protection and outreach activities; and to ensure referrals to national protection and support mechanisms. Through its partners, UNHCR will support the most vulnerable with cash-based and CRI assistance. Given the increased population, the range of activities of UNHCR’s partners will be expanded, including a scaling-up of psychosocial support activities to meet the increasing needs. Partner presence will also be expanded to cover the 62 satellite cities in Turkey.

Planned activities

Fair protection processes and documentation

Quality of registration and profiling improved or maintained

- Process 80% of Iraqi cases at the registration stage in merged procedures (registration and RSD); while 20% will undergo full-scale RSD procedures.
- Strengthen UNHCR and its implementing partner’s registration capacity to ensure PoCs are registered on an individual basis with essential data recorded, and with a view to identifying immediate protection needs as well as undertaking relevant protection responses, including resettlement according to established criteria.
- Improve counselling and protection assistance and information facilities including at UNHCR’s premises.
- Register an estimated 186,000 individuals and timely documentation process.
- Provide information to PoC on registration procedures
- Strengthen UNHCR RSD capacity to process cases and increase outreach with missions to 62 satellite cities.
- Increase provision of interpretation services to support the Turkish authorities and UNHCR in dealing with registration and protection related activities.
- Expand and strengthen UNHCR’s partners’ presence to develop protection policies in urban contexts expanded to 41 cities.
- Strengthen implementing partners’ assistance program to ensure basic needs are met and access to medical assistance is ensured.

Reception conditions improved

Favourable protection environment

Access to legal assistance and legal remedies

- Provide accurate and timely information concerning protection procedures (including registration with the Government of Turkey and UNHCR; refugee status determination, access to public services and assistance) at the earliest stage.
- Provide counselling and key information to 12,000 people of concern on their rights and obligations in Turkey.
- Train 50 adjudicators for legal representation for persons of concern involved in relevant administrative
