Foreword

The first edition of the Collection of International Instruments Concerning Refugees was published in 1979. Thereafter, the compilation was updated regularly as new developments took place in the international law relating to refugees and other persons of concern to UNHCR.

The 2007 edition takes account of the increasingly apparent inter-relationship and complementarity between, on one hand, international refugee law and, on the other, human rights, humanitarian, criminal and other bodies of law. The Collection features over 260 instruments and legal texts drawn from across this broad spectrum. Compared to the earlier edition of the Collection, this edition includes many international instruments and legal texts relating to issues such as statelessness, the internally displaced and the asylum-migration debate (such as trafficking, smuggling, maritime and aviation law and migrants) as well as matters such as torture, discrimination, detention and the protection of women and children. The range of relevant regional instruments and legal texts have also been enhanced, not least to ensure that they are used more effectively while advocating for refugees and others of concern to UNHCR.

Today, users can access veritable reference resources by electronic means. The Collection itself is accessible on-line. For users not able to access electronic facilities, it provides, in hard copy, the most important instruments in a manner easy to use in daily work. Indeed, even for those otherwise able to take advantage of electronic facilities, the availability of these instruments systematically in a single source offers unique facility and benefits.

In this spirit, the Collection is strongly commended for the most frequent, wide, and extensive use. Government officials, academics, lawyers, humanitarian workers, non-governmental organizations and members of civil society at large will find their respective activities on behalf of refugees and other victims of forced displacement greatly enhanced by the Collection. In particular, it should facilitate the most complete view possible of the international rights and obligations undergirding the protection and welfare of those groups and finding solutions for their problems.

Preface

This Collection of International Instruments and Legal Texts spans four volumes and contains over 260 documents that have been compiled after extensive consultations to support those working on issues relating to forced displacement, statelessness and related matters.

Every attempt has been made to ensure that the structure and format of this publication allows the user to easily access the international instruments and legal texts. In particular:

- A table of contents has been provided at the beginning of each volume. Page numbering continues in sequence through the four volumes.
- International instruments are placed at the beginning of this Collection followed by regional instruments.
- The instruments and legal texts have been compiled under specific thematic headings such as Nationality and Statelessness, Human Rights, etc. Thematic issues relating to asylum, refugees, nationality and statelessness and the internally displaced have been placed ahead of human rights, migration and miscellaneous issues.
- Within each thematic heading, instruments that are binding on States (such as Conventions) are placed ahead of legal texts (such as declarations) that are often less binding in nature. Protocols always follow the parent instrument in order (for instance, the Palermo Protocols on Smuggling and Trafficking follow the parent Convention on Transnational Crime in the International Criminal Law section). Chronology has been maintained within this structure only (i.e.: all declarations under a sub-heading are chronological). Instruments that have not entered into force have still been included ahead of legal texts.
- In Volume 1 and 2 only, where an instrument or declaration under one thematic area may be relevant to another thematic area, a cross reference has been provided in the Table of Contents (for instance, the Palermo Protocols on Smuggling and Trafficking are situated in the International Criminal Law section but are also relevant to the sections relating to torture, slavery, slavery-like practices and forced labour, women and children).
- Short names of Conventions are mentioned where possible for ease of reference (for instance, the Palermo Protocols, SOLAS, SAR, etc). International Labour Conventions have been marked accordingly.
- The language used in the original version or translation of an instruments or legal text has been replicated without any alteration. As such, readers will notice that both American and British English are used in this Collection.

- The date of adoption and date of entry into force feature under the title of international and regional instruments. The date of entry into force is absent in cases where the instrument had not come into force at the time of this publication.
- For reasons of space, State ratification or reservations to international and regional instruments have not been included. As well, this information would need to be updated regularly by the reader.
- For reasons of space, only relevant excerpts of certain instruments have been published (this is the case of the Geneva Convention).
- An index has been provided at the end of every volume.
- A short list of electronic resources has also been provided at the end of each volume for those who wish to access other international and regional instruments and legal texts as well as national legislation.

Please write to UNHCR's Division of International Protection Services (DIPS) in Geneva for any questions, comments or clarifications you may have in relation to this Collection at HQPR10@unhcr.org.

CONVENTION GOVERNING THE SPECIFIC ASPECTS OF REFUGEE PROBLEMS IN AFRICA

Adopted on 10 September 1969 by the Assembly of Heads of State and Government

Entry into force: 20 June 1974, in accordance with Article XI
Text: United Nations, Treaty Series, no. 14, vol. 691

PREAMBLE

We, the Heads of State and Government assembled in the city of Addis Ababa, Ethiopia,

1. Noting with concern the constantly increasing numbers of refugees in Africa and desirous of finding ways and means of alleviating their misery and suffering as well as providing them with a better life and future;
2. Recognizing the need for an essentially humanitarian approach towards solving the problems of refugees;
3. Aware, however, that refugee problems are a source of friction among many Member States, and desirous of eliminating the source of such discord;
4. Anxious to make a distinction between a refugee who seeks a peaceful and normal life and a person fleeing his country for the sole purpose of fomenting subversion from outside;
5. Determined that the activities of such subversive elements should be discouraged, in accordance with the Declaration on the Problems of Subversion and Resolution on the Problem of Refugees adopted at Accra in 1965;
6. Bearing in mind that the Charter of the United Nations and the Universal Declaration of Human Rights have affirmed the principle that human beings shall enjoy fundamental rights and freedoms without discrimination;
7. Recalling Resolution 2312 (XXII) of 14 December 1967 of the United Nations General Assembly, relating to the Declaration on Territorial Asylum;
8. Convinced that all the problems of our continent must be solved in the spirit of the Charter of the Organization of African Unity and in the African context;
9. Recognising that the United Nations Convention of 28 July 1951, as modified by the Protocol of 31 January 1967, constitutes the basic and universal instrument relating to the status of refugees and reflects the deep concern of States for refugees and their desire to establish common standards for their treatment;
10. Recalling Resolutions 26 and 104 of the OAU Assemblies of Heads of State and Government, calling upon Member States of the Organization who had not already done so to accede to the United Nations Convention of 1951 and to the Protocol of 1967 relating to the Status of Refugees, and meanwhile to apply their provisions to refugees in Africa;
11. Convinced that the efficiency of the measures recommended by the present Convention to solve the problem of refugees in Africa necessitates close and continuous collaboration between the Organization of African Unity and the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees;

Have agreed as follows:

Article I

Definition of the term “Refugee”

1. For the purposes of this Convention, the term “refugee” shall mean every person who, owing to well-founded fear of being persecuted for reasons of race, religion, nationality, membership of a particular social group or political opinion, is outside the country of his nationality and is unable or, owing to such fear, is unwilling to avail himself of the protection of that country, or who, not having a nationality and being outside the country of his former habitual residence as a result of such events, is unable or, owing to such fear, is unwilling to return to it.

2. The term “refugee” shall also apply to every person who, owing to external aggression, occupation, foreign domination or events seriously disturbing public order in either part or the whole of his country of origin or nationality, is compelled to leave his place of habitual residence in order to seek refuge in another place outside his country of origin or nationality.
3. In the case of a person who has several nationalities, the term “a country of which he is a national” shall mean each of the countries of which he is a national, and a person shall not be deemed to be lacking the protection of the country of which he is a national if, without any valid reason based on well-founded fear, he has not availed himself of the protection of one of the countries of which he is a national.
4. This Convention shall cease to apply to any refugee if:
 - (a) He has voluntarily re-availed himself of the protection of the country of his nationality, or
 - (b) Having lost his nationality, he has voluntarily reacquired it, or
 - (c) He has acquired a new nationality, and enjoys the protection of the country of his new nationality, or
 - (d) He has voluntarily re-established himself in the country which he left or outside which he remained owing to fear of persecution, or
 - (e) He can no longer, because the circumstances in connection with which he was recognised as a refugee have ceased to exist, continue to refuse to avail himself of the protection of the country of his nationality, or
 - (f) He has committed a serious non-political crime outside his country of refuge after his admission to that country as a refugee, or
 - (g) He has seriously infringed the purposes and objectives of this Convention.
5. The provisions of this Convention shall not apply to any person with respect to whom the country of asylum has serious reasons for considering that:
 - (a) He has committed a crime against peace, a war crime, or a crime against humanity, as defined in the international instruments drawn up to make provision in respect of such crimes;
 - (b) He committed a serious non-political crime outside the country of refuge prior to his admission to that country as a refugee;
 - (c) He has been guilty of acts contrary to the purposes and principles of the Organization of African Unity;
 - (d) He has been guilty of acts contrary to the purposes and principles of the United Nations.
6. For the purposes of this Convention, the Contracting State of Asylum shall determine whether an applicant is a refugee.

Article II

Asylum

1. Member States of the OAU shall use their best endeavours consistent with their respective legislations to receive refugees and to secure the settlement of those refugees who, for well-founded reasons, are unable or unwilling to return to their country of origin or nationality.
2. The grant of asylum to refugees is a peaceful and humanitarian act and shall not be regarded as an unfriendly act by any Member State.
3. No person shall be subjected by a Member State to measures such as rejection at the frontier, return or expulsion, which would compel him to return to or remain in a territory where his life, physical integrity or liberty would be threatened for the reasons set out in Article I, paragraphs 1 and 2.
4. Where a Member State finds difficulty in continuing to grant asylum to refugees, such Member State may appeal directly to other Member States and through the OAU, and such other Member States shall in the spirit of African solidarity and international co-operation take appropriate measures to lighten the burden of the Member State granting asylum.

5. Where a refugee has not received the right to reside in any country of asylum, he may be granted temporary residence in any country of asylum in which he first presented himself as a refugee pending arrangement for his resettlement in accordance with the preceding paragraph.
6. For reasons of security, countries of asylum shall, as far as possible, settle refugees at a reasonable distance from the frontier of their country of origin.

Article III

Prohibition of Subversive Activities

1. Every refugee has duties to the country in which he finds himself, which require in particular that he conforms with its laws and regulations as well as with measures taken for the maintenance of public order. He shall also abstain from any subversive activities against any Member State of the OAU.
2. Signatory States undertake to prohibit refugees residing in their respective territories from attacking any State Member of the OAU, by any activity likely to cause tension between Member States, and in particular by use of arms, through the press, or by radio.

Article IV

Non-Discrimination

Member States undertake to apply the provisions of this Convention to all refugees without discrimination as to race, religion, nationality, membership of a particular social group or political opinions.

Article V

Voluntary Repatriation

1. The essentially voluntary character of repatriation shall be respected in all cases and no refugee shall be repatriated against his will.
2. The country of asylum, in collaboration with the country of origin, shall make adequate arrangements for the safe return of refugees who request repatriation.
3. The country of origin, on receiving back refugees, shall facilitate their resettlement and grant them the full rights and privileges of nationals of the country, and subject them to the same obligations.
4. Refugees who voluntarily return to their country shall in no way be penalized for having left it for any of the reasons giving rise to refugee situations. Whenever necessary, an appeal shall be made through national information media and through the Administrative Secretary-General of the OAU, inviting refugees to return home and giving assurance that the new circumstances prevailing in their country of origin will enable them to return without risk and to take up a normal and peaceful life without fear of being disturbed or punished, and that the text of such appeal should be given to refugees and clearly explained to them by their country of asylum.
5. Refugees who freely decide to return to their homeland, as a result of such assurances or on their own initiative, shall be given every possible assistance by the country of asylum, the country of origin, voluntary agencies and international and intergovernmental Organizations, to facilitate their return.

Article VI

Travel Documents

1. Subject to Article III, Member States shall issue to refugees lawfully staying in their territories travel documents in accordance with the United Nations Convention relating to the Status of Refugees and the Schedule and Annex thereto, for the purpose of travel outside their territory, unless compelling reasons of national security or public order otherwise require. Member States may issue such a travel document to any other refugee in their territory.

2. Where an African country of second asylum accepts a refugee from a country of first asylum, the country of first asylum may be dispensed from issuing a document with a return clause.
3. Travel documents issued to refugees under previous international agreements by State Parties thereto shall be recognised and treated by Member States in the same way as if they had been issued to refugees pursuant to this Article.

Article VII

Co-operation of the National Authorities with the Organization of African Unity

In order to enable the Administrative Secretary-General of the Organization of African Unity to make reports to the competent organs of the Organization of African Unity, Member States undertake to provide the Secretariat in the appropriate form with information and statistical data requested concerning:

This Convention may be amended or revised if any Member State makes a written request to the Administrative Secretary-General to that effect, provided however, that the proposed amendment shall not be submitted to the Assembly of Heads of State and Government for consideration until all Member States have been duly notified of it and a period of one year has elapsed. Such an amendment shall not be effective unless approved by at least two-thirds of the Member States Parties to the present Convention.

Article XIII

Denunciation

1. Any Member State Party to this Convention may denounce its provisions by a written notification to the Administrative Secretary-General.
2. At the end of one year from the date of such notification, if not withdrawn, the Convention shall cease to apply with respect to the denouncing State.

ADDIS ABABA DOCUMENT ON REFUGEES AND FORCED POPULATION DISPLACEMENTS IN AFRICA

Declaration by a symposium on refugee issues in Africa, held jointly by the OAU and the UN High Commissioner for Refugees in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, on 10 September 1994

FOREWORD

Today, twenty five years since the adoption in 1969 of the OAU Convention Governing the Specific Aspects of Refugee Problems in Africa, and twenty years after it entered into force in 1974, Africa is witnessing its most dramatic crisis of forced population displacement. While there have been positive political developments in some regions of the continent, others continue to be ravaged by armed conflicts, political violence and massive human rights abuses. Many of these disruptions are rooted in ethnic tensions or are exacerbated by poverty, social inequities and environmental degradation. As the institutions of law and order are destroyed and civic stability is threatened by political anarchy, millions of people are forced to flee their homes and to seek safety in other parts of their countries or in foreign lands.

There are now over 7 million refugees in Africa, about one third of the world total. In addition, there are over 16 million internally displaced persons, some of whom are in very dire conditions. The recent crisis in Rwanda alone has produced some two million refugees and resulted in a high percentage of the population being displaced internally. The very causes of displacement may also hinder the delivery of protection and humanitarian assistance, prevent the return of refugees to their homes, prolong exile and even jeopardise regional peace and security.

To commemorate the adoption of the 1969 OAU Convention and its coming into force, the Organization of African Unity (OAU) Secretariat and the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) jointly organised a Symposium which was held in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, from 8 to 10 September 1994. The Symposium particularly focussed its deliberations on the magnitude, gravity and challenges of the crises of displacement in Africa and adopted the Addis Ababa Document on Refugees and Forced Population Displacements in Africa. As reflected in this document, the Symposium concluded that the OAU Convention continues to be “a strong pillar for refugee protection and solutions in Africa”. At the same time, it emphasized the urgent need to decisively address the root causes of the displacement of people in Africa, and called for energetic efforts to find solutions for those who have been or continue to be forcibly displaced.

We believe that the recommendations in this document are an important contribution to the international community’s policy and operational framework for tackling the root causes of forced displacement in Africa, providing protection and humanitarian assistance to refugees and other displaced persons, and finding solutions to their problems. We commend the Addis Ababa Document to the Member States of the Organization of African Unity, other States, and the relevant international and non-governmental Organizations for reflection and, more importantly, implementation of its recommendations.

PART I

INTRODUCTION

1. The OAU/UNHCR Commemorative Symposium on Refugees and Forced Population Displacements in Africa took place in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, from 8 to 10 September 1994. The Symposium was held to commemorate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the adoption of the 1969 OAU Convention Governing the Specific Aspects of Refugee Problems in Africa (the “1969 OAU Convention”) and the twentieth year of its entry into force on 20 June 1974.

2. The Symposium brought together representatives of almost all the Member States of the Organization of African Unity (OAU) and a number of the Member States of the Executive Committee of the Programme of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees. Also represented were relevant Organizations of the United Nations system, other inter-governmental Organizations, non-governmental Organizations, and academics from various parts of the world.
3. The participants in the Symposium have noted with satisfaction the important contribution that the 1969 OAU Convention has made to refugee protection and solutions in Africa. It has also inspired other regions of the world. While acknowledging the challenges facing the Convention, the Symposium reaffirmed its belief in the continued validity of the Convention as the regional foundation for providing protection and finding solutions for refugees in Africa. The Symposium also believed that the Convention provided a good basis for further developing the legal tools and mechanisms for solving the problems of refugees and forced population displacements as a whole in Africa.
4. There have been positive developments in finding solutions for refugees in Africa, such as the successfully completed repatriation of South African refugees in 1993 and the continuing return home of over one million Mozambican refugees. However, new refugee emergencies have also occurred in many parts of the continent. In fact, the refugee population in Africa has grown more than 10 times, from 700,000 to over 7,000,000, in the twenty-five years since the Convention came into existence in 1969. Moreover, in addition to the 7,000,000 refugees, one third of the world total, there are an over 16 million internally displaced persons on the African continent. But while the displacement crisis is growing, the political, financial and material support towards protecting and assisting refugees can no longer be taken for granted, as a result of various global developments.
5. The refugee flows impose intolerable security, social and economic burdens on the countries that have generously provided and continue to provide asylum. More seriously, they are symptomatic of the tragedy of the ethnic conflicts, social disintegration and political anarchy prevailing in some countries in Africa.
6. Thus, the anniversaries of the 1969 OAU Convention provide an opportunity not only to review the achievements of and challenges facing the Convention, but also to draw attention to the continuing urgency of the refugee and displacement crisis in Africa.
7. The recommendations contained in this document do not lose sight of many important initiatives, recommendations, decisions, declarations and plans of action which have preceded this Symposium, in Africa and elsewhere, and which have an important bearing on the refugee issue. Thus, in formulating its recommendations, the Symposium has drawn inspiration from, among others, the following documents:
 - Recommendations of the Pan-African Conference on the Situation of Refugees in Africa, (Arusha, Tanzania, 7-17 May 1979, “The Arusha Recommendations”);
 - The African Charter on Human and Peoples’ Rights of 1981;
 - The Second International Conference on Assistance to Refugees in Africa (1984, “ICARA II Recommendations”);
 - The Oslo Declaration and Plan of Action on the Plight of Refugees, Returnees and Displaced Persons in Southern Africa (“SARRED”, August 1988);
 - The Khartoum Declaration on Africa’s Refugee Crisis Adopted by the Seventeenth Extra-Ordinary Session of the OAU Commission of Fifteen on Refugees (Khartoum, Sudan, 20 – 24 September 1990);
 - The Declaration, Framework of Cooperation and Action Programme of the Horn of Africa Summit on Humanitarian Issues (Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, April 1992);
 - The African Humanitarian Initiative for Sustainable Development (1993);
 - The Cairo Declaration on the Establishment within the OAU of a Mechanism for Conflict Prevention, Management and Resolution (Cairo, June 1993);
 - The Addis Ababa PARINAC Conclusions and Recommendations, (Addis Ababa, March 1994); the Oslo PARINAC Declaration and Plan of Action (Oslo, June 1994);
 - And the Tunis Declaration on the 1969 OAU Convention Governing the Specific Aspects of Refugee Problems in Africa (Tunis, June 1994).

PART 2

RECOMMENDATIONS

I. ROOT CAUSES OF REFUGEE FLOWS AND OTHER FORCED POPULATION DISPLACEMENTS

8. Refugee flows are a symbol of the crises which afflict many societies in Africa. In particular, most of the refugee flows are the result of armed conflicts and civil strife. Ethnic intolerance; the abuse of human rights on a massive scale; the monopolisation of political and economic power; refusal to respect democracy or the results of free and fair elections; resistance to popular participation in governance; and poor management of public affairs, all play a part in forcing people to flee their normal places of residence.
9. External factors have also played a part in at least contributing to forced population displacements. Historically, the main cause of coerced population displacements has been colonialism. Today, there is no question that international economic forces have contributed to the widespread poverty in Africa and to the widening gap between the poor and the rich. In many African countries, there is competition over scarce resources, and the human and physical environment has suffered degradation. Some States can no longer carry out the critical functions of government, including the control of national territory; oversight over the nation's resources; extraction of revenue; maintenance of an adequate national infrastructure; rendering of basic services such as sanitation, education and housing; and governance and maintenance of law and order. All these factors contribute in one or another way to the root causes of displacement.
10. The Symposium has focused much of its discussions on the root causes of displacement and the imperative need to carry out preventive measures. Recognising that conflicts are the major cause of displacement in Africa today, the participants echoed many times over the urgency of taking energetic measures to prevent conflicts or resolve them expeditiously after they have started. They called for decisive national and international measures to create stable, viable and progressive societies. Otherwise, refugee displacements would continue unabated, and prospects for the return of refugees to their countries of origin would also remain elusive.

Recommendation One

The Member States of the Organization of African Unity (OAU) and the OAU Secretariat, in collaboration with the relevant inter-governmental and non-governmental Organizations, should examine all the factors which cause or contribute to civil conflicts, with a view to elaborating a Comprehensive Plan of Action for tackling the root causes of refugee flows and other displacements. Among others, the following issues should be examined: ethnic strife and conflict; the role of the arms trade in causing or exacerbating conflicts in Africa; the establishment of a firm foundation for democratic institutions and governance; the respect of human rights; the promotion of economic development and social progress; the obstacles to providing protection and humanitarian assistance to displaced persons; and the inter-relationship between humanitarian, political and military actions at an international level.

Recommendation Two

The political leadership of Africa should rise up to the challenges of practicing politics of inclusion and popular participation in national affairs; creating a firm foundation for responsible and accountable governance; and promoting social progress, economic development and a just and fair society.

Recommendation Three

In this context, the Symposium notes with satisfaction the activities of the OAU in conflict prevention and resolution. Bearing in mind the beneficial effects of such activities in preventing or reducing displacement, the Symposium:

- (i) Recommends that the linkage between the activities of the OAU in conflict prevention, management and resolution and those on behalf of refugees and internally displaced persons should be strengthened.

- (ii) Urges Organizations involved in refugee and other displacement issues, and the international community at large, to support the activities of the OAU in conflict prevention, management and resolution.
- (iii) In particular, encourages those Organizations, and the international community at large, to contribute generously to the OAU Peace Fund and to provide human resources, technical support advisory services and equipment to support the above-mentioned activities, in conformity with the relevant OAU guidelines.
- (iv) Further encourages them to support the OAU in elaborating and expanding its activities in the fields of human rights monitoring, the promotion of human rights and humanitarian law, election monitoring, the management of political transitions, and the development of early warning systems at national, sub-regional and continental levels.

Recommendation Four

The Symposium urges all parties involved in armed conflicts to respect the principles and norms of humanitarian law, particularly those aimed at protecting civilians from the effects of war, preventing their being subjected to attacks, reprisals or starvation, or being displaced in conditions contrary to the provisions of Additional Protocol II to the 1949 Geneva Conventions on the laws of war.

II. THE 1969 OAU CONVENTION GOVERNING THE SPECIFIC ASPECTS OF REFUGEE PROBLEMS IN AFRICA

11. As a regional complement of the 1951 United Nations Convention Relating to the Status of Refugees and its 1967 Protocol, the 1969 OAU Convention has been a strong pillar for refugee protection and solutions in Africa. It has enabled the provision of asylum to refugees and the implementation of voluntary repatriation in a way that has consolidated brotherhood and comity among African States. It has also inspired the development of favourable refugee laws, policies and practices in Africa and indeed in other regions of the world, most notably in the Latin American region. The Convention remains the only international legal instrument which contains elaborate principles on the voluntary repatriation of refugees.

Recommendation Five

The Symposium reaffirms its belief in the continuing validity of the 1969 OAU Convention as the cornerstone of refugee protection and solutions in Africa. In this regard, and in order to implement the Convention more effectively, it is recommended that States:

- (i) Which have not already done so should ratify the Convention.
- (ii) Should uphold the principles of the Convention on the humanitarian nature of asylum; prohibit activities inconsistent with refugee status; safeguard refugees against refoulement or expulsion; actively promote voluntary repatriation; respect the principle of voluntariness in repatriation; and practice burden-sharing and solidarity among States.
- (iii) Should enact the necessary legislation and regulations so as to give effect nationally to the Convention and its principles.
- (iv) With the support of the OAU, UNHCR, and other relevant Organizations, provide training to government officials on the provisions of the 1969 OAU Convention and the principles of refugee protection in general, as well as promote those standards among the refugee and national populations as a whole.
- (v) Should courageously resist temptations to whittle down, through national policies, laws or practices, the obligations and standards contained in the Convention.

Recommendation Six

Those regions of the world in which international or regional legal systems for refugee protection do not exist, or where the applicable regimes are under review, should consider the relevance of the 1969 OAU Convention. In this regard, the Symposium highlights the Convention's broad definition of a refugee, its provisions on the non-rejection of refugees at borders and the prohibition of refoulement of refugees, and the respect of the voluntariness of refugee repatriation.

III. REFUGEE PROTECTION IN AFRICA

12. Most of the African States have acceded to the three major international instruments on refugees. 45 States have acceded to the 1951 Convention; 46 to the 1967 Protocol and 42 to the 1969 OAU Convention. Only 4 States in Africa have not yet acceded to at least one of these instruments. Throughout the continent, countries are generous towards refugees and many practice liberal asylum policies.
13. Nevertheless, the institution of asylum and the system of refugee protection are under tremendous stress in Africa. The large number of refugees seeking asylum in countries already themselves experiencing tremendous social and economic hardships, has brought into question the very capacity of nations to cope with refugees. In a number of countries, the basic principles of refugee protection are not being upheld. Refugees have been arrested and detained without charge. Others have been returned against their will to places where their lives may be in danger. Yet others have been restricted to refugee camps or to remote, inaccessible locations where they are sometimes exposed to banditry, rape and other forms of criminality. Many have not been able to enjoy social, economic and civil rights.
14. This is partly the result of a combination of political, security, social and economic constraints whereby States are able to abide by their international legal obligations only under the most difficult and burdensome circumstances. Unfortunately, because of a global recession and the increased number of persons seeking asylum and humanitarian assistance world-wide, the international community's financial and material support to lighten the burden on African host countries has diminished.

Recommendation Seven

African States should abide by the letter and spirit of the 1969 OAU Convention and continue to uphold their traditional hospitality towards refugees and their liberal asylum policies. In particular:

- (i) Refugees seeking admission into the territory of another State should not be rejected at the border or returned to territories where their lives may be endangered. Accordingly, Governments should not close their borders in order to refuse refugees admission.
- (ii) Governments should use their best endeavours to treat refugees according to the standards established under refugee law. In particular, they should ensure the personal safety of refugees, locate them in areas which are accessible, safe and where basic services and amenities can be provided, and enable them to regain a normal way of life.

Recommendation Eight

The international community, the United Nations, the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, and other relevant Organizations, should support and assist host Governments in fulfilling their responsibilities towards refugees in a manner consistent with the principles of refugee law on the one hand, and legitimate national security, social and economic interests on the other hand. In particular, financial, material and technical assistance should be made available to:

- (i) Ensure that the social and economic structures, community services, and the environment of host countries or communities are not unduly stretched as a result of having to host massive numbers of refugees.
- (ii) Provide food, water, shelter, sanitation and medical services on a timely basis so that refugees and local populations alike are not put in a life-endangering situation.
- (iii) Determine the refugee status of persons seeking asylum, and to ensure that those who do not need or deserve international protection do not abuse the humanitarian institution of asylum.
- (iv) Enable Governments to respond effectively to situations which may contribute to a deterioration in security, law and order in the refugee-hosting areas. In this regard, priority should be placed on isolating and disarming individuals or groups among the refugee populations who may be armed and threatening the lives of innocent refugees, local citizens, and humanitarian personnel, or engaging in other criminal acts.

- (v) Further to the preceding recommendation, to trace and impound for safe custody or destruction, dangerous weapons illegally circulating or hidden in refugee-hosting areas.
- (vi) Create or strengthen national institutions to manage and deal with refugee matters at central, provincial and district levels; build adequate and well-trained human resources capacity; and to have such technical and logistic resources as will enable Governments to respond to and administer all aspects of refugee problems.

IV. MATERIAL ASSISTANCE TO REFUGEES

15. The principles of international solidarity and burden-sharing have traditionally provided the foundation for the response by the international community to refugee problems. It is now evident that African countries cannot sustain the burdens of hosting refugees on their own. Yet, because of “compassion fatigue” or “donor fatigue”, financial and material resources for refugee programmes in Africa from the developed countries are declining. In recent emergency situations, the response of the international community has been hesitant and characterised by poor preparedness and limited resources.
16. Moreover, in all parts of the world, measures taken to meet diverse national interests have not always conformed to the objectives of refugee protection in all cases. To avoid illegal migration and reduce the abuse of asylum procedures, measures such as interdiction on the high seas, visa restrictions and carrier sanctions have been instituted. Likewise, new refugee categorisations have been devised along with a more restrictive interpretation of the refugee definition in the 1951 Convention. In addition, concepts such as “safe countries of origin”, “temporary protection”, “safety zones”, “in-country processing” and “safe return” have been developed.
17. These measures, while taken to safeguard various national interests, have had the effect of imposing restrictive migratory controls and raised concerns that genuine refugees are being deterred from being able to seek and enjoy asylum. On the other hand, in some countries, such measures have the effect of denying entry to refugees.

Recommendation Nine

Donor countries, and relevant intergovernmental and non-governmental Organizations, should provide financial, material and technical assistance to the African asylum countries hosting refugee populations. In cases of large-scale influxes, such assistance should necessarily be provided on a timely basis in order that lives are not lost.

Recommendation Ten

The refugee crisis cannot be addressed effectively through rigid and regionalised approaches. The Symposium recommends that this problem be addressed in a global and comprehensive manner, as it will ultimately affect every region of the world. Likewise, countries should strive for effective cooperation and mutual assistance on refugee, displacement and migratory issues, in the same way they collaborate on security, economic and environmental matters.

Recommendation Eleven

The Symposium appeals for genuine international solidarity and burden-sharing to be brought back to the centre of the refugee problem, the international system of protection and of solutions for refugees. In particular, a truly international system embracing global standards and principles on prevention, refugee protection, assistance and solutions should be reinvigorated. The steady slide towards restrictive, deterrent, laws, policies and practices at a global level must be halted and reversed.

Recommendation Twelve

In order to reinforce the measures proposed in the above-mentioned recommendations, the Africa region should elaborate, with dedication and determination, modalities for an effective response to the refugee problem on a regional basis. In situations where a sub-region or group of countries are affected by a common refugee problem, such an approach is particularly appropriate. In other cases where emergencies are beyond humanitarian action alone, the necessary political initiatives may also require a regional approach. Therefore, arrangements to ensure prevention of refugee displacements, guarantee protection within the region and actively promote solutions are considered to be essential elements of this approach.

V. INTERNALLY DISPLACED PERSONS

18. The situation of internally displaced persons typifies vividly the crisis of displacement in Africa today. They are estimated at almost 20 million. Notwithstanding the magnitude of the problem, no single organization has a specific and comprehensive mandate to respond to the protection and assistance needs of internally displaced persons as a whole. In certain circumstances, their needs have been catered for by given organizations. Nevertheless, the international community remains inadequately equipped to respond effectively to all aspects of their problems. Indeed, the problem of internally displaced persons represents one of the most tragic humanitarian and human rights crises in Africa today.

Recommendation Thirteen

The primary responsibility to ensure the protection of all its nationals belongs to the State as a duty and responsibility flowing from sovereignty. States should uphold the rights provided for under international and national law in favour of internally displaced persons. In particular, their right to life; not to be arbitrarily relocated; and to be able to return to their habitual places of residence, must be respected at all times. In addition, both States and non-state entities involved in armed conflicts are bound to abide by the human rights and humanitarian law principles and norms, the observance of which would ensure the protection of internally displaced persons.

Recommendation Fourteen

All parties to a conflict, or who control areas where internally displaced persons are located, should cooperate with the relevant organizations involved in humanitarian activities in enabling them to gain access to the displaced so as to cater to their needs. This type of access for humanitarian purposes should not be considered as impinging on the sovereignty of States. On the contrary, the consent of States to such access, to ensure saving the lives of the internally displaced persons, is an exercise of a primordial function of sovereignty.

Recommendation Fifteen

The Symposium strongly supports the efforts of the Special Representative of the United Nations Secretary-General on Internally Displaced Persons, and initiatives taken in other national, regional and international fora, to promote appropriate legal, institutional and operational mechanisms for the better protection and assistance of internally displaced persons.

VI. SOLUTIONS FOR REFUGEES

(a) Refugee Repatriation

19. The voluntary return of refugees to their countries of origin, whenever feasible, remains the best solution. In this connection, the Symposium notes with satisfaction that the conclusion of a Peace Accord in Mozambique in October 1992 has opened the way for the return home of more than one million Mozambican refugees. Moreover, in other regions, the potential for refugee solutions through repatriation looks promising.
20. However, in some other regions of the continent, a large number of refugees are unable to return to their countries. The main constraint to voluntary repatriation is continuing insecurity, violence or strife in the countries of origin. Moreover, many areas of potential repatriation have suffered years of destruction, stagnation and decay. In other areas, there is a high prevalence of land mines and other abandoned or concealed munitions. In yet others, the repatriation of refugees is impeded either by policies deliberately intended to deter return, or because of a shortage of resources, such as land, for the settlement of the returnees and their reintegration.

21. Most refugees return spontaneously with little or no assistance given to them or to the areas into which they are returning. Some voluntary repatriation programmes are not properly coordinated between participating organizations. Thus, adequate assessment of the needs of the returnees and the areas of return are often neglected.
22. The Symposium deplures attempts, which have been made by some Governments both in and outside Africa, to return refugees to their countries of origin against their will, including in situations where danger to their safety still exists.

Recommendation Sixteen

Every opportunity for the voluntary repatriation of refugees should be seized upon. In keeping with the provisions of the 1969 OAU Convention, Governments of asylum and Governments of origin should create conducive conditions for the return home of refugees in safety and dignity. The OAU and UNHCR should support these initiatives and measures and also carry out such activities, consistent with their respective mandates, to promote and facilitate voluntary repatriation.

Recommendation Seventeen

In promoting refugee repatriation, the principle of voluntariness elaborated in the 1969 OAU Convention and in general refugee law should be respected at all times. Governments should not resort to the forcible repatriation of refugees for any reason. Furthermore, refugees should not be returned to conditions where they may be endangered. The withdrawal of food distribution in refugee camps so as to force refugees to return to their country, whereas they may still be in need of protection, is a flagrant contravention of refugee law and the well-accepted principle of voluntariness of repatriation.

Recommendation Eighteen

Refugee repatriation programmes should be designed in such a manner as to ensure that refugees who return spontaneously are not excluded from the relevant monitoring activities and assistance programmes.

Recommendation Nineteen

Refugees should be allowed to participate in decisions concerning their repatriation. In this connection, they should be provided with all the relevant information necessary for informed judgments. The Government of the country of origin, the Government of the country of asylum, and the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees should cooperate in providing refugees with the necessary information.

Recommendation Twenty

In planning and implementing repatriation programmes, the protection and assistance needs of the most vulnerable, particularly women, children and the elderly, must be provided for at every stage of the return and reintegration operation.

Recommendation Twenty One

The international community should provide assistance for the rehabilitation or reconstruction of the social and economic infrastructures, services and distribution systems in the areas of return in order that the conditions for successful repatriation are thereby created.

Recommendation Twenty Two

The Organization of African Unity and the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees should collaborate in clarifying:

- (i) which organizations or authorities have responsibility to remove land mines and other munitions imbedded in areas of return.

- (ii) the extent of the obligation upon the international community to provide humanitarian assistance for the rehabilitation and recovery of areas of return and the implications of this obligation.
- (iii) what legal principles apply and what actions may be taken by refugees, countries of asylum and the international community at large to achieve a solution where, as a result of the policies or other developments in the country of origin, refugees are in effect condemned to permanent exile and for all practical purposes lose their nationality.

(b) Inter-African Resettlement of Refugees

23. While voluntary repatriation remains the best solution to refugee problems, resettlement to another country is sometimes the only way to guarantee the protection of refugees. Resettlement in the traditional resettlement countries is increasingly becoming more restricted and limited. While UNHCR continues its efforts for the resettlement of refugees from Africa in those countries, there is a need for African countries to reinvigorate inter-African resettlement of refugees.
24. Indeed, many African countries have in the past accepted refugees from other countries of asylum for permanent settlement. Recently, some others have offered to resettle small numbers of refugees and have provided quotas for this purpose. For its part, UNHCR has provided funds to ensure the successful integration of refugees accepted for resettlement under these arrangements.

Recommendation Twenty Three

The Symposium appeals to African States to offer additional places for the resettlement in their territories of refugees from other African countries.

Recommendation Twenty Four

Where refugees are accepted for resettlement under these inter-African arrangements, UNHCR should provide the necessary resources to facilitate their reintegration into their new societies. In cooperation with the OAU, it should also help in developing resettlement criteria to ensure that inter-African resettlement is implemented in a way which is compatible with the integration capacity of the accepting countries.

Recommendation Twenty Five

Modalities for further encouraging and implementing inter-African resettlement of refugees should be elaborated jointly by UNHCR, the OAU and interested African states. For this purpose, a consultative meeting could be envisaged.

VII. OTHER POPULATIONS IN NEED OF PROTECTION AND HUMANITARIAN ASSISTANCE

25. Alongside refugees, returnees and internally displaced persons, there are other populations, including victims of poverty, drought or famine, as well as unaccompanied minors and demobilized soldiers who usually have some need for protection and for material assistance similar to those of refugees or returnees. Their needs are not recognized in a systematic way in the mandates of the organizations of the international humanitarian system.

Recommendation Twenty Six

Organizations whose mandates are limited to only specific groups of persons should carry out their humanitarian and assistance activities in a flexible and imaginative manner. They should strive to ensure that the needs of the community in which refugees and returnees are located are also met, without limiting themselves strictly to only those persons falling within their respective mandates.

VIII. EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS AND RESPONSE

26. The Symposium took note of recent initiatives aimed at improving the international community's emergency preparedness and response capabilities. Along with the establishment in 1991 of the United Nations Department of Humanitarian Affairs, several early warning mechanisms have been established. Most organizations involved in humanitarian action have established standing emergency response capabilities.

27. Yet, in almost all major refugee emergencies which have occurred in Africa, the response has been late and generally poor. Among many other reasons, the system depends almost entirely on external inter-governmental and non-governmental organizations and external finance and material resources. Secondly, there is no international relief system per se – there are several actors who do not always display structural interdependence and are sometimes divided by different mandates and institutional goals. Thirdly, the system is characterized by a lot of competition, overlap and wastage. Finally, emergency response measures cannot be fully effective if not linked to the complex interplay of political and other factors that cause the emergency in the first place.

Recommendation Twenty Seven

The Symposium supports the ongoing efforts aimed at strengthening the international emergency response system, including those measures for the development of effective early-warning systems; to improve coordination, cooperation and communication among agencies involved in humanitarian action; to pre-position emergency stocks and resources; improve emergency planning; and to establish emergency response capabilities within individual organizations.

Recommendation Twenty Eight

The Symposium reiterates that these actions should be linked to institutional and capacity building at the indigenous level. In particular, they should contribute to the establishment or improvement of the national (government) disaster response and management capacity and enable grass-roots and community-based organizations to participate effectively in all aspects of emergency response.

IX. FROM RELIEF AND HUMANITARIAN ASSISTANCE TO SOCIO-ECONOMIC SUSTAINABILITY

28. The Symposium observed that in many parts of Africa, the situation in both the country of origin and the country of asylum is characterized by extreme poverty and serious dislocations in the social and economic structures. Whereas relief assistance is needed to save lives in an emergency situation, the long-term objectives of rehabilitation, reconstruction and development cannot be achieved by such assistance alone. Moreover, as long as those objectives are not achieved, relief assistance itself may reinforce the situation of want and need.

Recommendation Twenty Nine

Emergency relief and humanitarian assistance should, as far as possible, be conceived and delivered within the context of the long-term development goals of the concerned countries and with a view to preventing the recurrence of conflict and/or displacement. Relief and humanitarian assistance should therefore be designed in such a way that their short term nature paves the way for medium to long-term solutions, namely rehabilitation, reconstruction and development with transformation as the ultimate and most durable goal.

Recommendation Thirty

The interventions of the relevant organizations, in the framework of inter-agency coordination, should be organized in such a way that measures designed to cope with emergency situations are linked to well-thought out policies and programmes for development. This approach is particularly crucial for those societies where war and massive displacements have left economic decline, shattered infrastructures, destroyed food production systems and caused chronic food shortages, widespread malnutrition and rampant death. In relation to repatriation, particularly of refugees of an agricultural background, they should be provided land for settlement and use, seeds, tools, other agriculture implements, and livestock so that they may be able to regain a normal way of life. There should also be major investments in health, education, shelter and sanitation and in the recovery and rehabilitation of the social and economic infrastructures.

X. INSTITUTIONAL ASPECTS

28. The implementation of the recommendations contained in this document will necessitate an interplay of political, social and economic questions. All these issues will have to be integrated into a rational and comprehensive system in which the respective governments and the international and non-governmental organizations complement each other in an efficient and effective manner.

Recommendation Thirty One

The Symposium calls upon Governments and the relevant inter-governmental and non-governmental organizations to take concerted actions to implement the proposals contained in this document. Where necessary, the mandates, structures, capacities or competencies of the respective institutions should be reviewed so as to enable them to address a much wider range of humanitarian, social and political matters. Furthermore, cooperation and coordination between and among organizations and authorities should be consolidated. New or unprecedented challenges should be boldly and innovatively tackled.

PART 3

FOLLOW-UP

Recommendation Thirty Two

The Symposium requests its organizers to present the recommendations herein to the appropriate organs, respectively, of the Organization of African Unity, the United Nations, the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees and other relevant inter-governmental and non-governmental bodies for their consideration and approval.

Recommendation Thirty Three

The recommendations should also be presented to the Member States of the Organization of African Unity and the Member States of the Executive Committee of the Programme of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, for their separate consideration and implementation as may be considered appropriate.

Recommendation Thirty Four

Those States and the organizations specifically mentioned in this document are requested to follow up and take practical measures to implement the relevant recommendations.

COTONOU DECLARATION AND PROGRAMME OF ACTION

UNHCR – African Parliamentary Union – Inter-Parliamentary Union
African Parliamentary Conference

“Refugees in Africa: The Challenges of Protection and Solutions”
(Cotonou, Benin, 1-3 June 2004)

Declaration

We, Speakers and Members of National Parliamentary Assemblies of Algeria, Angola, Benin, Burkina Faso, Cameroon, Chad, Côte d’Ivoire, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Egypt, Eritrea, Ethiopia, Gabon, Ghana, Gambia, Guinea, Liberia, Mali, Morocco, Niger, Nigeria, Senegal, Sierra Leone, Sudan, Swaziland, Togo, and Uganda,

Having met upon the invitation of the National Assembly of Benin, from 1 to 3 June 2004 in Cotonou, during the Conference on “Refugees in Africa: The Challenges of Protection and Solutions”, organized by the African Parliamentary Union (APU) with the support of the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) and the Inter-Parliamentary Union (IPU), and in association with the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC), and presided over by the Speaker of the National Assembly of Benin, the Honourable Kolawolé A. Idji,

Recognizing that no country is immune from the risk of generating and receiving refugee flows, and that therefore protecting refugees is a shared duty of all States and is a matter of respect for basic human rights,

Deeply concerned about the number of protracted refugee situations and the continuing presence of large populations of internally displaced persons in Africa, as well as the presence of armed elements in some refugee camps and forced recruitment, the serious violations of the universally recognized principle of non-refoulement, the growing xenophobia and intolerance against refugees, and threats to the physical safety of refugees, especially women and children who are vulnerable to sexual and gender-based violence, but also the elderly,

Paying tribute to African countries which have provided protection and solutions to refugees over the decades in spite of limited resources,

Committed to doing everything in our power to maintain the generous tradition of asylum on the African Continent, and to ensure that refugees receive effective protection and have access to durable solutions as early as possible,

Heartened that, as a result of numerous ongoing peace processes in Africa firmly supported by the African Union and its Member States, there is today an enormous potential for durable solutions to refugee problems, especially voluntary repatriation and sustainable reintegration,

Aware of the dilemmas posed by mixed movements of refugees fleeing persecution or war and persons migrating for economic reasons,

Welcoming the substantial contribution which the New Partnership for Africa’s Development (NEPAD), the African Union’s Peace and Security Council, as well as the G8 Africa Action Plan, can make to spurring economic development and maintaining peace in Africa,

Recognizing that the 1951 Geneva Refugee Convention, together with its Protocol of 1967, as complemented by the 1969 OAU Convention governing the Specific Aspects of Refugee Problems in Africa, remain the foundation of the international refugee protection regime in Africa, and have provided a resilient framework within which millions of refugees have been able to find safety from armed conflicts and persecution,

Stressing the continuing relevance and importance of the expanded refugee definition set out in the 1969 OAU Refugee Convention,

Acknowledging that an understanding of the plight of refugees fosters acceptance whereas ignorance breeds hostility; that refugee protection includes not only legal and physical protection, but also the ability to lead a meaningful and dignified life while in exile; and that this requires the empowerment of refugees to be self-reliant, so that they may make a positive contribution to the life of their host communities and prepare for durable solutions,

Convinced of the need for more effective preventive measures at national, regional and international levels to address the root causes of refugee flows and other forms of forced displacement, and prevent the eruption or continuation of armed conflict,

Recognizing that good governance, observance of the rule of law and respect for human rights are the best form of prevention, while also contributing to peace, stability and economic development,

Welcoming the fundamental role played by UNHCR and ICRC, in pursuance of their respective mandates, to protect and assist refugees and find durable solutions to their problems, and to protect and assist civilians in times of conflict,

Desirous that the Regional Parliamentary Conference on “Refugees in Africa: The Challenges of Protection and Solutions”, and its predecessor, the 2002 African Parliamentary Conference on International Humanitarian Law for the Protection of Civilians during Armed Conflict, initiate a process aimed at strengthening observance of the rules of international refugee, human rights and humanitarian law in our States,

Determined to find durable solutions to the plight of refugees, while continuing to provide effective protection,

Hereby adopt the annexed Programme of Action, outlining various courses of action for Parliaments, and accordingly:

Honouring and strengthening international refugee, human rights and humanitarian law principles

1. Pledge our continuing commitment to strengthening observance of humanitarian principles and to build on the undertakings contained in the Niamey Final Declaration of 2002¹, and reaffirm our determination to ensure that our States and all parties to an armed conflict honour their obligations under international refugee, human rights and humanitarian law.

Finding durable solutions

2. Recognize that as a first step, self reliance of refugees be promoted as an important means to decrease dependency, maximise the initiative and potential contributions of refugees, and prepare them for durable solutions.
3. Undertake to foster conditions conducive to the implementation of durable solutions for refugees, notably, their voluntary repatriation to the country of origin or, where appropriate, their local integration in the country of asylum, or resettlement to a third country, recognizing that the success of durable solutions depends in large measure on the availability of adequate resources provided in a spirit of international solidarity and shared responsibility.
4. Call on UNHCR, development partners and international and regional financial institutions, to redouble their efforts to support countries of asylum to facilitate refugees’ self-reliance, and countries of origin to ensure sustainable reintegration following the return of refugees.

Ensuring physical and legal protection

5. Pledge to protect refugees and asylum-seekers, especially women and children, from all forms of abuse, neglect, exploitation and violence, recognizing that the States hosting refugees bear responsibility for their physical protection.

Maintaining the civilian and humanitarian character of asylum

6. Undertake to ensure that the competent authorities safeguard the civilian nature and humanitarian character of the institution of asylum and of refugee camps and settlements, without which the basic tenets of refugee protection would be compromised.

Strengthening the role of Parliament

7. Resolve to ensure that our parliaments fulfil their role in the process of acceding to the instruments of international refugee, human rights and humanitarian law, the adoption or amendment of national legislation in line with international standards, ensuring that adequate funds are allocated to implement such legislation, and overseeing the work of the Executive.
8. Undertake to encourage a wide-ranging debate on the state of national legislation to implement international refugee, human rights and humanitarian law, and on relevant practices and situations which require our attention.
9. Encourage our national parliaments to establish a standing committee, or sub-committee, dealing with all matters related to refugees and international humanitarian law.

Promoting a change in attitudes towards refugees

10. Undertake, as men and women elected by the people, to do all in our power to foster a positive attitude towards refugees and displaced persons, so as to improve their protection and ensure their contribution to the socio-economic development of their host communities.
11. Commit ourselves to refrain from perpetuating negative stereotypes about refugees and to ensure that they are not exploited politically, including during electoral campaigns.

Implementing follow-up actions

12. Undertake to forward this Declaration and Programme of Action to the attention of our Governments, and to urge the competent authorities to take every measure necessary to heed and address the concerns reflected therein.
13. Resolve to reinforce our cooperation on refugee and returnee matters with UNHCR.
14. Commit ourselves to reporting to the African Parliamentary Union on progress in implementing this Programme of Action in our countries, as well as on progress on the objectives stated in the Niamey Final Declaration.
15. Request the organizers of the Conference to forward this Declaration and Programme of Action to the African Union for information and distribution at the Assembly of Heads of State and Government, the Executive Council and to the Pan-African Parliament. We also request them to forward this Declaration and Programme of Action to the competent organs of the African Parliamentary Union, the Inter-Parliamentary Union, UNHCR and the ICRC, as well as other relevant actors, UN organizations and development partners.
16. Request the African Parliamentary Union, IPU, UNHCR and ICRC to widely disseminate the Declaration and Programme of Action of this Conference with a view to facilitating the follow-up.
17. Request the African Parliamentary Union to ensure that the Follow-Up Committee on the Niamey Conference also follows up on the Cotonou Conference, convenes at each statutory APU meeting to examine progress in the implementation of the Niamey Final Declaration and the Cotonou Declaration and Programme of Action, and reports on its findings to the IPU's Committee to Promote Respect for International Humanitarian Law.
18. Request the African Parliamentary Union to explore with the Inter-Parliamentary Union, UNHCR and ICRC, the possibility of convening a conference in 2006 to review progress made on the follow-up to the Niamey and Cotonou conferences.

Programme of Action

This Programme of Action describes concrete objectives and strategies to support African Parliaments in their work in favour of protecting refugees and finding durable solutions to their situation. It aims at implementing the commitments contained in the Cotonou Declaration.

Objective 1: Ensuring accession to, or lifting reservations on, international treaties relating to refugees and stateless persons

Specific strategies:

Objective 2: Ensuring full and effective implementation of international norms relating to refugees

Specific strategies:

- Ensure that, beyond formal accession to the international and regional treaties, such treaties are effectively implemented through the enactment of national legislation and policies, including provisions penalizing violations of international humanitarian law.
- Observe and implement the suggestions and recommendations contained in the Handbooks for Parliamentarians titled “Protection of Refugees: Handbook on International Refugee Law” published by UNHCR and the IPU, and “Respect for International Humanitarian Law”, published by the ICRC and the IPU.
- Consider initiating a review of national legislation, with a view to amending, where necessary, such legislation so as to ensure consistency with applicable international standards.
- In this regard, support the analysis of national legislation being undertaken by the African Union and UNHCR, pursuant to the Comprehensive Implementation Plan (CIP), as well as that the analysis being undertaken by UNHCR in cooperation with the European Commission, and ensure that the relevant recommendations are implemented.
- Make use of all parliamentary mechanisms available, including public hearings, questions to government and visits to refugee camps and hosting areas, to seek information on the situation of refugees, displaced persons and returnees, so as to take informed action regarding their welfare and rights.
- Ensure that national parliaments mandate one of their standing committees to supervise parliamentary action in relation to refugees and international humanitarian law, or establish a sub-committee to this effect.

Objective 3: Increasing awareness of international refugee, human rights and humanitarian law

Specific strategies:

- Promote knowledge of international refugee, human rights and humanitarian law among parliamentarians at national and regional levels, and cooperate in this effort by sponsoring or attending seminars and workshops organized in conjunction with relevant organizations, such as the African Parliamentary Union, the Pan-African Parliament, the IPU, UNHCR and ICRC.
- Encourage the inclusion of international refugee, human rights and humanitarian law in the curricula of academic institutions, including military and police academies and institutions.

Objective 4: Improving responses to mass influxes of refugees

Specific strategies:

- Encourage the competent authorities to work with UNHCR to ensure a more effective emergency response to mass influx situations, based on more predictable and reliable burden-sharing arrangements.
- Encourage the competent authorities to draw up and regularly update contingency plans, working in close cooperation with UNHCR, UN agencies and, where appropriate, the relevant regional and sub-regional organizations.
- Request that national and regional contingency plans make provisions for community-based activities not only addressing the specific needs of refugees but also of their host communities.

Objective 5: Diminishing dependence on humanitarian assistance by promoting self-reliance

Specific strategies:

- Explore the ways and means to enhance the productive capacities and self-reliance of refugees and their host communities, as a means of decreasing dependency on humanitarian assistance and empowering them to contribute to the development of the host country while in exile, and the reconstruction and economic development of the country of origin upon return. In this regard, recognize the central role of women in any efforts aimed at self-reliance and promoting durable solutions.

- Welcome the focus of UNHCR's Framework for Durable Solutions on attracting additional development assistance for refugees and their host communities, and recognize its potential to promote better quality of life and self-reliance for refugees and host communities pending the implementation of other durable solutions.
- Ensure that refugees fully enjoy their social and economic rights, to empower them to become self-reliant, giving particular attention to overcoming all forms of discrimination, including that based on gender, age or disability.
- Encourage the relevant authorities to establish a database of the skills and professional profiles available within the refugee community, with a view to facilitating their employment and economic empowerment.
- Include refugee-hosting areas in national development plans, and encourage development partners to provide additional funding targeted to host communities as well as refugees.
- Ensure the availability and access to primary, secondary, tertiary and vocational education for refugees, recognizing that education is key to self reliance and all durable solutions.
- Consider allocating a proportion of national scholarships for secondary and tertiary education to deserving refugee children.

Objective 6: Pursuing durable solutions: voluntary repatriation, resettlement and local integration

Specific strategies:

- Contribute to the development of a more coherent approach to durable solutions by integrating voluntary repatriation, local integration and resettlement, whenever feasible, into one comprehensive approach for resolving refugee situations, implemented in cooperation with countries of origin, host States, UNHCR and its humanitarian and development partners, as well as refugees themselves.
- In developing such comprehensive approaches, make use of the Convention Plus initiative and the related Framework for Durable Solutions, as well as the Agenda for Protection.

Voluntary repatriation

- Respect the right of return and the principle of voluntary repatriation of refugees in safety and dignity.
- Ensure respect for the voluntary nature of the decision to return to the country of origin of refugees, taking into account the specific situation of separated and unaccompanied children.
- Ensure that national authorities in countries of asylum, countries of origin and UNHCR cooperate so that repatriation takes place in safety and dignity, including through the adoption of confidence-building measures such as tripartite agreements spelling out guarantees, conditions and modalities for the voluntary repatriation operations, and go-and-see visits.
- Take all measures to enable returnees to enjoy the same rights as their fellow citizens.
- Promote reconciliation through the implementation of initiatives and projects benefiting returnees, internally displaced persons and all members of the community on an equal footing.
- Call on the competent authorities to cooperate with UNHCR, other United Nations agencies and development actors, to gain support for the effective reintegration of returnees by implementing the Framework for Durable Solutions.
- Encourage UNHCR and development partners to provide for the environmental, infrastructure and other rehabilitation of refugee-impacted areas.

Resettlement

- Cooperate with resettlement countries and UNHCR in implementing refugee resettlement both as an instrument of protection and as a durable solution, and use resettlement as a meaningful instrument of international solidarity and responsibility sharing.
- Encourage UNHCR and resettlement countries to make more strategic use of resettlement, including through the adoption of more flexible criteria and group processing, as a means to increase the number of resettlement opportunities.

Local integration

- Acknowledge that, where refugees have developed strong family, social and economic links with host communities, it may be in the interest of the host country to facilitate their local integration, through granting of permanent residence and ultimately, naturalization.
- Encourage competent authorities to consider adopting the “DLI” approach (Development through Local Integration), to ensure that the international community provides adequate support for the socio-economic development of communities hosting refugees.

Objective 7: Ensuring the physical safety of refugees

Specific strategies:

- Ensure that the competent authorities assume their responsibility to maintain law and order in refugee camps and refugee-hosting areas, with the support of the international community when necessary.
- Recognize that registering and documenting refugees contributes to improving their physical protection and the enjoyment of their rights, and invite UNHCR to continue providing support to African States to this end.
- Encourage the competent authorities to cooperate with the ICRC, UNHCR and UNICEF in the tracing and reunification of family members separated so as to preserve family unity.
- Request the competent authorities to set in place appropriate systems to prevent, monitor, report on, and respond, to gender- and age-based violence, including through the prosecution of perpetrators, and to combat the spread of HIV/AIDS within refugee and host communities.
- Encourage the continued development and implementation of training programmes and other practical measures aimed at promoting respect for the right of every refugee to dignity and personal security, and at promoting protection from sexual abuse and exploitation.
- Consider allocating budgets to provide treatment and counselling to victims of sexual and gender-based violence.

Objective 8: Maintaining the civilian and humanitarian character of asylum

Specific strategies:

- Encourage the competent authorities to ensure respect for the civilian nature and humanitarian character of the institution of asylum and of refugee camps and settlements.
- Strengthen efforts aimed at preventing all forms of recruitment of refugees for military purposes, especially children under 18 years of age.
- Encourage UNHCR and ICRC to disseminate to the APU and African Parliaments, the outcome of the June 2004 Experts Meeting on Maintaining the Civilian and Humanitarian Character of Asylum, aimed at elaborating measures for the disarmament of armed elements and the identification, separation and internment of combatants.
- Encourage the competent authorities in countries facing mixed movements of refugees and armed elements to adopt programmes for the disarmament of these armed elements and the identification, separation and internment of combatants, seeking technical assistance and additional resources from the international community, where required.

- Encourage the United Nations and sub-regional organizations to ensure that programs aimed at integrating former armed elements in post-conflict situations are adequately funded, so as to contribute to sustainable peace and security.
- Call on the competent authorities to minimize the risk that combatants move from one country to another, and thereby perpetuate the cycle of violence and instability, by ensuring that national processes for the disarmament, demobilization, reintegration and rehabilitation of combatants (DDRR) have a regional dimension.

Objective 9: Combating intolerance and promoting respect for refugees

Specific strategies:

- Sensitize citizens to the plight and rights of refugees, with a view to fostering understanding and acceptance of their presence, and raising awareness of the positive contribution that refugees can make to their host communities and societies.
- Work with the media in national campaigns to combat intolerance and xenophobia and promote peaceful coexistence.

Objective 10: Protecting and assisting internally displaced persons

Specific strategies:

- Acknowledge that internally displaced persons, as part of the civilian population, are protected by human rights and international humanitarian law.
- Reiterate the commitment to ensure that internally displaced persons are effectively protected against violations of their rights, and that the Guiding Principles on Internal Displacement are fully respected by the relevant authorities.

Objective 11: Promoting partnerships for protection

Specific strategies:

- Strengthen cooperation between Parliaments and UNHCR in ensuring adequate protection of refugees and the implementation of durable solutions including, for example, the enactment of refugee-related legislation, bringing to light concerns about protection and durable solutions, and sharing information about the situation of refugees in countries and their respective sub-regions.
- Encourage the participation of civil society, including non-governmental organizations, in matters related to the protection and welfare of refugees.
- Encourage regional and sub-regional parliamentary organizations to analyze and debate refugee problems with regional ramifications, on a regular basis, and to promote coordinated action to address root causes and find durable solutions.
- Encourage African governments and relevant regional and sub-regional organizations to explore the creation of an African Fund for Refugees to mobilize additional international resources to assist, protect and find durable solutions for refugees, with international support.

Taking into consideration the virtues of their historical tradition and the values of African civilization which should inspire and characterize their reflection on the concept of human and peoples' rights;

Recognizing on the one hand, that fundamental human rights stem from the attributes of human beings, which justifies their national and international protection and on the other hand that the reality and respect of peoples' rights should necessarily guarantee human rights;

Conscious of their duty to achieve the total liberation of Africa, the peoples of which are still struggling for their dignity and genuine independence, and undertaking to eliminate colonialism, neo-colonialism, apartheid, zionism and to dismantle aggressive foreign military bases and all forms of discrimination, particularly those based on race, ethnic group, colour, sex, language, religion or political opinions;

Reaffirming their adherence to the principles of human and peoples' rights and freedoms contained in the declarations, conventions and other instruments adopted by the Organization of African Unity, the Movement of Non-Aligned Countries and the United Nations;

PROTOCOL TO THE AFRICAN CHARTER ON HUMAN AND PEOPLES' RIGHTS ON THE RIGHTS OF WOMEN IN AFRICA

Adopted by the 2nd Ordinary Session of the Assembly of the Union
Concluded in Maputo on 11 July 2003

Text: CAB/LEG/66.6 (Sept. 13, 2000)

The States Parties to this Protocol,

Considering that Article 66 of the African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights provides for special protocols or agreements, if necessary, to supplement the provisions of the African Charter, and that the Assembly of Heads of State and Government of the Organization of African Unity meeting in its Thirty-first Ordinary Session in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, in June 1995, endorsed by resolution AHG/Res.240 (XXXI) the recommendation of the African Commission on Human and Peoples' Rights to elaborate a Protocol on the Rights of Women in Africa;

Considering that Article 2 of the African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights enshrines the principle of non-discrimination on the grounds of race, ethnic group, colour, sex, language, religion, political or any other opinion, national and social origin, fortune, birth or other status;

Further considering that Article 18 of the African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights calls on all States Parties to eliminate every discrimination against women and to ensure the protection of the rights of women as stipulated in international declarations and conventions;

Noting that Articles 60 and 61 of the African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights recognise regional and international human rights instruments and African practices consistent with international norms on human and peoples' rights as being important reference points for the application and interpretation of the African Charter;

Recalling that women's rights have been recognised and guaranteed in all international human rights instruments, notably the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women and its Optional Protocol, the African Charter on the Rights and Welfare of the Child, and all other international and regional conventions and covenants relating to the rights of women as being inalienable, interdependent and indivisible human rights;

Noting that women's rights and women's essential role in development, have been reaffirmed in the United Nations Plans of Action on the Environment and Development in 1992, on Human Rights in 1993, on Population and Development in 1994 and on Social Development in 1995;

Recalling also United Nations Security Council's Resolution 1325 (2000) on the role of Women in promoting peace and security;

Reaffirming the principle of promoting gender equality as enshrined in the Constitutive Act of the African Union as well as the New Partnership for Africa's Development, relevant Declarations, Resolutions and Decisions, which underline the commitment of the African States to ensure the full participation of African women as equal partners in Africa's development;

Further noting that the African Platform for Action and the Dakar Declaration of 1994 and the Beijing Platform for Action of 1995 call on all Member States of the United Nations, which have made a solemn commitment to implement them, to take concrete steps to give greater attention to the human rights of women in order to eliminate all forms of discrimination and of gender-based violence against women;

Recognising the crucial role of women in the preservation of African values based on the principles of equality, peace, freedom, dignity, justice, solidarity and democracy;

Bearing in mind related Resolutions, Declarations, Recommendations, Decisions, Conventions and other Regional and Sub-Regional Instruments aimed at eliminating all forms of discrimination and at promoting equality between women and men;

Concerned that despite the ratification of the African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights and other international human rights instruments by the majority of States Parties, and their solemn commitment to eliminate all forms of discrimination and harmful practices against women, women in Africa still continue to be victims of discrimination and harmful practices;

Firmly convinced that any practice that hinders or endangers the normal growth and affects the physical and psychological development of women and girls should be condemned and eliminated;

Determined to ensure that the rights of women are promoted, realised and protected in order to enable them to enjoy fully all their human rights;

Have agreed as follows:

Convinced that Africa's greatest resource is its youthful population and that through their active and full participation, Africans can surmount the difficulties that lie ahead,

Bearing in mind the international Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women (1979) and the Protocol to the African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights relating to the Rights of Women in Africa (2003) and the progress achieved in eliminating gender discrimination, but ever cognisant of the obstacles that still prevent girls and women from fully participating in African society,

Reaffirming the need to take appropriate measures to promote and protect the rights and welfare of children as outlined in the Convention of the Rights of the Child (1989) and through the African Charter on the Rights and Welfare of the Child (1999),

Recognising the efforts made by States Parties and civil societies to address the economic, social, educational, cultural and spiritual needs of youth,

Noting with concern the situation of African youth, many of whom are marginalized from mainstream society through inequalities in income, wealth and power, unemployment and underemployment, infected and affected by the HIV/AIDS pandemic, living in situations of poverty and hunger, experiencing illiteracy and poor quality educational systems, restricted access to health services and to information, exposure to violence including gender violence, engaging in armed conflicts and experiencing various forms of discrimination,

Considering the role that youth have played in the process of decolonisation, the struggle against apartheid and more recently in its efforts to encourage the development and to promote the democratic processes on the African Continent,

Reaffirming that the continuous cultural development of Africa rests with its youth and therefore requires their active and enlightened participation as espoused in the Cultural Charter for Africa,

Guided by the New Partnership for Africa's Development Strategic Framework for Youth Programme of 2004 that is working towards youth empowerment and development,

Acknowledging the increasing calls and the enthusiasm of youth to actively participate at local, national, regional and international levels to determine their own development and the advancement of society at large,

Acknowledging also the call in Bamako (2005) by the youth organisations across Africa to empower youth by building their capacity, leadership, responsibilities and provide access to information such that they can take up their rightful place as active agents in decision-making and governance,

Taking into consideration the inter-relatedness of the challenges facing youth and the need for cross-sectoral policies and programmes that attend to the needs of youth in a holistic manner,

A request for consent shall be submitted, accompanied by the documents mentioned in Article 18 and a legal record of any statements made by the extradited person in respect of the offence concerned. Consent shall be given when the offence for which it is requested is itself subject to extradition in accordance with the provision of this Convention;
 - (b) When that person, having had an opportunity to leave the territory of the State to which he has been surrendered, has not done so within 45 days of his final discharge, or has returned to that territory after leaving it.
2. When the description of the offence charged is altered in the course of proceedings, the extradited person shall only be proceeded against or sentenced in so far as the offence under its new description is shown by its constituent elements to be an offence which would allow extradition.

Article 21

Re-Extradition to a Third State

Except as provided for in Article 20, paragraph 1(b), the requesting State shall not, without the consent of the requested State surrender to another State or to a third State a person surrendered to the requesting State and sought by the said other State or third State in respect of offences committed before his surrender. The requested State may request this production of the documents mentioned in Article 18.

Article 22

2. The request for provisional arrest shall state that one of the documents mentioned in Article 18 paragraph 2(a), exists and that it is intended to send a request for extradition. It shall also state for what offence extradition will be requested, when and where such offence was committed, the penalty incurred or provided for, or the sentence pronounced. The request shall also, if possible, indicate the whereabouts of the person sought, and as far as possible provide a description of the person.
3. A request for provisional arrest shall be sent to the competent authorities of the requested State either through the diplomatic channel or direct by post or telegraph or through the International Criminal Police Organization (Interpol) or by any other means affording evidence in writing or accepted by the requested State. The requesting State shall be informed without delay of the result of its request.
4. Provisional arrest may be terminated if, within a period of twenty (20) days after arrest, the requested State has not received the request for extradition and the documents mentioned in Article 18. The possibility of provisional release at any time is not excluded but the requested State shall take any measures which it considers necessary to prevent the escape of the person sought.
5. Release shall not prejudice re-arrest and extradition if a request for extradition is received subsequently.

6. The time spent in detention by an individual solely for the purpose of extradition in the territory of the requested State or of a State of transit shall be taken into consideration when deciding the penalty involving deprivation of liberty or detention which he has to serve for the offence for which he was extradited.

Article 23

Conflicting Requests

If extradition is requested concurrently by more than one State, either for the same offence or for different offences, the requested State shall make its decision having regard to all the circumstances and especially the relative seriousness and place of commission of the offences, the respective dates of the requests, the nationality of the person claimed and the possibility of subsequent extradition to another State.

Article 24

4. Subject to the provisions of paragraph 5 of this Article, if the person claimed has not been removed on the appointed date, he may be released after the expiry of 15 days and shall in any case be released after the expiry of 30 days. The requested State may refuse to extradite him for the same offence.
5. If circumstances beyond its control prevent a State from surrendering or taking over the person to be extradited, it shall notify the other State. The two States shall agree on a new date for surrender and the provisions of paragraph 4 of this Article shall apply.

Article 25

Postponed or Conditional Surrender

1. The requested State may, after making its decision on the request for extradition, postpone the surrender of the person claimed in order that he may be proceeded against or, if he has already been convicted, in order that he may serve his sentence in the territory of that State for an offence other than that for which extradition is requested.
2. The requested State may, instead of postponing surrender, temporarily surrender the person claimed to the requesting State in accordance with conditions to be determined by mutual agreement between the States.

3. When the said property is liable to seizure or confiscation in the territory of the requested State, the latter may, in connection with pending criminal proceedings, temporarily retain it or hand it over on condition that it is returned.

4. Any rights which the requested State or bona fide third parties may have acquired in the said property shall be preserved. Where these rights exist the property shall be returned without charge to the requested State as soon as possible after the trial.

Article 27

1. Transit through the territory of one of the States shall be granted on submission of a request by the means mentioned in Article 18 paragraph 1, provided that the offence concerned is not considered by the State requested to grant transit as an offence of a political or military character having regard to Articles 4 and 7 of this Convention.
2. Transit of a national of the country requested to grant transit may be refused.
3. Subject to the provisions of paragraph 4 of this Article, it shall be necessary to produce the documents mentioned in Article 18 paragraph 2.
4. If air transport is used, the following provisions shall apply:
 - (a) When it is not intended to land, the requesting State shall notify the State over whose territory the flight is to be made and shall certify that one of the documents mentioned in Article 18 paragraph 2(a) exists. In the case of an unscheduled landing, such notification shall have the effect of a request for provisional arrest as provided for in Article 22 and the requesting State shall submit a formal request for transit;
 - (b) When it is intended to land, the requesting State shall submit a formal request for transit.
5. A State may, however, at the time of signature or of the deposit of its instrument of ratification of this Convention, declare that it will only grant transit of persons on some or all of the conditions on which it grants extradition. In that event, reciprocity may be applied.
6. The transit of the extradited person shall not be carried out through any territory where there is a reason to believe that his life or his freedom may be threatened by reason of his race, tribe, religion, nationality, political opinion or sex.

Noting with concern the escalation of crime at both national and transnational levels, and that the increased easy access to free cross border movement enables offenders to escape arrest, prosecution, conviction and punishment;

Convinced that the speedy integration amongst State Parties in every area of activity can best be achieved by seeking to create and sustain within the Southern African Development Community, such conditions as shall eliminate any threat to the security of our people;

Desiring to make our co-operation in the prevention and suppression of crime more effective by concluding an agreement on extradition;

Bearing in mind that the establishment of a multilateral agreement on extradition will greatly enhance the control of crime in the Community;

Hereby agree as follows:

Article 1

Definitions

1. In this Protocol, terms and expressions defined in Article 1 of the Treaty shall bear the same meaning unless the context otherwise requires.
2. In this Protocol, unless the context otherwise requires:
 - (a) "Confiscation" means, a permanent deprivation of property by order of a court or other competent authority and includes forfeiture where applicable;
 - (b) "Offence" means a fact or facts which constitute a crime under the laws of State Parties;
 - (c) "Property" means assets of any kind, whether corporeal or incorporeal, movable or immovable, tangible or intangible and any document or legal instrument evidencing title to, or interest in such assets;
 - (d) "Requested State" means a State being requested to extradite or to provide assistance in terms of this Protocol;
 - (e) "Requesting State" means a State making a request for extradition or assistance in terms of this Protocol;

- (g) “State Party” means a Member State which has ratified or acceded to this Protocol;
- (h) “Third State” means any State other than the Requested State or Requesting State.

Article 2

Obligation to extradite

Each State Party agrees to extradite to the other, in accordance with the provisions of this Protocol and their respective domestic law, any person within its jurisdiction who is wanted for prosecution or the imposition or enforcement of a sentence in the Requesting State for an extraditable offence.

Article 3

Extraditable offences

1. For the purpose of this Protocol, extraditable offence are offences that are punishable under the laws of both State Parties by imprisonment or other deprivation of liberty for a period of at least one year, or by a more severe penalty. Where the request for extradition relates to a person wanted for the enforcement of a sentence of imprisonment or other deprivation of liberty imposed for such an offence, extradition may be refused if a period of less than six months of such sentence remains to be served.
2. For the purposes of this Article, in determining what constitutes an offence against the laws of the Requested State it shall not matter whether:
 - (a) The laws of the State Parties place the conduct constituting the offence within the same category of offence or describe the offence by the same terminology; and
 - (b) The totality of the conduct alleged against the person whose extradition is sought shall be taken into account and it shall not matter whether, under the laws of the State Party, the constituent elements of the offence differ.
3. Where extradition of a person is sought for an offence against a law relating to taxation, customs duties, exchange control or other revenue matters, extradition may not be refused on the ground that the law of the Requested State does not impose the same kind of tax or duty or does not contain a tax, customs duty or exchange regulation of the same kind as the law of the Requesting State.
4. An offence is extraditable whether or not the conduct on which the Requesting State bases its request occurred in the territory over which it has jurisdiction. However, where the law of the Requested State does not provide for jurisdiction over an offence in similar circumstances, the Requested State may, in its discretion, refuse extradition on this basis.
5. Extradition may be granted pursuant to the provisions of this Protocol in respect of any offence provided that:
 - (a) It was an offence in the Requesting State at the time of the conduct constituting the offence; and
 - (b) The conduct alleged would, if it had taken place in the Requested State at the time of making the request for extradition, have constituted an offence against the law of the Requested State.
6. If the request for extradition relates to several separate offences, each of which is punishable under the laws of both State Parties, but some of which do not meet the other requirements of paragraph 1, the Requested State may grant extradition for such offences provided that the person is to be extradited for at least one extraditable offence.

Article 4

Mandatory grounds for refusal to extradite

Extradition shall be refused in any of the following circumstances:

- (a) If the offence for which extradition is requested is of a political nature. An offence of a political nature shall not include any offence in respect of which the State Parties have assumed an obligation, pursuant to any multilateral convention, to take prosecutorial action where they do not extradite, or any other offence that the State Parties have agreed is not an offence of a political character for the purposes of extradition;
- (b) If the Requested State has substantial grounds for believing that the request for extradition has been made for the purpose of prosecuting or punishing a person on account of that person's race, religion, nationality, ethnic origin, political opinion, sex or status or that the person's position may be prejudiced for any of those reasons;
- (c) If the offence for which extradition is requested constitutes an offence under military law, which is not an offence under ordinary criminal law;
- (d) If there has been a final judgment rendered against the person in the Requested State or a Third State in respect of the offence for which the person's extradition is requested;
- (e) If the person whose extradition is requested has, under the law of either State Party, become immune from prosecution or punishment for any reason, including lapse of time or amnesty;
- (f) If the person whose extradition is requested has been, or would be subjected in the Requesting State to torture or cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment or if that person has not received or would not receive the minimum guarantees in criminal proceedings, as contained in Article 7 of the African Charter on Human and Peoples Rights; and
- (g) If the judgment of the Requesting State has been rendered in absentia and the convicted person has not had sufficient notice of the trial or the opportunity to arrange for his or her defence and he or she has not had or will not have the opportunity to have the case retried in his or her presence.

Article 5

Optional grounds for refusal

Extradition may be refused in any of the following circumstances:

- (a) If the person whose extradition is requested is a national of the Requested State. Where extradition is refused on this ground, the Requested State shall, if the other State so requests, submit the case to its competent authorities with a view to taking appropriate action against the person in respect of the offence for which extradition had been requested;
- (b) If a prosecution in respect of the offence for which extradition is requested is pending in the Requested State against the person whose extradition is requested;
- (c) If the offence for which extradition is requested carries a death penalty under the law of the Requesting State, unless that State gives such assurance, as the Requested State considers sufficient that the death penalty will not be imposed or, if imposed, will not be carried out. Where extradition is refused on this ground, the Requested State shall, if the other State so requests, submit the case to its competent authorities with a view to taking appropriate action against the person for the offence for which extradition had been requested;
- (d) If the offence for which extradition is requested has been committed outside the territory of either State Party and the law of the Requested State does not provide for jurisdiction over such an offence committed outside its territory in comparable circumstances;
- (e) If the offence for which extradition is requested is regarded under the laws of the Requested State as having been committed in whole or in part within that State. Where extradition is refused on this ground, the Requested State shall, if the other State Party so requests submit the case to its competent authorities with a view to taking appropriate action against the person for the offence for which extradition had been requested; and

- (f) If the Requested State, while also taking into account the nature of the offence and the interest of the Requesting State, considers that, in the circumstances of the case, the extradition of that person would be incompatible with humanitarian considerations in view of age, health or other personal circumstances of that person.

Article 6

Channels of communication and required documents

1. A request for extradition shall be made in writing. The request, supporting documents and subsequent communications shall be transmitted through the diplomatic channel, directly between the Ministries of Justice or any other authority designated by the State Parties.
2. A request for extradition shall be accompanied by the following:
 - (a) In all cases,
 - (b) As accurate as possible, a description of the person sought, together with any other information that may help to establish that person's identity, nationality and location;
 - (c) The text of the relevant provision of the law creating the offence and, where necessary, a statement of the law relevant to the offence and a statement of the penalty that can be imposed for the offence;
 - (d) If the person is accused of an offence, by a warrant issued by a court or other competent judicial authority for the arrest of the person or a certified copy of that warrant, a statement of the offence for which extradition is requested and a description of the acts or omissions constituting the alleged offence, including an indication of the time and place of its commission;
 - (e) If the person has been convicted of an offence, by a statement of the offence for which extradition is requested and a description of the acts or omissions constituting the offence and by the original or certified copy of the judgment or any other document setting out the conviction and the sentence imposed, the fact that the sentence is enforceable, and the extent to which the sentence remains to be served;
 - (f) If the person has been convicted of an offence in his or her absence, in addition to the documents set out in paragraph 2 (c) of this Article, by a statement as to the legal means available to the person to prepare his or her defence or to have the case retried in his or her presence;
 - (g) If the person has been convicted of an offence but no sentence has been imposed, by a statement of the offence for which extradition is requested and a description of the acts or omissions constituting the offence and by a document setting out the conviction and a statement affirming that there is an intention to impose a sentence; and
 - (h) The documents submitted in support of a request for extradition shall be accompanied by a translation into the language of the Requested State or in another language acceptable to that State.

Article 7

1. Where the laws of the Requested State require authentication, documents shall be authenticated in accordance with the domestic laws of the Requesting State.
2. Authentication procedures of State Parties shall be communicated to the Secretariat.

Article 8

If the Requested State considers that the information furnished in support of a request for extradition is not sufficient in accordance with this Protocol to enable extradition to be granted, that State may request that additional information be furnished within such time as it specifies.

Article 9

Simplified extradition procedure

The Requested State, if not precluded by its laws, may grant extradition after receipt of a request for provisional arrest, provided that the person sought explicitly consents, before a competent authority, to be extradited.

 - (d) A statement attesting to the existence of a warrant of arrest or a statement of the punishment that can be or has been imposed for the offence to which this Protocol applies; and
 - (e) Any other information which would justify provisional arrest in the Requested State.
4. The Requested State shall decide on the application in accordance with its laws and communicate its decision to the Requesting State without delay.
5. Provisional arrest shall be terminated if the Requested State has not received the request for extradition and supporting documents through the channel provided for in Article 6 within thirty (30) days after the arrest. The competent authorities of the Requested State, insofar as it is permitted by the law of that State, may extend that delay with regard to the receipt of the documents. However, the person sought may be granted bail at any time subject to the conditions considered necessary to ensure that the person does not leave the country; and
6. The provisions of paragraph (a) shall be without prejudice to the right of the person so arrested to be released in accordance with the domestic law of the Requested State.
7. The release of the person pursuant to paragraph 5 of this Article shall not prevent re-arrest and institution of proceedings with a view to extraditing the person sought if the request and supporting documents are subsequently received.

Article 11

Concurrent requests

1. Where requests are received from two or more States for the extradition of the same person either for the same offence or for different offences, the Requested State shall determine to which of those States the person is to be extradited and shall notify those States of its decision.

The Requested State shall deal with the request for extradition pursuant to procedures provided by its own laws, and shall promptly communicate its decision to the Requesting State.

Article 13

1. Upon being informed that extradition has been granted, the State Parties shall, without undue delay, arrange for the surrender of the person sought and the Requested State shall inform the Requesting State of the length of time for which the person sought was detained with a view to surrender.
2. The person shall be removed from the territory of the Requested State within such reasonable period as the Requested State specifies and, if the person is not removed within that period, the Requested State may release the person and may refuse to extradite that person for the same offence.
3. If circumstances beyond its control prevent either State Party from surrendering or removing the person to be extradited, it shall notify the other State Party. The two State Parties shall mutually decide upon a new date of surrender, and the provisions of paragraph 2 of this Article shall apply.

Article 14

Postponed or conditional surrender

1. The Requested State may, after making a decision on the request for extradition, postpone the surrender of a person sought, in order to proceed against that person, or, if that person has already been convicted, in order to enforce a sentence imposed for an offence other than that for which extradition is sought. In such a case, the Requested State shall advise the Requesting State accordingly.
2. The Requested State may, instead of postponing surrender, temporarily surrender the person sought to the Requesting State in accordance with conditions to be determined between the State Parties.

Article 15

Surrender of property

1. To the extent permitted under the laws of the Requested State and subject to the rights of third parties, which shall be duly respected, all property found in the Requested State that has been acquired as a result of the offence and that may be required as evidence shall, if the Requesting State so requests, be surrendered if extradition is granted.

3. When the said property is liable to seizure or confiscation in the Requested State, it may retain it or temporarily hand it over.
4. Where the laws of the Requested State or the protection of the rights of third parties so require, any property so surrendered shall be returned to the Requested State after the completion of the proceedings, if that State so requests.

Article 16

Rule of specialty

1. A person extradited under this Protocol shall not be proceeded against, sentenced, detained, re-extradited to a Third State, or subjected to any other restriction of personal liberty in the territory of the Requesting State for any offence committed before surrender other than:

3. Paragraph 1 of this Article shall not apply if the person has had an opportunity to leave the Requesting State and has not done so within thirty (30) days of final discharge in respect of the offence for which that person was extradited or if the person has voluntarily returned to the territory of the Requesting State after leaving it.

This does not apply where air transport is used and no landing in the territory of the other State Party is scheduled.
2. Upon receipt of such a request, which shall contain relevant information, the Requested State shall deal with this request pursuant to procedures provided by its own laws. The Requested State shall grant the request expeditiously unless its essential interest would be prejudiced thereby.
3. The State of transit shall ensure that legal provisions exist that would enable the detention of the person in custody during transit.
4. In the event of an unscheduled landing, the State Party to be requested to permit transit may, at the request of the escorting officer, hold the person for such reasonable period as may be permitted by its laws, pending receipt of the transit request to be made in accordance with paragraph 1 of this Article.

Article 18

Expenses

1. The Requested State shall make all necessary arrangements for and meet the cost of any proceedings arising out of a request for extradition.
2. The Requested State shall bear the expenses incurred in its territory or jurisdiction in the arrest and detention of the person whose extradition is sought, and the maintenance in custody of the person until that person is surrendered to the Requesting State.
3. If during the execution of a request, it becomes apparent that fulfilment of the request will entail expenses of an extraordinary nature, the Requested State and Requesting State shall consult to determine the terms and conditions under which execution may continue.
4. The Requesting State shall bear the expenses incurred in translation of extradition documents and conveying the person extradited from the territory of the Requested State.
5. Consultations may be held between the Requesting State and the Requested State for the payment by the Requesting State of extraordinary expenses.

Should any change take place, the State Party concerned shall immediately notify the Secretary-General.
4. Each State Party shall likewise take such measures as may be necessary to establish its jurisdiction over the acts set forth in Article 1 in cases where the alleged offender is present in its territory and it does not extradite that person to any of the States Parties which have established their jurisdiction in accordance with paragraphs 1 or 2.

Article 7

1. Upon receiving information that a person who has committed or who is alleged to have committed any terrorist act as defined in Article 1 may be present in its territory, the State Party concerned shall take such measures as may be necessary under its national law to investigate the facts contained in the information.

2. Any State Party may, at the time of the deposit of its instrument of ratification or accession, transmit to the Secretary-General of the OAU the grounds on which extradition may not be granted and shall at the same time indicate the legal basis in its national legislation or international conventions to which it is a party which excludes such extradition. The Secretary-General shall forward these grounds to the States Parties.
3. Extradition shall not be granted if final judgment has been passed by a competent authority of the requested State upon the person in respect of the terrorist act or acts for which extradition is requested. Extradition may also be refused if the competent authority of the requested State has decided either not to institute or terminate proceedings in respect of the same act or acts.
4. A State Party in whose territory an alleged offender is present shall be obliged, whether or not the offence was committed in its territory, to submit the case without undue delay to its competent authorities for the purpose of prosecution if it does not extradite that person.

Such provisional arrest shall be for a reasonable period in accordance with the national law of the requested State.

Article 13

1. Where a State Party receives several extradition requests from different States Parties in respect of the same suspect and for the same or different terrorist acts, it shall decide on these requests having regard to all the prevailing circumstances, particularly the possibility of subsequent extradition, the respective dates of receipt of the requests, and the degree of seriousness of the crime.
2. Upon agreeing to extradite, States Parties shall seize and transmit all funds and related materials purportedly used in the commission of the terrorist act to the requesting State as well as relevant incriminating evidence.
3. Such funds, incriminating evidence and related materials, upon confirmation of their use in the terrorist act by the requested State, shall be transmitted to the requesting State even if, for reasons of death or escape of the accused, the extradition in question cannot take place.

The extra-territorial investigation (commission rogatoire) shall be executed in compliance with the provisions of national laws of the requested State. 2. Any person who unwillingly takes refuge in a country other than his country of origin or his habitual place of residence because of sustained aggression against, occupation and foreign domination of such country or because of the occurrence of natural disasters or grave events resulting in major disruption of public order in the whole country or any part thereof.

The provisions hereof shall not apply to any person who:

1. Has been convicted of having committed a war crime, a crime against humanity or a terrorist crime as defined in the international conventions and covenants.

Article 3

The Contracting States of this Convention shall undertake to exert every possible effort, within the limits of their respective national legislation, to accept refugees defined in Article 1 hereof.

Article 4

The provisions hereof shall cease to apply to any refugee if:

A refugee may, however, appeal before the competent judicial authority against the expulsion decision. UNIVERSAL ISLAMIC DECLARATION OF HUMAN RIGHTS

Adopted on 21 Dhul Qaidah 1401 (19 September 1981)

This is a declaration for mankind, a guidance and instruction to those who fear God. (Al Qur'an, Al-Imran 3:138)

FOREWORD

Islam gave to mankind an ideal code of human rights fourteen centuries ago. These rights aim at conferring honour and dignity on mankind and eliminating exploitation, oppression and injustice.

Human rights in Islam are firmly rooted in the belief that God, and God alone, is the Law Giver and the Source of all human rights. Due to their Divine origin, no ruler, government, assembly or authority can curtail or violate in any way the human rights conferred by God, nor can they be surrendered.

Human rights in Islam are an integral part of the overall Islamic order and it is obligatory on all Muslim governments and organs of society to implement them in letter and in spirit within the framework of that order.

It is unfortunate that human rights are being trampled upon with impunity in many countries of the world, including some Muslim countries. Such violations are a matter of serious concern and are arousing the conscience of more and more people throughout the world.

I sincerely hope that this Declaration of Human Rights will give a powerful impetus to the Muslim peoples to stand firm and defend resolutely and courageously the rights conferred on them by God.

This Declaration of Human Rights is the second fundamental document proclaimed by the Islamic Council to mark the beginning of the 15th Century of the Islamic era, the first being the Universal Islamic Declaration announced at the International Conference on The Prophet Muhammad (peace and blessings be upon him) and his Message, held in London from 12 to 15 April 1980.

The Universal Islamic Declaration of Human Rights is based on the Qur'an and the Sunnah and has been compiled by eminent Muslim scholars, jurists and representatives of Islamic movements and thought. May God reward them all for their efforts and guide us along the right path.

Paris 21 Dhul Qaidah 1401 Salem Azzam
19th September 1981 Secretary General

O men! Behold, We have created you all out of a male and a female, and have made you into nations and tribes, so that you might come to know one another. Verily, the noblest of you in the sight of God is the one who is most deeply conscious of Him. Behold, God is all-knowing, all aware.

(Al Qur'an, Al-Hujurat 49:13)

PREAMBLE

Whereas the age-old human aspiration for a just world order wherein people could live, develop and prosper in an environment free from fear, oppression, exploitation and deprivation, remains largely unfulfilled;

Whereas the Divine Mercy unto mankind reflected in its having been endowed with super-abundant economic sustenance is being wasted, or unfairly or unjustly withheld from the inhabitants of the earth;

Whereas Allah (God) has given mankind through His revelations in the Holy Qur'an and the Sunnah of His Blessed Prophet Muhammad an abiding legal and moral framework within which to establish and regulate human institutions and relationships;

Whereas the human rights decreed by the Divine Law aim at conferring dignity and honour on mankind and are designed to eliminate oppression and injustice;

Whereas by virtue of their Divine source and sanction these rights can neither be curtailed, abrogated or disregarded by authorities, assemblies or other institutions, nor can they be surrendered or alienated;

Therefore we, as Muslims, who believe

- (a) In God, the Beneficent and Merciful, the Creator, the Sustainer, the Sovereign, the sole Guide of mankind and the Source of all Law;
- (b) In the Vicegerency (Khilafah) of man who has been created to fulfil the Will of God on earth;
- (c) In the wisdom of Divine guidance brought by the Prophets, whose mission found its culmination in the final Divine message that was conveyed by the Prophet Muhammad (Peace be upon him) to all mankind;
- (d) That rationality by itself without the light of revelation from God can neither be a sure guide in the affairs of mankind nor provide spiritual nourishment to the human soul, and, knowing that the teachings of Islam represent the quintessence of Divine guidance in its final and perfect form, feel duty-bound to remind man of the high status and dignity bestowed on him by God;
- (e) In inviting all mankind to the message of Islam;
- (f) That by the terms of our primeval covenant with God our duties and obligations have priority over our rights, and that each one of us is under a bounden duty to spread the teachings of Islam by word, deed, and indeed in all gentle ways, and to make them effective not only in our individual lives but also in the society around us;
- (g) In our obligation to establish an Islamic order:
 - (i) Wherein all human beings shall be equal and none shall enjoy a privilege or suffer a disadvantage or discrimination by reason of race, colour, sex, origin or language;
 - (ii) Wherein all human beings are born free;
 - (iii) Wherein slavery and forced labour are abhorred;
 - (iv) Wherein conditions shall be established such that the institution of family shall be preserved, protected and honoured as the basis of all social life;
 - (v) Wherein the rulers and the ruled alike are subject to, and equal before, the Law;
 - (vi) Wherein obedience shall be rendered only to those commands that are in consonance with the Law;
 - (vii) Wherein all worldly power shall be considered as a sacred trust, to be exercised within the limits prescribed by the Law and in a manner approved by it, and with due regard for the priorities fixed by it;
 - (viii) Wherein all economic resources shall be treated as Divine blessings bestowed upon mankind, to be enjoyed by all in accordance with the rules and the values set out in the Qur'an and the Sunnah;

- (ix) Wherein all public affairs shall be determined and conducted, and the authority to administer them shall be exercised after mutual consultation (Shura) between the believers qualified to contribute to a decision which would accord well with the Law and the public good;
- (x) Wherein everyone shall undertake obligations proportionate to his capacity and shall be held responsible pro rata for his deeds;
- (xi) Wherein everyone shall, in case of an infringement of his rights, be assured of appropriate remedial measures in accordance with the Law;
- (xii) Wherein no one shall be deprived of the rights assured to him by the Law except by its authority and to the extent permitted by it;
- (xiii) Wherein every individual shall have the right to bring legal action against anyone who commits a crime against society as a whole or against any of its members;
- (xiv) Wherein every effort shall be made to
 - (a) Secure unto mankind deliverance from every type of exploitation, injustice and oppression,
 - (b) Ensure to everyone security, dignity and liberty in terms set out and by methods approved and within the limits set by the Law;

Do hereby, as servants of Allah and as members of the Universal Brotherhood of Islam, at the beginning of the Fifteenth Century of the Islamic Era, affirm our commitment to uphold the following inviolable and inalienable human rights that we consider are enjoined by Islam.

CAIRO DECLARATION ON HUMAN RIGHTS IN ISLAM

Adopted by the 19th Islamic Conference for Foreign Ministers held in Cairo on 31 July – 9 August 1990

Text: UN Document A/CONF.157/PC/62/Add.18 (1993)

The Member States of the Organization of the Islamic Conference,

Reaffirming the civilizing and historical role of the Islamic Ummah which God made the best nation that has given mankind a universal and well-balanced civilization in which harmony is established between this life and the hereafter and knowledge is combined with faith; and the role that this Ummah should play to guide a humanity confused by competing trends and ideologies and to provide solutions to the chronic problems of this materialistic civilization;

Wishing to contribute to the efforts of mankind to assert human rights, to protect man from exploitation and persecution, and to affirm his freedom and right to a dignified life in accordance with the Islamic Shari'ah;

Convinced that mankind which has reached an advanced stage in materialistic science is still, and shall remain, in dire need of faith to support its civilization and of a self-motivating force to guard its rights;

Believing that fundamental rights and universal freedoms in Islam are an integral part of the Islamic religion and that no one as a matter of principle has the right to suspend them in whole or in part or violate or ignore them in as much as they are binding divine commandments, which are contained in the Revealed Books of God and were sent through the last of His Prophets to complete the preceding divine messages thereby making their observance an act of worship and their neglect or violation an abominable sin, and accordingly every person is individually responsible – and the Ummah collectively responsible – for their safeguard.

Proceeding from the above-mentioned principles,

Declare the following:

Article 1

- (a) All human beings form one family whose members are united by submission to God and descent from Adam. All men are equal in terms of basic human dignity and basic obligations and responsibilities, without any discrimination on the grounds of race, colour, language, sex, religious belief, political affiliation, social status or other considerations. True faith is the guarantee for enhancing such dignity along the path to human perfection.

Article 2

- (c) The preservation of human life throughout the term of time willed by God is a duty prescribed by Shari'ah.

- (c) Both parents are entitled to certain rights from their children, and relatives are entitled to rights from their kin, in accordance with the tenets of the Shari'ah.

Article 8

COVENANT ON THE RIGHTS OF THE CHILD IN ISLAM

Opened for signature in June 2005 by the Organisation of Islamic Conference

Text: Document OIC/9-IGGE/HRI/2004/Rep.Final

The States Parties to this Covenant,

Believing that the values and principles constitute the patterns of behaviour of Muslim society in such a way as to realize security, stability, development and progress for the society within the family environment, which is the cornerstone of the social edifice,

Proceeding from Islamic efforts on issues of childhood, which contributed to the development of the 1989 United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child,

Cognizant of the objectives of the Organization of the Islamic Conference enshrined in its Charter and its Summit and Ministerial Conferences resolutions and of international conventions signed by its Member States,

Affirming the principles contained in the Dhaka Declaration on Human Rights in Islam adopted by the 14th Islamic Conference of Foreign Ministers in December 1983 and the Cairo Declaration on Human Rights in Islam adopted by the 14th ICFM under resolution No. 49/19-P (1990) and in the Declaration on the Rights and Care of the Child in Islam adopted by the Seventh Islamic Summit Conference under resolution No. 16/7-C (1994),

Affirming the civilisational and historic role of the Islamic Ummah and in contributing to the international efforts on human rights,

Believing that basic rights and public freedoms in Islam are an integral part thereof that no one has a prerogative to interrupt, violate, or disregard,

Aware of the enormous responsibility towards the Child in particular as the vanguard and maker of the future of the Ummah,

Seeking to enhance Islamic performance in the Child sector so as to adapt frameworks and mechanisms to face the ever-accelerating changes and transformations and their repercussions on that sector,

Realizing that the first order of serious work is to gain a conscious insight into the accumulating and expected challenges facing the Ummah, particularly the adverse effects of economic and social transformations, the waning role of the family, the weakening feeling of belonging, the breaking-down of family-ties, the decline of values and ideals, the diminishing health and educational services, the growing illiteracy rate, as well as the effects of the accelerating advances in sciences and fields of knowledge and the information revolution in addition to the continuing persistence of negative and old-fashioned cultural models,

Considering that children, as part of the vulnerable sector of the society, bear the burden of the greater suffering as a result of natural and man-made disasters leading to tragic consequences, such as orphanage, homelessness, and exploitation of children in military, harsh, hazardous, or illegitimate labour, and considering also the suffering of refugee children and those living under the yoke of occupation or languishing or displaced as a result of armed conflicts and famines thus fostering the spread of violence among children and increasing the number of physically, mentally, and socially disabled children,

Believing that the situation requires a stand that establishes a commitment to the Rights of the Child and confirms the determination to continue the efforts to activate these rights and overcome the obstacles standing in the way of the Ummah,

Confident that the Ummah has sufficient capabilities and resources to ensure a victory over the hurdles facing it, building on the lofty religious and social values with the family enjoying pride of place on the basis of love and mercy as well as human and material resources which afford it a real opportunity for comprehensive and sustainable development,

Recognizing the Child's right to grow up within a family environment governed by established values, love, and understanding so as to enable him to exercise his rights without discrimination,

Supporting the plans, programs, and projects aimed at improving the conditions of childhood in the Islamic world, including the elaboration of national legislations or regimes ensuring the child's exercise of his full rights,

Considering that the present Covenant affirms the rights of the child in the provisions of the Islamic Shari'a, taking into account the domestic laws of states and the rights of children and minorities and non-Muslim communities, in affirmation of the human rights shared by the Muslim and non-Muslim child,

Have agreed as follows:

FINAL TEXT OF THE REVISED AALCO 1966 BANGKOK PRINCIPLES ON STATUS AND TREATMENT OF REFUGEES

Adopted on 24 June 2001 at the AALCO's 40th session, New Delhi

Article I

Definition of the term "refugee"

1. A refugee is a person who, owing to persecution or a well-founded fear of persecution for reasons of race, colour, religion, nationality, ethnic origin, gender, political opinion or membership of a particular social group:
 - (a) Leaves the State of which he is a national, or the Country of his nationality, or, if he has no nationality, the State or Country of which he is a habitual resident; or,
 - (b) Being outside of such a State or Country, is unable or unwilling to return to it or to avail himself of its protection;
2. The term "refugee" shall also apply to every person, who, owing to external aggression, occupation, foreign domination or events seriously disturbing public order in either part or the whole of his country of origin or nationality, is compelled to leave his place of habitual residence in order to seek refuge in another place outside his country of origin or nationality.
3. A person who was outside of the State of which he is a national or the Country of his nationality, or if he has no nationality, the State of which he is a habitual resident, at the time of the events mentioned above and is unable or unwilling due to well founded fear thereof to return or to avail himself of its protection shall be considered a refugee.
4. The lawful dependents of a refugee shall be deemed to be refugees.
5. A person having more than one nationality shall not be a refugee if he is in a position to avail himself of the protection of any State or Country of which he is a national.
6. A refugee shall lose his status as refugee if:
 - (i) He voluntarily returns permanently, to the State of which he was a national, or the Country of which he was a habitual resident; or
 - (ii) He has voluntarily re-availed himself of the protection of the State or Country of his nationality;

(it being understood that the loss of status as a refugee under this sub-paragraph will take place only when the refugee has successfully re-availed himself of the protection of the State of his nationality;) or
 - (iii) He voluntarily acquires the nationality of another State or Country and is entitled to the protection of that State or Country; or
 - (iv) He does not return to the State of which he is a national, or to the Country of his nationality, or if he has no nationality, to the State or Country of which he was a habitual resident, or if he fails to avail himself of the protection of such State or Country after the circumstances in which he became a refugee have ceased to exist.

(Provided that this paragraph shall not apply to a refugee who is able to invoke compelling reasons arising out of previous persecution for refusing to avail himself of the protection of the country of nationality).
 - (v) If it becomes evident to the country of refuge that the refugee acquired the refugee status on the basis of false information, incorrect documents or cheating which influenced the decision of national authority to grant him refugee status.
7. A person who, prior to his admission into the Country of refuge, has committed a crime against peace, a war crime, or a crime against humanity as defined in international instruments drawn up to make provisions in respect of such crimes or a serious non-political crime outside his country of refuge prior to his admission to that country as a refugee, or has committed acts contrary to the purposes and principles of the United Nations, shall not be a refugee.

Article II

Asylum to a Refugee

1. Everyone without any distinction of any kind, is entitled to the right to seek and to enjoy in other countries asylum from persecution.
2. A State has the sovereign right to grant or to refuse asylum in its territory to a refugee in accordance with its international obligations and national legislation.
3. The grant of asylum to refugees is a humanitarian, peaceful and non-political act. It shall be respected by all other States and shall not be regarded as an unfriendly act so long as its humanitarian, peaceful and non-political nature is maintained.
4. States shall, bearing in mind provisions of Article X, use their best endeavours consistent with their respective legislation to receive refugees and to secure the settlement of those refugees who, for well-founded reasons, are unable or unwilling to return to their country of origin or nationality.

Article III

Non-refoulement

1. No one seeking asylum in accordance with these Principles shall be subjected to measures such as rejection at the frontier, return or expulsion which would result in his life or freedom being threatened on account of his race, religion, nationality, ethnic origin, membership of a particular social group or political opinion.

The provision as outlined above may not however be claimed by a person when there are reasonable grounds to believe the person's presence is a danger to the national security or public order of the country in which he is, or who, having been convicted by a final judgement of a particularly serious crime, constitutes a danger to the community of that country.
2. In cases where a State decides to apply any of the above-mentioned measures to a person seeking asylum, it should grant provisional asylum under such conditions as it may deem appropriate, to enable the person thus endangered to seek asylum in another country.

Article IV

Minimum standards of treatment

1. A State shall accord to refugees treatment no less favourable than that generally accorded to aliens in similar circumstances, with due regard to basic human rights as recognised in generally accepted international instruments.
2. The standard of treatment referred to in paragraph 1 shall include the rights relating to aliens contained in the Final Report of the Committee on the Status of Aliens, to the extent they are applicable to refugees.
3. A refugee shall not be denied any rights on the ground that he does not fulfil requirements which by their nature a refugee is incapable of fulfilling.
4. A refugee shall not be denied any rights on the ground that there is no reciprocity in regard to the grant of such rights between the receiving State and the State or Country of nationality of the refugee or, if he is stateless, the State or Country of his former habitual residence.
5. States undertake to apply these principles to all refugees without discrimination as to race, religion, nationality, ethnic origin, gender, membership of a particular social group or political opinion, in accordance with the principle of non-discrimination.

6. States shall adopt effective measures for improving the protection of refugee women and as appropriate, ensure that the needs and resources of refugee women are fully understood and integrated to the extent possible into their activities and programmes.
7. States shall take appropriate measures to ensure that a child who is seeking refugee status or who is considered a refugee in accordance with applicable international or domestic law and procedures shall, whether unaccompanied or accompanied by his parents or by any other person, receive appropriate protection and humanitarian assistance in the enjoyment of applicable rights set forth in the present Principles and in other international human rights instruments to which the said States are Parties.
8. States shall give special attention to the protection needs of elderly refugees to ensure not only their physical safety, and to the extent possible, the full exercise of their rights, including their right to family reunification. Special attention shall also be given to their assistance needs, including those relating to social welfare, health and housing.

Article V

Expulsion and deportation

1. Save in the national or public interest or in order to safeguard the population, the State shall not expel a refugee.
2. Before expelling a refugee, the State shall allow him a reasonable period within which to seek admission into another State. The State shall, however, have the right to apply during the period such internal measures as it may deem necessary and as applicable to aliens under such circumstances.
3. A refugee shall not be deported or returned to a State or Country where his life or liberty would be threatened for reasons of race, colour, nationality, ethnic origin, religion, political opinion, or membership of a particular social group.
4. The expulsion of a refugee shall be only in pursuance of a decision reached in accordance with due process of law. Except where compelling reasons of national security otherwise require, the refugee shall be allowed to submit evidence to clear himself, and to appeal to and be represented for the purpose before the competent authority or a person or persons specially designated by the competent authority.

Article VI

Right of return

1. A refugee shall have the right to return if he so chooses to the State of which he is a national or the country of his nationality or if he has no nationality to the State of which he is a habitual resident and in this event it shall be the duty of such a State or Country to receive him.
2. This principle should apply, inter alia, to any person who because of foreign domination, external aggression or occupation has left his habitual place of residence, or who being outside such place desires to return thereto.
3. It shall be the duty of the Government or authorities in control of such place of habitual residence to facilitate, by all means at their disposal, the return of all such persons as are referred to in the foregoing paragraph, and the restitution of their property to them.
4. This natural right of return shall also be enjoyed and facilitated to the same extent as stated above in respect of the dependants of all such persons as are referred to in paragraph 1 above.

Article VII

Voluntary repatriation

1. The essentially, voluntary character of repatriation shall be respected in all cases and no refugee shall be repatriated against his will.
2. The country of asylum, in collaboration with the country of origin, shall make adequate arrangements for the safe return of refugees who request repatriation.

3. The country of origin, shall provide all necessary documents to expedite their return on receiving back refugees, facilitate their resettlement and grant them the full rights and privileges of nationals of the country, and subject them to the same obligations.
4. Refugees who voluntarily return to their country shall in no way be penalised for having left it or for any of the reasons giving rise to refugee situations. Whenever necessary, an appeal shall be made through national information media and through the relevant universal and regional Organizations inviting refugees to return home without risk and to take up a normal and peaceful life without fear of being disturbed and punished, and that the text of such appeal should be given to refugees and clearly explained to them by their country of asylum.
5. Refugees who freely decide to return to their homeland, as a result of such assurances or on their own initiative, shall be given every possible assistance by the country of asylum, the country of origin, country of transit, voluntary agencies and international and intergovernmental Organizations to facilitate their return.

Article VIII

International Co-operation on comprehensive solutions

1. Voluntary repatriation, local settlement or third country resettlement, that is, the traditional solutions, all remain viable and important responses to refugee situations, even while voluntary repatriation is the pre-eminent solution. To this effect, States may undertake, with the help of inter-governmental and non-governmental organizations, development measures which would underpin and broaden the acceptance of the three traditional durable solutions.
2. States shall promote comprehensive approaches, including a mix of solutions involving all concerned States and relevant international organizations in the search for and implementation of durable solutions to refugee problems.
3. The issue of root causes is crucial for solutions and international efforts should also be directed to addressing the causes of refugee movements and the creation of the political, economic, social, humanitarian and environmental conditions conducive to voluntary repatriation.

Article IX

Right to compensation

1. A refugee shall have the right to receive compensation from the State which he left or to which he was unable to return.
2. The compensation referred to in paragraph 1 shall be for such loss as bodily injury, deprivation of personal liberty in denial of human rights, death of the refugee or of the person whose dependant the refugee was, and destruction of or damage to property and assets, caused by the authority of the State or country, public officials or mob violence.
3. Where such person does not desire to return, he shall be entitled to prompt and full compensation by the Government or the authorities in control of such place of habitual residence as determined, in the absence of agreement by the parties concerned, by an international body designated or constituted for the purpose by the Secretary-General of the United Nations at the request of either party.
4. If the status of such a person is disputed by the Government or the authorities in control of such place of habitual residence, or if any other dispute arises, such matter shall also be determined, in the absence of agreement by the parties concerned, by an international body designated or constituted as specified in paragraph (3) above.

Article X

Burden Sharing

1. The refugee phenomenon continues to be a matter of global concern and needs the support of international community as a whole for its solution and as such the principle of burden sharing should be viewed in that context.

2. The principle of international solidarity and burden sharing needs to be applied progressively to facilitate the process of durable solutions for refugees, whether within or outside a particular region, keeping in perspective that durable solutions in certain situations may need to be found by allowing access to refugees in countries outside that region, due to political, social and economic considerations.
3. The principle of international solidarity and burden sharing should be seen as applying to all aspects of the refugee situation, including the development and strengthening of the standards of treatment of refugees, support to States in protecting and assisting refugees, the provision of durable solutions and the support of international bodies with responsibilities for the protection and assistance of refugees.
4. International solidarity and co-operation in burden sharing should be manifested whenever necessary, through effective concrete measures where major share be borne by developed countries in support of States requiring assistance, whether through financial or material aid (or) through resettlement opportunities.
5. In all circumstances, the respect for fundamental humanitarian principles is an obligation for all members of the international community. Giving practical effect to the principle of international solidarity and burden sharing considerably facilitates States fulfilment of their responsibilities in this regard.

Article XI

Obligations

A refugee shall not engage in subversive activities endangering the national security of the country of refuge, or any other country or in activities inconsistent with or against the principles and purposes of the United Nations.

Article XII

Rights granted apart from these Principles

Nothing in these Articles shall be deemed to impair any higher rights and benefits granted or which may hereafter be granted by a State to refugees.

Article XIII

Co-operation with international organizations

States shall co-operate with the office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees and, in the region of its mandate, with the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near-East.

NOTES, COMMENTS AND RESERVATIONS MADE BY THE MEMBER STATES OF AALCO TO THE FINAL TEXT OF THE REVISED 1966 BANGKOK PRINCIPLES

Introductory Remarks

1. These notes, comments and reservations are an integral part of the main document of the Revised Bangkok Principles.
2. The Revised Bangkok Principles are declaratory and non-binding in character and aim inter alia at inspiring Member States for enacting national legislation for the Status and Treatment of Refugees and as a guide to deal with the refugee problems.
3. In all the Articles and paragraphs where it is referred to “The unwillingness of the refugee to go back to his country of origin, nationality or habitual residence”, it is fully understood that this unwillingness is not a choice that the refugee can exercise on his own regardless of the consent of the country of asylum but means that the reasons of his well founded fears are still persistent and that his life or liberty if he is compelled to return would be threatened. Moreover the refugee can invoke convincing reasons out of previous persecution for refusing to return to one of the States mentioned above.
4. When the words “he” or “his” are used in the text, should be read to include “she” or “her”.

Article I

1. The Government of Bahrain proposes the deletion of the phrase “disturbing public order in either a part or in the whole of his country of origin or nationality” in para 2 of Article I.
2. The Government of UAE proposes the addition of “the country of his habitual residence” in para 2 of Article I in order to make it consistent with para 3 of the same Article.
3. The Government of Singapore expressed its reservation to Article I(2) as it is too wide, and may result in undue pressures on receiving states in dealing with large number of refugees under this broader definition.
4. Referring to the present Article I(2) being similar to Article 1(2) of the 1969 OAU Convention governing the specific aspects of refugee problems in Africa:
5. The Government of India is not in favour of the expanded definition of refugees given in para 2 of Article I. The definition drawn from Human Rights and humanitarian law instruments is too broad in its scope. The universally accepted criteria of “well-founded fear of persecution” should remain the core of the definition. Any expansion of the definition of refugees will have an adverse effect on promoting the concept of ‘durable solutions’ and may result in the weakening of protection afforded to genuine refugees.
6. The Government of Oman in para 4 of Article I proposes to relate the concept of “lawful dependents” to the national legislation of the country of asylum, for this concept can change from one country to another.
7. The Governments of Pakistan and Bahrain propose the deletion of the word “permanently” in para 6(i) of Article I.
8. The Government of Bahrain proposes the deletion of the entire sentence “it being understood that the loss of status as a refugee under this sub-paragraph will take place only when the refugee has successfully re-availed himself of the protection of the State of his nationality” at the end of para 6 (ii) for it is difficult to make sure that the refugee will succeed in regaining the protection of his country unless he returns to it for a second time.
9. (a) The Government of Arab Republic of Egypt has reiterated its view that the crime of terrorism should have been included in the text of Article I(7) of the Principles, as a ground for refusal to grant the status of refugee due to the seriousness of such crimes as recognized by United Nations Resolutions and Declarations, particularly, General Assembly Resolution A/Res./49/60 of 1994 and the Declaration on Measures to Eliminate International Terrorism annexed thereto. Furthermore, in the view of the Government of Egypt, the failure to recognize crimes of terrorism as grounds for refusal of refugee status could subject the entire refugee regime to exploitation and misuse, and consequently have a negative impact on legitimate asylum seekers. The Government of Turkey also supports this view.

- (b) The Government of Bahrain proposes to include the “crime of terrorism” to para 7 Article I according to the definition approved by the “Arab Convention to Combat Terrorism”.
- (c) The Government of Republic of Korea expressed its reservation to the inclusion of the “crime of terrorism”, given the lack of consensus on the definition of terrorism, it is of the view that any reference to terrorism could be used as a pretext by states to refuse asylum to genuine refugees.

Article II

1. The Government of Pakistan proposes to substitute the word “everyone” with “every refugee” in para 1 of Article II.
2. The Government of India considers that the inclusion of the expression “in accordance with its international obligations and national legislation” in para 2 of Article II restricts the sovereign rights of states to grant or refuse asylum to a refugee.
3. The Government of UAE proposes the addition of “or its habitual residence” at the end of para 4 in order to be consistent with the entire text.
4. The Government of Bahrain proposes to delete the entire para 4 of Article II as it does not agree that a refugee should remain in the country of refuge because he is unable or unwilling to return to his country of origin or nationality after the circumstances of his refuge have ceased to exist.

Article III

1. (a) The Government of Thailand proposes deletion of the words “seeking asylum” and substitution with words “after asylum is granted” in para 1 of Article III.
(b) The Government of Oman proposes to add the words “after granting asylum” after the words “seeking asylum” in para 1 Article III.
2. The Government of Kuwait proposes to redraft para 2 of Article III as follows “A State may grant to a person seeking asylum provisional asylum, under conditions fixed by the granting State”.

Article IV

1. (a) The Government of Pakistan suggests deletion of the phrase “aliens in similar circumstances” in para 1 of Article IV as it is confusing and does not fit well with reference to the word “refugees”.
(b) The Government of Kuwait proposes the deletion of the last sentence of para 1 of Article IV “with due regard to basic human rights as recognized in generally accepted international instruments” as it is an unnecessary addition keeping in view that the first part gives to the refugee same treatment as any foreigner.
(c) The Government of Oman proposes the addition of “in accordance with national legislation” at the end of the present para 1 of Article IV, as it feels that the concept of basic human rights varies from one country to another.
2. In Article IV para 2 please refer to the Final Report of the Organization adopted at the AALCC’s Fourth Session held in Tokyo in 1961.
3. The Government of Oman is of the view that the word “requirements” in para 3 of Article IV should be further clarified and illustrated, for without specific clarification the term as it stands is very vague.
4. The Government of Kuwait proposes the redrafting of para 7 of Article IV for the sake of clarity and easier implementation to read as follows “States shall take appropriate measures to ensure that a child who is seeking refugee status or who is considered a refugee, shall receive appropriate protection and humanitarian assistance in accordance with international and national law”.
5. The Government of UAE proposes the addition of “religious needs” to the other needs of elderly refugees stipulated in para 8 of Article IV.

Article V

1. The Government of Bahrain proposes to use the word “should” instead of the word “shall” in para 1 of Article V.
2. In view of the Government of UAE the implementation of para 1 of Article V will not have a real effect because it relates the reason to expel a refugee to “national interests or public interest or to protect people” and all of these reasons have no precise definition or clear limits.
3. The Government of Thailand suggests deletion of the phrase “the expulsion of a refugee shall be only in pursuance of a decision reached in accordance with due process of law” in para 4 of Article V.
The Government of Pakistan sought some more clarification regarding the phrase “due process of law”, in its view it is to be understood in light of the contents of para 1 of this article.
4. Regarding para 4 of Article V the Government of Sudan expressed a similar view as the Government of Pakistan, according to it “competent authority” should mean the relevant national bodies and not as a reference only to courts or judicial bodies.

Article VI

1. The Government of Turkey proposes the deletion of the words “foreign domination, external aggression or occupation” in para 2 Article VI and replace them by the words “international or internal armed conflict”. The Governments of Pakistan and Kuwait support the suggestion.
2. The Government of Turkey proposes the addition of the words “taking into consideration the agreements reached with the Government or authorities of those persons and with a view to preventing further displacement of other already displaced persons as a result” in para 2 of Article VI.

Article VII

1. Proposition of AALCO Secretariat and UNHCR to change earlier title “Other solutions” to “International Co-operation on Comprehensive Solutions”.
2. The Government of Pakistan proposes the deletion of the word “essentially” in para 1 of Article VII as it seemed superfluous and could create problems. The Government of Thailand supports the suggestion.
3. The Government of Kuwait proposes the deletion of the entire paragraph 4 of Article VII as it tends to waive criminal responsibility of any person who committed criminal acts before seeking refuge in another country.

Article VIII

1. The Government of India expressed its reservation on including a separate Article VIII on “International co-operation and comprehensive solutions”. It wants the emphasis to remain on ‘voluntary repatriation’. The other solutions like ‘local settlement’ or ‘third country resettlement’, according to it, would have to be considered carefully in each case, given their political, economic or security implications, particularly in situations of mass-influx. In this connection, a distinction needs to be maintained between the ‘individual refugees’ and ‘situations of mass-influx’ as well as between ‘convention refugees’ and ‘economic migrants’. Further, the implementation of these solutions and treatment of refugees is linked to the available resources and capacity of each State.
2. The Government of Bahrain proposes the deletion of the entire Article VIII.
3. In view of the Government of Oman the solutions contained in para 1 of this article are of a non-obligatory nature and do not bind the country of asylum. Nevertheless the country of asylum may fulfil these requirements in accordance with its national interests.

Article IX

1. In view of the financial and economic implications, reservations to paragraph 1 of Article IX were expressed by the Governments of Sudan, Pakistan, Turkey, Jordan, Tanzania and Kuwait.

2. (a) The Government of Singapore understands the phrase “such place of habitual residence” in para 3 Article IX as referring to the State or country which the refugee left or to which he is unable to return.
- (b) The Government of Pakistan felt that para 3 of this article should be in conformity with para 1 and suggested that “such place of habitual residence” should be replaced with “State or country which he left”.
3. Regarding para 3 of this article, the Government of Oman wants to make sure that if the refugee is unwilling to return to his country of origin, it does not mean that the country of asylum is compelled to maintain his refugee status forever.
3. The Government of Bahrain proposes the deletion of the entire article IX as in their view, most of the refugee cases happen due to unforeseen circumstances. The Government of UAE also has reservations on the entire Article IX.

Article X

1. The Government of Singapore maintains that the responsibility of refugees rests ultimately on the countries which caused the refugees to flee and/or remain abroad. Assistance to refugees by other countries, international organizations and donors should not relieve such countries of their basic responsibility, including that of paying adequate compensation.
2. The Government of UAE has a reservation to para 2 of Article X as it refers to the possibility of a refugee residing in another country than the country of asylum.

Article XI

1. The addition of words “or any other country” after “country of refugee”.

COMMENTS AND RESERVATIONS BY THE MEMBER GOVERNMENTS

1. The words “he” or “his” wherever used in the text should read to include “she” or “her”, as suggested by the delegate of Pakistan.

Article I

2. The Government of India is not in favour of the expanded definition of refugees. This definition drawn from Human Rights and humanitarian law instruments is too broad in its scope. The universally accepted criteria of “well-founded fear of persecution” should remain the core of the definition. Any expansion of the definition of refugees will have an adverse effect on promoting the concept of ‘durable solutions’ and may result in the weakening of protection afforded to genuine refugees.
3. The Government of Egypt has reiterated its view that the crime of terrorism should have been included in the text of Article 1(7) of the Principles, as a ground for refusal to grant the status of refugee due to the seriousness of such crimes as recognized by United Nations Resolutions and Declarations, particularly, General Assembly Resolution A/Res./49/60 of 1994 and the Declaration on Measures to Eliminate International Terrorism annexed thereto. Furthermore, in the view of the Government of Egypt, the failure to recognize crimes of terrorism as grounds for refusal of refugee status could subject the entire refugee regime to exploitation and misuse, and consequently have a negative impact on legitimate asylum seekers. The Government of Turkey also supports this view.
4. The Government of India consider that the inclusion of the expression “in accordance with its international obligations and national legislation” restricts the sovereign rights of states to grant or refuse asylum to a refugee.
5. The Government of Thailand proposed deletion of the words “seeking asylum” and substitution with words “after asylum is granted”.
6. Admission and Treatment of Aliens adopted at the AALCC’s fourth Session held in Tokyo (1961).

7. The Government of Thailand suggested deletion of the phrase “The expulsion of a refugee shall be only in pursuance of a decision reached in accordance with due process of law”.
8. The Government of Turkey proposed substituting the words “international or internal armed conflict” for the words “foreign domination, external aggression or occupation”.
9. The Government of Turkey proposed the addition of the words “taking into consideration the agreements reached with the Government or authorities of those persons and with a view to preventing further displacement of other already displaced persons as a result.”
10. The Government of India expressed its reservation on including a separate Article VIII on “International co-operation and comprehensive solutions”. It wants the emphasis to remain on ‘voluntary repatriation’. The other solutions like ‘local settlement’ or ‘third country resettlement’, according to it, would have to be considered carefully in each case, given their political, economic or security implications, particularly in situations of mass-influx. In this connection, a distinction needs to be maintained between the ‘individual refugees’ and ‘situations of mass-influx’ as well as between ‘convention refugees’ and ‘economic migrants’. Further, the implementation of these solutions and treatment of refugees is linked to the available resources and capacity of each State.
11. In view of the financial and economic reservations to paragraph 1 were expressed by the Governments of Sudan, Pakistan, Turkey, Jordan and Tanzania.

CARTAGENA DECLARATION ON REFUGEES

Adopted by the Colloquium on the International Protection of Refugees in Central America, Mexico and Panama, held at Cartagena, Colombia from 19 – 22 November 1984

Text: OAS Document OEA/Ser.L/V/II.66/doc.10, rev. 1, pp. 190-93 (1984-85)

I

Recalling the conclusions and recommendations adopted by the Colloquium held in Mexico in 1981 on Asylum and International Protection of Refugees in Latin America, which established important landmarks for the analysis and consideration of this matter;

Recognizing that the refugee situation in Central America has evolved in recent years to the point at which it deserves special attention;

Appreciating the generous efforts which have been made by countries receiving Central American refugees, notwithstanding the great difficulties they have had to face, particularly in the current economic crisis;

Emphasizing the admirable humanitarian and non-political task which UNHCR has been called upon to carry out in the Central American countries, Mexico and Panama in accordance with the provisions of the 1951 United Nations Convention and the 1967 Protocol, as well as those of resolution 428 (V) of the United Nations General Assembly, by which the mandate of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees is applicable to all States whether or not parties to the said Convention and/or Protocol;

Bearing in mind also the function performed by the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights with regard to the protection of the rights of refugees in the continent;

Strongly supporting the efforts of the Contadora Group to find an effective and lasting solution to the problem of Central American refugees, which constitute a significant step in the negotiation of effective agreements in favour of peace in the region;

Expressing its conviction that many of the legal and humanitarian problems relating to refugees which have arisen in the Central American region, Mexico and Panama can only be tackled in the light of the necessary co-ordination and harmonization of universal and regional systems and national efforts;

II

Having acknowledged with appreciation the commitments with regard to refugees included in the Contadora Act on Peace and Co-operation in Central America, the bases of which the Colloquium fully shares and which are reproduced below:

- (a) "To carry out, if they have not yet done so, the constitutional procedures for accession to the 1951 Convention and the 1967 Protocol relating to the Status of Refugees."
- (b) "To adopt the terminology established in the Convention and Protocol referred to in the foregoing paragraph with a view to distinguishing refugees from other categories of migrants."
- (c) "To establish the internal machinery necessary for the implementation, upon accession, of the provisions of the Convention and Protocol referred to above."
- (d) "To ensure the establishment of machinery for consultation between the Central American countries and representatives of the Government offices responsible for dealing with the problem of refugees in each State."
- (e) "To support the work performed by the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) in Central America and to establish direct co-ordination machinery to facilitate the fulfilment of his mandate."

- (f) "To ensure that any repatriation of refugees is voluntary, and is declared to be so on an individual basis, and is carried out with the co-operation of UNHCR."
- (g) "To ensure the establishment of tripartite commissions, composed of representatives of the State of origin, of the receiving State and of UNHCR with a view to facilitating the repatriation of refugees."
- (h) "To reinforce programmes for protection of and assistance to refugees, particularly in the areas of health, education, labour and safety."
- (i) "To ensure that programmes and projects are set up with a view to ensuring the self-sufficiency of refugees."
- (j) "To train the officials responsible in each State for protection of and assistance to refugees, with the co-operation of UNHCR and other international agencies."
- (k) "To request immediate assistance from the international community for Central American refugees, to be provided either directly, through bilateral or multilateral agreements, or through UNHCR and other organizations and agencies."
- (l) "To identify, with the co-operation of UNHCR, other countries which might receive Central American refugees. In no case shall a refugee be transferred to a third country against his will."
- (m) "To ensure that the Governments of the area make the necessary efforts to eradicate the causes of the refugee problem."
- (n) "To ensure that, once agreement has been reached on the bases for voluntary and individual repatriation, with full guarantees for the refugees, the receiving countries permit official delegations of the country of origin, accompanied by representatives of UNHCR and the receiving country, to visit the refugee camps."
- (o) "To ensure that the receiving countries facilitate, in co-ordination with UNHCR, the departure procedure for refugees in instances of voluntary and individual repatriation."
- (p) "To institute appropriate measures in the receiving countries to prevent the participation of refugees in activities directed against the country of origin, while at all times respecting the human rights of the refugees."

III

The Colloquium adopted the following conclusions:

1. To promote within the countries of the region the adoption of national laws and regulations facilitating the application of the Convention and the Protocol and, if necessary, establishing internal procedures and mechanisms for the protection of refugees. In addition, to ensure that the national laws and regulations adopted reflect the principles and criteria of the Convention and the Protocol, thus fostering the necessary process of systematic harmonization of national legislation on refugees.
2. To ensure that ratification of or accession to the 1951 Convention and the 1967 Protocol by States which have not yet taken these steps is unaccompanied by reservations limiting the scope of those instruments, and to invite countries having formulated such reservations to consider withdrawing them as soon as possible.
3. To reiterate that, in view of the experience gained from the massive flows of refugees in the Central American area, it is necessary to consider enlarging the concept of a refugee, bearing in mind, as far as appropriate and in the light of the situation prevailing in the region, the precedent of the OAU Convention (article 1, paragraph 2) and the doctrine employed in the reports of the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights. Hence the definition or concept of a refugee to be recommended for use in the region is one which, in addition to containing the elements of the 1951 Convention and the 1967 Protocol, includes among refugees persons who have fled their country because their lives, safety or freedom have been threatened by generalized violence, foreign aggression, internal conflicts, massive violation of human rights or other circumstances which have seriously disturbed public order.

4. To confirm the peaceful, non-political and exclusively humanitarian nature of grant of asylum or recognition of the status of refugee and to underline the importance of the internationally accepted principle that nothing in either shall be interpreted as an unfriendly act towards the country of origin of refugees.
5. To reiterate the importance and meaning of the principle of non-refoulement (including the prohibition of rejection at the frontier) as a corner-stone of the international protection of refugees. This principle is imperative in regard to refugees and in the present state of international law should be acknowledged and observed as a rule of jus cogens.
6. To reiterate to countries of asylum that refugee camps and settlements located in frontier areas should be set up inland at a reasonable distance from the frontier with a view to improving the protection afforded to refugees, safeguarding their human rights and implementing projects aimed at their self-sufficiency and integration into the host society.
7. To express its concern at the problem raised by military attacks on refugee camps and settlements which have occurred in different parts of the world and to propose to the Governments of the Central American countries, Mexico and Panama that they lend their support to the measures on this matter which have been proposed by the High Commissioner to the UNHCR Executive Committee.
8. To ensure that the countries of the region establish a minimum standard of treatment for refugees, on the basis of the provisions of the 1951 Convention and 1967 Protocol and of the American Convention on Human Rights, taking into consideration the conclusions of the UNHCR Executive Committee, particularly No. 22 on the Protection of Asylum Seekers in Situations of Large-Scale Influx.
9. To express its concern at the situation of displaced persons within their own countries. In this connection, the Colloquium calls on national authorities and the competent international organizations to offer protection and assistance to those persons and to help relieve the hardship which many of them face.
10. To call on States parties to the 1969 American Convention on Human Rights to apply this instrument in dealing with asilados and refugees who are in their territories.
11. To make a study, in countries in the area which have a large number of refugees, of the possibilities of integrating them into the productive life of the country by allocating to the creation or generation of employment the resources made available by the international community through UNHCR, thus making it possible for refugees to enjoy their economic, social and cultural rights.
12. To reiterate the voluntary and individual character of repatriation of refugees and the need for it to be carried out under conditions of absolute safety, preferably to the place of residence of the refugee in his country of origin.
13. To acknowledge that reunification of families constitutes a fundamental principle in regard to refugees and one which should be the basis for the regime of humanitarian treatment in the country of asylum, as well as for facilities granted in cases of voluntary repatriation.
14. To urge non-governmental, international and national organizations to continue their worthy task, co-ordinating their activities with UNHCR and the national authorities of the country of asylum, in accordance with the guidelines laid down by the authorities in question.
15. To promote greater use of the competent organizations of the inter-American system, in particular the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights, with a view to enhancing the international protection of asilados and refugees. Accordingly, for the performance of this task, the Colloquium considers that the close co-ordination and co-operation existing between the Commission and UNHCR should be strengthened.
16. To acknowledge the importance of the OAS/UNHCR Programme of Co-operation and the activities so far carried out and to propose that the next stage should focus on the problem raised by massive refugee flows in Central America, Mexico and Panama.
17. To ensure that in the countries of Central America and the Contadora Group the international norms and national legislation relating to the protection of refugees, and of human rights in general, are disseminated at all possible levels. In particular, the Colloquium believes it especially important that such dissemination should be undertaken with the valuable co-operation of the appropriate universities and centres of higher education.

IV

The Cartagena Colloquium therefore,

Recommends:

- That the commitments with regard to refugees included in the Contadora Act should constitute norms for the 10 States participating in the Colloquium and be unfailingly and scrupulously observed in determining the conduct to be adopted in regard to refugees in the Central American area.
- That the conclusions reached by the Colloquium (III) should receive adequate attention in the search for solutions to the grave problems raised by the present massive flows of refugees in Central America, Mexico and Panama.
- That a volume should be published containing the working document and the proposals and reports, as well as the conclusions and recommendations of the Colloquium and other pertinent documents, and that the Colombian Government, UNHCR and the competent bodies of OAS should be requested to take the necessary steps to secure the widest possible circulation of the volume in question.
- That the present document should be proclaimed the “Cartagena Declaration on Refugees”.
- That the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees should be requested to transmit the contents of the present declaration officially to the heads of State of the Central American countries, of Belize and of the countries forming the Contadora Group.

Finally, the Colloquium expressed its deep appreciation to the Colombian authorities, and in particular to the President of the Republic, Mr. Belisario Betancur, the Minister for Foreign Affairs, Mr. Augusto Ramírez Ocampo, and the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, Mr. Poul Hartling, who honoured the Colloquium with their presence, as well as to the University of Cartagena de Indias and the Regional Centre for Third World Studies for their initiative and for the realization of this important event. The Colloquium expressed its special recognition of the support and hospitality offered by the authorities of the Department of Bolívar and the City of Cartagena. It also thanked the people of Cartagena, rightly known as the “Heroic City”, for their warm welcome.

In conclusion, the Colloquium recorded its acknowledgement of the generous tradition of asylum and refuge practised by the Colombian people and authorities.

[Here follow the names of the plenipotentiaries.]

Who, after having exhibited their full powers, which were found in good and due form, have agreed upon the following:

Article 1

In place of Article 1 of the Convention of Havana on Right of Asylum, of February 20, 1928, the following is substituted: "It shall not be lawful for the States to grant asylum in legations, warships, military camps, or airships to those accused of common offenses who may have been duly prosecuted or who may have been sentenced by ordinary courts of justice, nor to deserters of land or sea forces.

Article 3

Political asylum, as an institution of humanitarian character, is not subject to reciprocity. Any man may resort to its protection, whatever his nationality, without prejudice to the obligations accepted by the State to which he belongs; however, the States that do not recognize political asylum, except with limitations and peculiarities, can exercise it in foreign countries only in the manner and within the limits recognized by said countries.

After the expiration of this period the Convention shall cease in its effects as regards the party which denounces but shall remain in effect for the remaining High Contracting Parties.

Article 9

The present Convention shall be open for the adherence and accession of the States which are not signatories. The corresponding instruments shall be deposited in the archives of the Pan American Union which shall communicate them to the other High Contracting Parties.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the following Plenipotentiaries have signed this Convention in Spanish, English, Portuguese and French and hereunto affix their respective seals in the city of Montevideo, Republic of Uruguay, this 26th day of December, 1933.

Here follow the signatures of the Plenipotentiaries.

DECLARATION

TREATY ON POLITICAL ASYLUM AND REFUGE¹

Signed at Montevideo, 4 August 1939

His Excellency the President of the Republic of Peru; His Excellency the President of the Argentine Republic; His Excellency the President of the Oriental Republic of Uruguay; His Excellency the President of the Republic of Bolivia; His Excellency the President of the Republic of Paraguay, and His Excellency the President of the Republic of Chile.

In view of the fact that the principles governing asylum which were established by the Treaty on International Penal Law signed at Montevideo on January 23, 1889, require amplification in order that they may cover the new situations which have arisen and may serve to confirm the doctrines already sanctioned in America, have agreed to conclude the present Treaty on Political Asylum and Refuge through the medium of their respective plenipotentiaries, assembled in congress in the City of Montevideo as a result of the initiative taken by the Governments of the Oriental Republic of Uruguay and the Argentine Republic.

For the execution of this purpose, His Excellency the President of the Republic of Peru has designated as his representatives:

[Here follow the names of the representatives.]

The aforesaid representatives, having presented their full powers, which were found to be in due form, and after holding the appropriate conferences and discussions, have agreed upon the following provisions:

Chapter I. On Political AsylumArticle 1

Asylum may be granted without distinction of nationality, and without prejudice to the rights and obligations of protection appertaining to the State to which the refugees belong.

The State which grants asylum does not thereby incur an obligation to admit the refugees into its territory, except in cases where they are not given admission by other States.

Article 2

Asylum may be granted only in embassies, legations, men-of-war, military camps or military airplanes, and exclusively to persons pursued for political reasons or offenses, or under circumstances involving concurrent political offenses, which do not legally permit of extradition.

The chiefs of mission may also receive refugees in their residences, in cases where the former do not live on the premises of the embassies or legations.

Article 3

Asylum shall not be granted to persons accused of political offenses, who shall have been indicted or condemned previously for common offenses, by the ordinary tribunals.

The determination of the causes which induce the asylum appertains to the State which grants it.

Asylum may not be granted to deserters from the sea-, land-, or air forces, except when the act is clearly of a political character.

Article 4

The diplomatic agent or military commander who grants asylum shall immediately communicate the names of the refugees to the Ministry for Foreign Affairs of the State where the act in question occurred, or to the administrative authorities of the locality, if the said act has taken place outside the seat of government, except when grave circumstances materially impede such communication or make it dangerous to the safety of the refugees.

Article 5

While the asylum continues, the refugees shall not be permitted to commit acts which may disturb the public tranquillity or may tend toward participation in, or influence upon, political activities. The diplomatic agents or military commanders shall require of the refugees information as to their personal history, and a promise not to enter into external communications without the express intervention of the former. This promise shall be in writing and signed; and if the refugees should refuse to accept, or should violate, any of these conditions, the diplomatic agent or commander shall immediately terminate the asylum. The refugees may be forbidden to carry with them articles other than those destined for personal use, the papers which belong to them, and the money necessary for their living expenses, the deposit of any other securities or articles in the place of asylum being prohibited.

Article 6

The Government of the State may demand that a given refugee be removed from the national territory within the shortest possible time; and the diplomatic agent or military commander who has granted the asylum may, for his part, demand the necessary guaranties before the refugee is permitted to leave the country, with due regard for the inviolability of the latter's person, and of the papers belonging to him and carried with him at the time when he received asylum, as well as for the funds necessary to support him for a reasonable time. In the absence of such guaranties, the departure may be postponed until the local authorities shall make them available.

Article 7

Once they have left the State, the refugees shall not be landed in any other part of it. In case an ex-refugee should return to the country in question, he shall not be accorded new asylum if the disturbance which led to the original grant subsists.

Article 8

When the number of refugees exceeds the normal capacity of the places of refuge specified in Article 2, the diplomatic agents or military commanders may provide other places, under the protection of their flag, for the safety and lodging of the said refugees. In such cases, the agents or commanders must communicate that fact to the authorities.

Article 9

Men-of-war or military airplanes temporarily located in dry-docks or workshops for repairs, shall not accord protection to persons who take refuge in them.

Article 10

If, in a case of severance of relations, the diplomatic representative who has granted asylum should have to leave the territory of the country where he is located, he shall depart from it accompanied by the refugees; or, if this should be impossible for some reason not dependent upon the choice of the refugees or of the diplomatic agent, he may deliver them to the agent of a third State, with the guaranties specified in this treaty. Such delivery shall be effected by the transfer of the said refugees to the premises of the diplomatic mission which shall have accepted the charge in question, or by leaving the refugees on the premises where the archives of the departing diplomatic mission are kept; and these premises shall remain under the direct protection of the diplomatic agent to whom that function has been intrusted. In either case, the local Ministry for Foreign Affairs shall be duly advised, in conformity with the provisions of Article 4.

Chapter II. On Asylum in Foreign Territory

Article 11

Asylum granted within the territory of the high contracting parties, in conformity with the present treaty, is an inviolable asylum for persons pursued under the conditions described in Article 2; but it is the duty of the State to prevent the refugees from committing within its territory, acts which may endanger the public peace of the State from which they come.

The determination of the causes that induce the asylum appertains to the State which grants it.

The grant of asylum does not entail for the State which makes that grant, any obligation to admit the refugees indefinitely into its territory.

Article 12

Political emigrants shall not be permitted to establish juntas or committees for the purpose of instigating or promoting disturbances of order in any of the contracting States. Such juntas or committees shall be disbanded, upon proof of their subversive character, by the authorities of the State where they are found to exist.

Discontinuance of the benefits of asylum does not imply authorization to place a refugee in the territory of the pursuing State.

Article 13

Upon the request of the interested State, the one which has granted asylum shall undertake to keep watch over or to intern political emigrants, within a reasonable distance from its frontiers. The State receiving the request shall determine the propriety of the petition and shall fix the distance in question.

Article 14

The State making the request shall be liable for all expenses incurred in the internment of political refugees and emigrants.

Prior to the internment of the refugees, the States involved shall come to an agreement concerning their maintenance.

Article 15

Political internees shall advise the Government of the State where they are located, when they decide to leave its territory. Their departure shall be permitted on condition that they do not go to the country of their origin, and notice of this permission shall be given to the interested State.

Chapter III. General Provisions

Article 16

Any difference which may arise concerning the application of this treaty shall be decided through diplomatic channels, or, in default thereof, shall be submitted to arbitration or judicial decision, provided that there is a tribunal whose jurisdiction both parties recognize.

Article 17

Any State which has not signed the present treaty may adhere to it by sending its instrument of adhesion to the Ministry for Foreign Affairs of the Oriental Republic of Uruguay, which shall notify the other high contracting parties, through diplomatic channels, of that adhesion.

Article 18

This treaty shall be ratified by the high contracting parties in accordance with their constitutional rules. The original treaty and the instruments of ratification shall be deposited with the Ministry for Foreign Affairs of the Oriental Republic of Uruguay, which shall communicate the ratifications, through diplomatic channels, to the other contracting States. The treaty shall go into effect among the high contracting parties in the order in which they have deposited their ratifications. The corresponding notification shall be considered as an exchange of ratifications.

Article 19

This treaty shall remain in force indefinitely, but may be denounced through notice given two years in advance, after the lapse of which period it shall cease to bind the denouncing State, but shall continue to be binding upon the other signatory States. Denunciations must be addressed to the Ministry for Foreign Affairs of the Oriental Republic of Uruguay, which shall transmit them to the other contracting States.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the above-mentioned Plenipotentiaries sign the present treaty in the City of Montevideo, on the 4th day of August, 1939.

CONVENTION ON TERRITORIAL ASYLUM

Signed in Caracas on 28 March 1954 at the Tenth Inter-American Conference

Text: OAS Official Records, OEA/Ser.X/I. Treaty Series 34

The Governments of the Member States of the Organization of American States, desirous of concluding a Convention regarding Territorial Asylum, have agreed to the following articles:

Article 1

Every State has the right, in the exercise of its sovereignty, to admit into its territory such persons as it deems advisable, without, through the exercise of this right, giving rise to complaint by any other State.

Article 2

The respect which, according to international law, is due the jurisdictional right of each State over the inhabitants in its territory, is equally due, without any restriction whatsoever, to that which it has over persons who enter it proceeding from a State in which they are persecuted for their beliefs, opinions, or political affiliations, or for acts which may be considered as political offenses.

Any violation of sovereignty that consists of acts committed by a government or its agents in another State against the life or security of an individual, carried out on the territory of another State, may not be considered attenuated because the persecution began outside its boundaries or is due to political considerations or reasons of state.

Article 3

No State is under the obligation to surrender to another State, or to expel from its own territory, persons persecuted for political reasons or offenses.

Article 4

The right of extradition is not applicable in connection with persons who, in accordance with the qualifications of the solicited State, are sought for political offenses, or for common offenses committed for political ends, or when extradition is solicited for predominantly political motives.

Article 5

The fact that a person has entered into the territorial jurisdiction of a State surreptitiously or irregularly does not affect the provisions of this Convention.

Article 6

Without prejudice to the provisions of the following articles, no State is under the obligation to establish any distinction in its legislation, or in its regulations or administrative acts applicable to aliens, solely because of the fact that they are political asylees or refugees.

Article 7

Freedom of expression of thought, recognized by domestic law for all inhabitants of a State, may not be ground of complaint by a third State on the basis of opinions expressed publicly against it or its government by asylees or refugees, except when these concepts constitute systematic propaganda through which they incite to the use of force or violence against the government of the complaining State.

Article 8

No State has the right to request that another State restrict for the political asylees or refugees the freedom of assembly or association which the latter State's internal legislation grants to all aliens within its territory, unless such assembly or association has as its purpose fomenting the use of force or violence against the government of the soliciting State.

Article 9

At the request of the interested State, the State that has granted refuge or asylum shall take steps to keep watch over, or to intern at a reasonable distance from its border, those political refugees or asylees who are notorious leaders of a subversive movement, as well as those against whom there is evidence that they are disposed to join it.

Determination of the reasonable distance from the border, for the purpose of internment, shall depend upon the judgment of the authorities of the State of refuge.

All expenses incurred as a result of the internment of political asylees and refugees shall be chargeable to the State that makes the request.

Article 10

The political internees referred to in the preceding article shall advise the government of the host State whenever they wish to leave its territory. Departure therefrom will be granted, under the condition that they are not to go to the country from which they came; and the interested government is to be notified.

Article 11

In all cases in which a complaint or request is permissible in accordance with this Convention, the admissibility of evidence presented by the demanding State shall depend on the judgment of the solicited State.

Article 12

This Convention remains open to the signature of the Member States of the Organization of American States, and shall be ratified by the signatory States in accordance with their respective constitutional procedures.

Article 13

The original instrument, whose texts in the English, French, Portuguese, and Spanish languages are equally authentic, shall be deposited in the Pan American Union, which shall send certified copies to the governments for the purpose of ratification. The instruments of ratification shall be deposited in the Pan American Union; this organization shall notify the signatory governments of said deposit.

Article 14

This Convention shall take effect among the States that ratify it in the order in which their respective ratifications are deposited.

Article 15

This Convention shall remain effective indefinitely, but may be denounced by any of the signatory States by giving advance notice of one year, at the end of which period it shall cease to have effect for the denouncing State, remaining, however, in force among the remaining signatory States. The denunciation shall be forwarded to the Pan American Union which shall notify the other signatory States thereof.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the undersigned Plenipotentiaries, having presented their plenary powers which have been found in good and satisfactory form, sign this Convention in the name of their respective Governments, in the city of Caracas, this twenty-eighth day of March, one thousand nine hundred and fifty-four.

Here follow the signatures of the Plenipotentiaries.

RESERVATIONS

Guatemala

We make express reservation to Article 3 (three) wherein it refers to the surrender of persons persecuted for political reasons or offenses; because according to the provisions of our Political Constitution, we maintain that such surrender of persons persecuted for political reasons may never be carried out.

We affirm, likewise, that the term “internment” in Article 9 means merely location at a distance from the border.

Dominican Republic

The Delegation of the Dominican Republic subscribes to the Convention on Territorial Asylum, with the following reservations:

Article 1. The Dominican Republic accepts the general principle embodied in that article in the sense that, “Every State has the right to admit into its territory such persons as it deems advisable”, but it does not renounce the right to make diplomatic representation to any other State, if for considerations of national security it deems this advisable.

Article 2. It accepts the second paragraph of this article with the understanding that the latter does not affect the regulations of the frontier police.

Article 10. The Dominican Republic does not renounce the right to resort to the procedures for pacific settlement of international disputes that may arise from the exercise of territorial asylum.

Mexico

The delegation of Mexico makes express reservation to Articles 9 and 10 of the Convention regarding territorial asylum because they are contrary to the individual guarantees enjoyed by all the inhabitants of the Republic in accordance with the Political Constitution of Mexico.

Peru

The delegation of Peru makes reservation to the text of Article 13 of the Convention regarding Territorial Asylum, insofar as it differs from Article 6 of the draft proposal of the Inter-American Council of Jurists, with which the delegation concurs.

Honduras

The delegation of Honduras gives its approval to the Convention regarding Territorial Asylum with reservations with respect to those articles opposed to the Constitution and to the laws in force in the republic of Honduras.

Argentina

The delegation of Argentina has voted in favour of the Convention regarding Territorial Asylum, but makes express reservations in regard to Article 7, as it believes that the latter does not duly consider nor satisfactorily resolve the problem arising from the exercise, on the part of political asylees, of the right of freedom of expression of thought.

CONVENTION ON DIPLOMATIC ASYLUM

Signed in Caracas on 28 March 1954 at the Tenth Inter-American Conference

Text: OAS Official Records, OEA/Ser.X/1. Treaty Series 34

The Governments of the Member States of the Organization of American States, desirous of concluding a Convention on Diplomatic Asylum, have agreed to the following articles:

Article 1

Asylum granted in legations, war vessels, and military camps or aircraft, to persons being sought for political reasons or for political offenses shall be respected by the territorial State in accordance with the provisions of this Convention.

For the purposes of this Convention, a legation is any seat of a regular diplomatic mission, the residence of chiefs of mission, and the premises provided by them for the dwelling places of asylees when the number of the latter exceeds the normal capacity of the buildings.

War vessels or military aircraft that may be temporarily in shipyards, arsenals, or shops for repair may not constitute a place of asylum.

Article 2

Every State has the right to grant asylum; but it is not obligated to do so or to state its reasons for refusing it.

Article 3

It is not lawful to grant asylum to persons who, at the time of requesting it, are under indictment or on trial for common offenses or have been convicted by competent regular courts and have not served the respective sentence, nor to deserters from land, sea, and air forces, save when the acts giving rise to the request for asylum, whatever the case may be, are clearly of a political nature.

Persons included in the foregoing paragraph who de facto enter a place that is suitable as an asylum shall be invited to leave or, as the case may be, shall be surrendered to the local authorities, who may not try them for political offenses committed prior to the time of the surrender.

Article 4

It shall rest with the State granting asylum to determine the nature of the offense or the motives for the persecution.

Article 5

Asylum may not be granted except in urgent cases and for the period of time strictly necessary for the asylee to depart from the country with the guarantees granted by the Government of the territorial State, to the end that his life, liberty, or personal integrity may not be endangered, or that the asylee's safety is ensured in some other way.

Article 6

Urgent cases are understood to be those, among others, in which the individual is being sought by persons or mobs over whom the authorities have lost control, or by the authorities themselves, and is in danger of being deprived of his life or liberty because of political persecution and cannot, without risk, ensure his safety in any other way.

Article 7

If a case of urgency is involved, it shall rest with the State granting asylum to determine the degree of urgency of the case.

Article 8

The diplomatic representative, commander of a warship, military camp, or military airship, shall, as soon as possible after asylum has been granted, report the fact to the Minister of Foreign Affairs of the territorial State, or to the local administrative authority if the case arose outside the Capital.

Article 9

The official furnishing asylum shall take into account the information furnished to him by the territorial government in forming his judgment as to the nature of the offense or the existence of related common crimes; but this decision to continue the asylum or to demand a safe-conduct for the asylee shall be respected.

Article 10

The fact that the Government of the territorial State is not recognized by the State granting asylum shall not prejudice the application of the present Convention, and no act carried out by virtue of this Convention shall imply recognition.

Article 11

The Government of the territorial State may, at any time, demand that the asylee be withdrawn from the country, for which purpose the said State shall grant a safe-conduct and the guarantees stipulated in Article 5.

Article 12

Once asylum has been granted, the State granting asylum may request that the asylee be allowed to depart for foreign territory, and the territorial State is under obligation to grant immediately, except in case of force majeure, the necessary guarantees, referred to in Article 5, as well as the corresponding safe-conduct.

Article 13

In the cases referred to in the preceding articles the State granting asylum may require that the guarantees be given in writing, and may take into account, in determining the rapidity of the journey, the actual conditions of danger involved in the departure of the asylee.

The State granting asylum has the right to transfer the asylee out of the country. The territorial State may point out the preferable route for the departure of the asylee, but this does not imply determining the country of destination.

If the asylum is granted on board a warship or military airship, departure may be made therein, but complying with the previous requisite of obtaining the appropriate safe-conduct.

Article 14

The State granting asylum cannot be held responsible for the prolongation of asylum caused by the need for obtaining the information required to determine whether or not the said asylum is proper, or whether there are circumstances that might endanger the safety of the asylee during the journey to a foreign country.

Article 15

When, in order to transfer an asylee to another country it may be necessary to traverse the territory of a State that is a party to this Convention, transit shall be authorized by the latter, the only requisite being the presentation, through diplomatic channels, of a safe-conduct, duly countersigned and bearing a notation of his status as asylee by the diplomatic mission that granted asylum.

En route, the asylee shall be considered under the protection of the State granting asylum.

Article 16

Asylees may not be landed at any point in the territorial State or at any place near thereto, except for exigencies of transportation.

Article 17

Once the departure of the asylee has been carried out, the State granting asylum is not bound to settle him in its territory; but it may not return him to his country of origin, unless this is the express wish of the asylee.

If the territorial State informs the official granting asylum of its intention to request the subsequent extradition of the asylee, this shall not prejudice the application of any provision of the present Convention. In that event, the asylee shall remain in the territory of the State granting asylum until such time as the formal request for extradition is received, in accordance with the juridical principles governing that institution in the State granting asylum. Preventive surveillance over the asylee may not exceed thirty days.

Payment of the expenses incurred by such transfer and of preventive control shall devolve upon the requesting State.

Article 18

The official furnishing asylum may not allow the asylee to perform acts contrary to the public peace or to interfere in the internal politics of the territorial State.

Article 19

If as a consequence of a rupture of diplomatic relations the diplomatic representative who granted asylum must leave the territorial State, he shall abandon it with the asylees.

If this is not possible for reasons independent of the wish of the asylee or the diplomatic representative, he must surrender them to the diplomatic mission of a third State, which is a party to this Convention, under the guarantees established in the Convention.

If this is also not possible, he shall surrender them to a State that is not a party to this Convention and that agrees to maintain the asylum. The territorial State is to respect the said asylum.

Article 20

Diplomatic asylum shall not be subject to reciprocity. Every person is under its protection, whatever his nationality.

Article 21

The present Convention shall be open for signature by the Member States of the Organization of American States and shall be ratified by the signatory States in accordance with their respective constitutional procedures.

Article 22

The original instrument, whose texts in the English, French, Spanish, and Portuguese languages are equally authentic, shall be deposited in the Pan American Union, which shall send certified copies to the governments for the purpose of ratification. The instruments of ratification shall be deposited in the Pan American Union, and the said organization shall notify the signatory governments of the said deposit.

Article 23

The present Convention shall enter into force among the States that ratify it in the order in which their respective ratifications are deposited.

Article 24

The present Convention shall remain in force indefinitely, but may be denounced by any of the signatory States by giving advance notice of one year, at the end of which period it shall cease to have effect for the denouncing State, remaining in force, however, among the remaining signatory States. The denunciation shall be transmitted to the Pan American Union, which shall inform the other signatory States thereof.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the undersigned Plenipotentiaries, having presented their plenary powers, which have been found in good and due form, sign this Convention, in the name of their respective Governments, in the city of Caracas, this twenty-eighth day of March, one thousand nine hundred and fifty-four.

Here follow the signatures of the Plenipotentiaries.

RESERVATIONS

Guatemala

We make an express reservation to Article 2 wherein it declares that the States are not obligated to grant asylum; because we uphold a broad, firm concept of the right to asylum.

Likewise, we make an express reservation to the final paragraph of Article 20 (Twenty), because we maintain that any person, without any discrimination whatsoever, has the right to the protection of asylum.

Uruguay

The government of Uruguay makes a reservation to Article 2, in the part that stipulates that the authority granting asylum, is, in no case, obligated to grant asylum nor to state its reasons for refusing it. It likewise makes a reservation to that part of Article 15 that stipulates: "the only requisite being the presentation, through diplomatic channels, of a safe-conduct, duly countersigned and bearing a notation of his status as asylee by the diplomatic mission that granted asylum. En route, the asylee shall be considered under the protection of the State granting asylum". Finally, it makes a reservation to the second paragraph of Article 20, since the government of Uruguay understands that all persons have the right to asylum, whatever their sex, nationality, belief, or religion.

Dominican Republic

The Dominican Republic subscribes to the above Convention with the following reservations:

First: The Dominican Republic does not agree to the provisions contained in Article 7 and those following with respect to the unilateral determination of the urgency by the State granting asylum; and Second: The provisions of this Convention shall not be applicable, consequently, insofar as the Dominican Republic is concerned, to any controversies that may arise between the territorial State and the State granting asylum, that refer specifically to the absence of a serious situation or the non-existence of a true act of persecution against the asylee by the local authorities.

Honduras

The delegation of Honduras subscribes to the Convention on Diplomatic Asylum with reservations with respect to those articles that are in violation of the Constitution and laws in force in the Republic of Honduras.

SAN JOSÉ DECLARATION ON REFUGEES AND DISPLACED PERSONS

Adopted on 5-7 December 1994 by the International Colloquium in Commemoration of the “Tenth Anniversary of the Cartagena Declaration on Refugees” at San José

INTRODUCTION

The 1984 “Cartagena Declaration on Refugees” was a key instrument in the search for durable solutions to the problems faced by thousands of Central Americans forced to leave their homes as a consequence of generalized violence that resulted from the serious conflicts in the region during the 1980s. At the same time, it has inspired the legal treatment of similar cases in several South American countries, and its expanded definition of “refugee” has been incorporated into the national legislation or administrative practices concerning refugees in various countries in the region.

Taking into account the positive impact of the Cartagena Declaration, the Executive Committee of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, in its Conclusion No. 71 (o) (XLIV) of 1993, encouraged UNHCR to participate actively in the commemoration of its tenth anniversary. Similarly, the General Assembly of the Organization of American States adopted, in its 24th Session, a Resolution on Refugees, Returnees and Displaced in the American Hemisphere, expressing its support for such an initiative.

A Colloquium to commemorate the tenth anniversary of the Cartagena Declaration on Refugees was held in San José, Costa Rica, from 5 to 7 December 1994. The Colloquium was co-organized by UNHCR and the Inter-American Institute of Human Rights, under the auspices of the Government of Costa Rica. Government Officials and experts from more than 20 American and Caribbean countries attended the Colloquium. As a result, participants in the Colloquium adopted the “San José Declaration on Refugees and Displaced Persons”, which in addition to reiterating the validity of the principles embodied in the Cartagena Declaration, deals with the current situation of refugees and other populations affected by violence, and proposes guidelines for the search of solutions to their plight. The San José Declaration provides an important input for the legal analysis and treatment of those persons who are forced to leave their homes because of persecution or generalized violence, foreign aggression, internal conflicts, massive violations of human rights or other circumstances which have seriously disturbed public order.

As the Cartagena Declaration of 1984, the San José Declaration is predestined to become an important precedent in the subject of refugees and displaced persons, and its influence will probably reach the whole American continent and the Caribbean. This publication is aimed at its widest dissemination and its application by the authorities of the countries affected. At the same time, we hope that the dissemination of instruments such as the Cartagena Declaration and the San José Declaration, as well as the application of the principles contained therein, will be accompanied by the necessary support of the International Community as a whole. This would be the only way to attain durable solutions to the acute problems faced by refugees and displaced persons in the American Hemisphere.

CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

I

Commemorating the Tenth Anniversary of the Cartagena Declaration on Refugees, which has, for the past decade, proven its validity and usefulness in addressing the problems of human displacement in the region;

Recognizing that the said Declaration constitutes an efficient instrument of international protection by serving as a source of guidance for the humanitarian practices of States and by encouraging the adoption of legislative and administrative measures based on the principles contained therein;

Recognizing the importance of the Central American experience which has, amongst other achievements, enabled the mass return of thousands of refugees and the closing of the majority of camps in the region, thus providing opportunities for finding appropriate solutions to a regional crisis;

Stressing that, pursuant to the adoption of the Cartagena Declaration, a significant process in the search for durable solutions has been initiated, whereby such solutions have been integrated within the framework of convergence between respect for human rights, peace-building and linkage with economic and social development;

Appreciating the generous efforts made, with the valuable support of the international community, during the past decade of economic and political crises, by countries of the region to provide protection and humanitarian treatment to persons forced to abandon their homes, while remaining determined to continue the concerted search for solutions to alleviate the human suffering of these persons and help them to resume normal life;

Confirming that the consolidation of democracy in the continent has laid the basis for finding solutions to the challenges of the past decade and for firmly addressing those of the present;

Underscoring the contribution made to this process by the Procedure for the Establishment of a Firm and Lasting Peace in Central America (Esquipulas II), as well as the Tripartite Commissions for Voluntary Repatriation, and the achievements made possible by the Declaration and Concerted Plan of Action in favour of Central American Refugees, Returnees and Displaced Persons adopted by the International Conference on Central American Refugees (CIREFCA), held in Guatemala City in May 1989; this experience being viewed as a guiding framework for dealing with similar situations in other regions of the world;

Appreciating the valuable contribution of the documents on Principles and Criteria for the Protection and Assistance to Central American Refugees, Returnees and Displaced Persons in Latin America (1989) and the Evaluation of the Practical Application of those Principles and Criteria (1994), which elaborated on the Cartagena Declaration;

Taking into consideration the influence which the Cartagena Declaration and its aforementioned related elaboration have had beyond the Central American region, through the incorporation of some of its provisions into legal measures and administrative practices of other Latin American countries, as well as in its widespread dissemination in academic circles of the Continent;

Recognizing the admirable efforts which the Inter-American Institute of Human Rights has made in identifying and promoting areas of convergence between International Refugee Law, International Human Rights Law, and International Humanitarian Law;

Welcoming the incorporation of the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) in the efforts to find solutions to the problems of refugees, returnees and displaced persons through their joint sponsorship of CIREFCA, other technical cooperation efforts and the initiation of human development programmes in favour of the affected populations;

Appreciating in particular the outstanding work of UNHCR in the region in fulfilment of its mandate, as well as the creative approach applied thereto, which has enabled the opening of a 'humanitarian space' which has favoured peace-building and the attainment of new horizons in the field of Refugee Law;

Noting with satisfaction the references made to the Cartagena Declaration and the accomplishments of CIREFCA by the General Assembly of the United Nations, the General Assembly of the Organization of American States, the Executive Committee of the High Commissioner's Programme, and other international fora;

Also bearing in mind the conclusions of the First Regional Forum on Gender Focus in working with Refugee, Returnee and Displaced Women (FOREFEM), held in Guatemala City in February 1992, as well as those of the Partnership in Action Conference between UNHCR and the non-governmental organizations (PARINAC, Caracas, June 1993 and Oslo, June 1994) which, together with the CIREFCA follow-up mechanisms, in the spirit of the Cartagena Declaration, have strengthened cooperation with non-governmental organizations and the beneficiary populations;

Recognizing the challenges posed by the new situations of human displacement in Latin America and the Caribbean, including, in particular, the increase in internal displacement and forced migration due to causes other than those provided for in the Cartagena Declaration;

Considering that human rights violations constitute one of the causes of displacement and that, therefore, the safeguarding of those rights is an integral element for both the protection of the displaced and the search for durable solutions;

Also considering that the protection of human rights, and the strengthening of the democratic system are the best means of preventing conflict, refugee flows and serious humanitarian crises;

In compliance with the request to hold this Colloquium made in Conclusion No. 71 (XLIV) of the Executive Committee of the High Commissioner's Programme, as well as by the General Assembly of the Organization of American States at its 24th Session, and including the preparatory technical meetings of Caracas in March 1992, Montevideo in May 1993, and Cocoyoc in March 1994.

II

The participants in the Colloquium have reached the following conclusions:

First. To recognize the overriding importance of the Cartagena Declaration in addressing refugee situations generated by the Central American conflicts of the past decade, and, consequently, to stress the appropriateness of resorting to the Declaration in order to find solutions both to pending problems and to the new challenges posed by uprootedness in Latin America and the Caribbean.

Second. To reaffirm the validity of the principles contained in the Declaration as elaborated in the documents Principles and Criteria for the Protection and Assistance to Central American Refugees, Returnees and Displaced Persons in Latin America (1989), as well as in the Evaluation of the Practical Application of those Principles and Criteria (1994), and to reiterate, in particular, the value of the refugee definition contained in the Cartagena Declaration, which, by being based upon objective criteria, has constituted an effective humanitarian instrument in support of State practice in extending international protection to persons in need thereof, beyond the scope of the 1951 Convention and the 1967 Protocol.

Third. To stress the complementary nature and convergence between the systems of protection to persons established in International Human Rights Law, International Humanitarian Law and International Refugee Law, and, with the aim of establishing a common legal framework, to reiterate the convenience for those States which have not yet done so to adhere to the pertinent international instruments. In this context, the Colloquium makes an appeal to the States party to the 1969 American Convention on Human Rights to adopt the domestic measures required to ensure the full application and promotion of its provisions, as well as supervision by the pertinent bodies provided for therein.

Fourth. To encourage the commitment of the governments, non-governmental organizations and the jurists of the region in favour of the promotion, development and harmonious application of international human rights law, humanitarian law, and refugee law.

Fifth. To urge governments to encourage, with the collaboration of UNHCR, a process of progressive harmonization of rules, criteria and procedures concerning refugees, based on the 1951 Convention and the 1967 Protocol relating to the Status of Refugees, the American Convention on Human Rights, and the Cartagena Declaration.

Sixth. To encourage governments to seek humanitarian solutions, within a coordinated framework, to pending problems of refugees and persons displaced as a result of situations which have now been resolved, or which are in the course of being resolved, by reinforcing voluntary repatriation and reintegration programmes in their places of origin, and considering, whenever possible, programmes to facilitate local integration, the issuance of essential documentation and the normalization of their migratory status, with the aim of preventing such problems from becoming new sources of tension and instability.

Seventh. To call upon governments to increase their region-wide cooperation in admitting refugee groups, including those fleeing from situations foreseen in the Cartagena Declaration, as well as to encourage concerted efforts to find solutions to the problems which generate such forced displacement.

Eighth. To reiterate the responsibility of the States to eliminate, with the support of the international community, the causes of forced mass exodus and, in this way, ensure that refugee status is only granted for as long as required.

Ninth. To underscore the importance of fostering full observance of economic, social and cultural rights, in an effort to contribute to their development and to their legal protection.

Tenth. To reaffirm that refugees as well as those persons who migrate for other reasons, including economic ones, have human rights which should be respected at all times and in all circumstances and places. These inalienable rights should be respected before, during and after their flight or return to their places of origin, with a view to ensuring their well-being and human dignity.

Eleventh. To stress the advisability of improving the situation of refugee and displaced children, taking into account the specific provisions in this regard set forth in the 1989 Convention on the Rights of the Child.

Twelfth. To underline the importance of addressing the needs of refugee and displaced women and girls, particularly those in a vulnerable situation, in the field of health, security, employment and education, as well as to encourage the inclusion of gender-based criteria in the examination of claims for refugee status.

Thirteenth. To recommend the full participation of affected populations, especially women's groups and indigenous communities, by encouraging the development of mechanisms which facilitate concerted action in the design and implementation of programmes aimed at resolving situations affecting refugees, returnees and displaced persons.

Fourteenth. To encourage an integrated approach to the solution of problems of forced displacement, particularly as regards voluntary return and repatriation, within the framework of coordinated efforts in order to ensure, in addition to the security and dignity of the beneficiaries, the durability of solutions. In this sense, reintegration and rehabilitation efforts should be linked to medium and long-term sustainable development efforts intended to alleviate and eradicate extreme poverty, satisfy human needs, and strengthen respect for human rights, with due regard for civil, political, economic, social and cultural rights.

Fifteenth. To stress the contribution of the United Nations and the Organization of American States to the peace process in Central America and the Caribbean through peacekeeping operations and mechanisms for verification of compliance with specific agreements in the field of human rights. At the same time, to urge the organizations responsible for those operations to favourably consider requests made by concerned States that they continue to carry out their activities.

Sixteenth. To affirm that the problem of the internally displaced, albeit the fundamental responsibility of the States of their nationality, is nevertheless of concern to the international community because it is a human rights issue which can be linked to prevention of causes which generate refugee flows. In this regard, persons in this situation should be assured of the following:

- (a) Application of human rights norms and, when applicable, International Humanitarian Law as well as, by analogy, certain relevant principles of Refugee Law, such as non-refoulement;
- (b) Recognition of the civilian character of displaced populations and of the humanitarian and apolitical nature of the treatment afforded to them;
- (c) Access to effective protection by the national authorities and to essential assistance, with the support of the international community;
- (d) Attention to those rights which are crucial for their survival, security and dignity, as well as other rights such as adequate documentation, ownership of land and other assets, and freedom of movement, including the voluntary nature of return; and
- (e) The possibility of attaining a dignified and safe solution to their displacement.

Seventeenth. To support the work of the Representative of the Secretary-General of the United Nations for the Internally Displaced; within this framework, to foster and contribute to the preparation of an international declaration founded on a set of principles and basic rules for the protection and humanitarian treatment of internally displaced persons whatever their situation or circumstances, without prejudice to the basic right to seek asylum in other countries.

Eighteenth. To note with particular interest the efforts initiated by the Permanent Consultative Group on Internally Displaced in the Americas, as a regional inter-agency forum dedicated to the study and consideration of the acute problems faced by the displaced within their own countries for reasons similar to those that result in refugee flows.

Nineteenth. To stress the positive contribution made by the churches, the non-governmental organizations and other sectors of civil society in providing assistance and protection to refugees, returnees and the displaced in Latin America and the Caribbean, through the coordination of their activities with those of the governments and the international organizations.

Twentieth. To call upon States to urge existing regional fora dealing with matters such as economic issues, security and protection of the environment to include in their agenda consideration of themes connected with refugees, other forced displaced populations and migrants.

Twenty-first. To urge governments and relevant international organizations to take account of the specific needs of indigenous populations affected by the situations of uprootedness, with due respect for their dignity, human rights, cultural identity and the links which they maintain with their ancestral lands. In situations of uprootedness, the affected population should be consulted directly and specialized approach and the full participation of indigenous populations in assistance programmes and in the planning of durable solutions in their favour, should be guaranteed.

Twenty-second. To support the efforts of the Latin American and Caribbean countries in the implementation of sustainable human development programmes, whose impact is crucial for both the prevention of and solution to the problems of uprootedness and forced migration; and to invite donor countries, financial institutions and the international community to collaborate in these efforts through technical and financial cooperation projects.

Twenty-third. To urge UNHCR to encourage the Latin American and Caribbean countries to disseminate and promote, at all possible levels, the norms relating to the protection of refugees, including those that emanate from the Cartagena Declaration, and their linkage with norms of International Humanitarian Law and, in general, to human rights; and to urge the Inter-American Institute of Human Rights to continue its dissemination and promotion efforts in this regard, in close collaboration with other competent organizations.

III

The participants in the Colloquium therefore,

Recommend:

- That the foregoing Conclusions be duly taken into account in the search for solutions to pending problems related to refugees, returnees and displaced persons, and in addressing new challenges currently being faced throughout the continent;
- That the present document be proclaimed as the San José Declaration on Refugees and Displaced Persons;
- That the working documents, presentations and reports, as well as the Conclusions and Recommendations adopted and other documents of the Colloquium, be published, and that the Inter-American Institute of Human Rights, the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, academic institutions and non-governmental organizations adopt the necessary measures for the widest distribution of this publication;
- That UNHCR and the Inter-American Institute of Human Rights, with the support of other pertinent organizations, be requested to sponsor a study of the scope of Article 22 (7) of the American Convention on Human Rights, as it relates the right to asylum, as integrating the right to seek and be granted asylum (Refugio) on the basis of those causes set forth in the refugee definition contained in the Cartagena Declaration, and that this study be subsequently submitted to the consideration of States;
- That the co-organizers be entrusted with officially forwarding the contents of the present Declaration to the Secretary-General of the United Nations, to the Secretary-General of the Organization of American States and to the Heads of State and Government of the American Continent, so that they in turn submit them to the competent organs;
- That the participants be requested to forward the contents of the present Declaration to their respective governments, so as to contribute to the application of its contents, to its dissemination as well as to its presentation to the Executive Committee of the UNHCR's Programme;
- That an extension of the mandate of the Representative of the Secretary-General for Internally Displaced Persons be promoted, and that he considers incorporating the relevant Conclusions of this

Colloquium in the reports he presents to the United Nations Human Rights Commission and the United Nations General Assembly;

- That the co-organizers and the Government of Costa Rica, with the support of UNDP, intercede before the World Bank, the International Monetary Fund and the Inter-American Development Bank, as well as before bilateral aid agencies, in order for them to include the specific needs of displaced populations within programmes aimed at the alleviation and eradication of extreme poverty;
- That the message sent to the Colloquium by the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights be acknowledged with thanks, and that the contents of the present Declaration be forwarded to him.

Finally, the participants in the Colloquium express their deep appreciation to the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees and to the Inter-American Institute of Human Rights and, in addition, to the Government of Costa Rica for initiating and carrying out this important event. The participants express their gratitude for the personal interest shown by the President of Costa Rica, Mr. José María Figueres Olsen, and took the liberty to ask him, as he deems appropriate, to inform the participants of the Summit of the Americas, to be held in Miami from 9 to 11 December 1994, about the celebration of this Colloquium.

RIO DE JANEIRO DECLARATION ON THE INSTITUTION OF REFUGE

Adopted on 10 November 2000

The Ministries of Interior of Mercosur, Bolivia and Chile concerned that international protection should be given to individuals persecuted for reasons of race, nationality, religion, membership of a particular social group, political opinion or victims of serious and generalised violation of human rights, assembled under the framework of the “VIII Meeting of the Ministries of Interior of MERCOSUR”:

- Recognising that problems of racism, xenophobia and political intolerance have created refugee flows in the world,
- Recognising that people escaping situations of persecution and conflict represent a different category from those that emigrate due to economic or personal reasons,
- Considering the universal right to seek refuge, consecrated in article 14 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights,
- Considering that countries of Mercosur, Bolivia and Chile are signatories to the Convention relating to the Status of Refugees of 1951 and the additional Protocol of 1967,
- Considering that all the countries of the region assist refugees with the collaboration of and in cooperation with the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees – UNHCR,
- Taking into account the need of the countries of Mercosur, Bolivia and Chile to have instruments establishing harmonised norms to control the reception, protection and rights of refugees, and
- Considering the Plan of Action presented in the Americas Summit signed by 34 Heads of State in attendance at Santiago de Chile on 19th April 1998, which mentions specifically the human rights of all immigrants including refugees.

Proclaim:

1. It is very advisable that the Contracting States of Mercosur, Bolivia and Chile, in their capacity as associate countries, have a precise legal norm on refuge, with arrangements likely to establish harmonised procedures on the matter.
2. Such regulation should consider the general principles on reception, protection and assistance of refugees consecrated in international instruments.
3. Contracting and associate States will study the possibility of including in the refuge definition the protection of victims of serious and generalised human rights violations.
4. Contracting and associate States will not apply refoulement measures to a refugee who has been recognised in another Contracting or associate State, to a country where his life, freedom or physical integrity are threatened by reasons of race, nationality, membership of a particular social group, political opinion or serious and generalised violation of human rights, according to the international norms governing this issue.
5. In so far as possible, Contracting and associate States should have a national body with the participation of the civil society, for implementing their policies on refugee issues.

MEXICO DECLARATION AND PLAN OF ACTION TO STRENGTHEN THE INTERNATIONAL PROTECTION OF REFUGEES IN LATIN AMERICA

Adopted in Mexico City on 16 November 2004

Declaration

The Governments of participating Latin American countries,

Gathered in Mexico City to celebrate the twentieth anniversary of the Cartagena Declaration on Refugees of 1984, that reinvigorated the generous tradition of asylum in Latin America,

Recognizing Latin America's contribution to the progressive development of international refugee law beginning in 1889 with the Treaty on International Penal Law and continuing with, among other instruments, the American Declaration of the Rights and Duties of Man of 1948, the American Convention on Human Rights of 1969, the Cartagena Declaration on Refugees of 1984, the document entitled "Principles and Criteria for the Protection of and Assistance to Central American Refugees, Returnees and Displaced Persons in Latin America" (CIREFCA-1989), the 1988 Additional Protocol to the American Convention on Human Rights in the Area of Economic, Social and Cultural Rights "Protocol of San Salvador" and the San Jose Declaration on Refugees and Displaced Persons of 1994, as well as the doctrine and jurisprudence in this field developed, respectively, by the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights and the Inter-American Court of Human Rights,

Reaffirming their solemn commitment towards persons entitled to international protection in Latin America,

Emphasizing that humanism and solidarity are fundamental principles that should continue to guide State policies on refugees in Latin America,

Reaffirming the fundamental human right to seek and receive asylum established in Article XXVII of the American Declaration of the Rights and Duties of Man of 1948, and Article 22(7) of the American Convention on Human Rights of 1969,

Reaffirming also the enduring validity of the principles and norms contained in the 1951 Convention relating to the Status of Refugees and its Protocol of 1967, as well as the complementary nature of international refugee law, international human rights law, and international humanitarian law and, hence, the importance of using, according to the principle of pro homine, the norms and principles of these three bodies of international law to strengthen the protection of refugees and other persons entitled to international protection,

Recognizing the jus cogens nature of the principle of non-refoulement, including non-rejection at the border, the cornerstone of international refugee law, which is contained in the 1951 Convention relating to the Status of Refugees and its Protocol of 1967, and also set out in Article 22 (8) of the American Convention on Human Rights and Article 3 of the 1984 Convention against Torture and other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment, and the commitment of Latin American countries to keep their borders open in order to guarantee the protection and security of those who have a right to enjoy international protection,

Reaffirming the obligation of States to respect the principle of non-discrimination and to take measures to prevent, combat and eliminate all forms of discrimination and xenophobia, guaranteeing the exercise of the rights of all persons under the jurisdiction of the State without any distinction on the grounds of race, colour, sex, language, religion, political or other opinions, national or social origin, economic status, birth or any other social status, including refugee status or status of others in need of international protection,

Requesting the media to promote the values of solidarity, respect, tolerance and multiculturalism, underscoring the humanitarian plight of victims of forced displacement and their fundamental rights,

Reaffirming the principles of the indivisibility and interdependence of all human rights and the need to provide comprehensive protection to refugees that guarantees the full enjoyment of their rights, in particular, civil, economic, social and cultural rights,

Recognizing that family unity is a fundamental human right of refugees, and recommending, therefore, the adoption of mechanisms to guarantee its respect,

Recognizing the enduring relevance of the Cartagena Declaration on Refugees of 1984 and its importance in continuing to guide public policies for refugee protection and the search for durable solutions to refugee situations faced by Latin America at the present time,

Recognizing the importance of the principles contained in the Cartagena Declaration on Refugees to the provision of protection and finding durable solutions and the need to carry out a more detailed analysis of its recommendations,

Recommending, in the framework of the progressive harmonization of legislation relating to refugees within ongoing regional integration processes, the due incorporation of the principles and norms contained in the 1951 Convention relating to the Status of Refugees and its Protocol of 1967, the American Convention on Human Rights and other relevant international instruments,

Acknowledging the significant progress of some States in the Latin American region in establishing efficient mechanisms for determining refugee status and, likewise, affirming the importance of continuing to strengthen these mechanisms,

Encouraging States that have not yet adopted refugee legislation to promulgate such legislation as soon as possible and to request for this purpose UNHCR's technical advice; and States that are in the process of amending their legislation to align it with international and regional standards relating to refugees and human rights, so as to bridge any gaps that may exist between State practice and such standards,

Recognizing the responsibility of States to provide international protection to refugees, as well as the need for international technical and financial cooperation to find durable solutions within the framework of a commitment to consolidate the rule of law in Latin American countries, universal respect for human rights and the principles of international solidarity and responsibility sharing,

Affirming that national security policies and the fight against terrorism should be framed within respect for domestic law and international instruments for the protection of refugees and of human rights in general,

Noting with concern that in some parts of Latin America the internal displacement of persons as well as refugee flows persist,

Highlighting that, in view of the gravity of the problem of forced displacement in the region, it is necessary to address its causes and, at the same time, develop policies and pragmatic solutions to provide effective protection to those who need it,

Reiterating Conclusion 16 of the 1994 San Jose Declaration on Refugees and Displaced Persons which affirmed that "the problem of the internally displaced, albeit the fundamental responsibility of the States of their nationality, is nevertheless of concern to the international community because it is a human rights issue which can be linked to prevention of causes which generate refugee flows..."

Recognizing that persecution can be related to gender and age of refugees; and the need to provide protection and humanitarian assistance in keeping with the differentiated needs of men and women, boys and girls, adolescents and elderly persons, persons with disabilities, minorities and ethnic groups,

Recognizing the existence of mixed migratory movements, including persons who can qualify for refugee status and who require specific treatment, with due legal safeguards to guarantee their identification and access to refugee status determination procedures; and therefore highlighting the importance of continuing to take into account the issue of refugee protection in regional multilateral fora in the field of migration and, in particular, the Regional Conference on Migration (Puebla Process) and the South American Conference on Migration,

Highlighting the role in refugee protection of the Ombudsmen and Human Rights Commissioners, understood hereafter as national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights, as independent state entities that monitor the proper functioning of public administration and the promotion and protection of fundamental human rights,

Highlighting, moreover, the decisive contribution of non-governmental organizations and other sectors of civil society to the protection and assistance of refugees and other persons in need of protection, including their work in providing advice for the development of policies regarding protection and durable solutions,

Recognizing the need to continue promoting international refugee law, international human rights law and international humanitarian law, as well as to disseminate good practices relating to protection and durable solutions in Latin America,

Underscoring the importance of strengthening cooperation between the organs of the Inter-American human rights system and UNHCR, aimed at more effective protection of refugees and other persons in need of protection and urging them to continue strengthening this collaboration,

Convinced that, despite the significant progress in the protection of refugees in Latin America, it is necessary for States to redouble their efforts to provide protection, assistance and find adequate solutions for refugees in the region, within a spirit of international solidarity and responsibility sharing with the support of the international community,

Underscoring that voluntary repatriation is the durable solution par excellence for refugees and the fundamental need for governments of countries of origin to take appropriate measures, with the support of the international community, to guarantee the protection of its nationals who have repatriated, in order to ensure that repatriation takes place in safety and dignity,

Reiterating to States, international organizations and civil society the importance of fully involving uprooted populations in the design and implementation of assistance and protection programmes, recognizing and valuing their human potential,

Appealing to the international community, represented by the United Nations, the Inter-American system and, especially, donor countries, to continue supporting this important effort for the protection of refugees by Latin American States with the cooperation of UNHCR and civil society,

Taking note of the conclusions adopted by consensus in the four sub-regional meetings held in Brasilia, Brazil; San Jose, Costa Rica; Cartagena de Indias and Bogota, Colombia, and expressing the desire to put into practice the valuable recommendations deriving from the preparatory process, whose implementation will contribute to Latin America's compliance with the Agenda for Protection, adopted by UNHCR's Executive Committee in 2002,

Resolve,

To approve this Declaration and of Plan of Action as "Mexico Declaration and Plan of Action to Strengthen International Protection of Refugees in Latin America".

To request the support of UNHCR and the international community for the implementation of the Plan of Action, including the programmes relating to durable solutions.

To welcome and to support the proposal made by Brazil for the establishment of a regional resettlement programme in Latin America.

To urge UNHCR to request of States, in the exercise of its supervisory responsibility, periodic reports on the situation of refugees in the Latin American countries and, in the signatory countries of Latin America, the status of implementation of the 1951 Convention relating to the Status of Refugees and its Protocol of 1967.

To request UNHCR to redouble its support to Latin American countries for the local integration of refugees.

To take due account of the present Declaration and Plan of Action in order to address the solution of the situation of refugees in Latin America.

To request the organizers and co-sponsors of this event to publish a book containing all of the background documents, reports of the preparatory meetings and the Mexico Declaration and Plan of Action, asking the Government of Mexico, UNHCR and the competent organs of the Organization of American States to adopt the measures required for its broad dissemination.

To request that UNHCR officially transmit the Mexico Declaration and Plan of Action to the Heads of State of the participating countries for its broad dissemination.

To request the President of the United Mexican States, Vicente Fox Quesada, should he consider it appropriate, to provide information regarding the holding of this event at the XIV Ibero-American Summit that will take place on 18 and 19 November of [2004] in San Jose, Costa Rica.

Mexico City, 16 November 2004

Mexico Plan of Action to Strengthen International Protection of Refugees in Latin America

PREAMBLE

On the occasion of the twentieth anniversary of the Cartagena Declaration on Refugees, the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), together with the Norwegian Refugee Council, the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights, the Inter-American Court of Human Rights, the Inter-American Institute of Human Rights and the governments of Brazil, Costa Rica and Mexico, brought together governments of Latin America countries, experts and different sectors of civil society to analyze jointly the main challenges to the protection of refugees and other persons in need of international protection today in Latin America, and to identify courses of action to assist countries of asylum in the search for appropriate solutions within the pragmatic and principled spirit of the Cartagena Declaration on Refugees.

To this end, four sub-regional preparatory meetings were held in San Jose, Costa Rica (12-13 August), Brasilia, Brazil (26-27 August), Cartagena de Indias, Colombia (16-17 September) and Bogota, Colombia (6-7 October), in which the refugee situation in each region was analyzed. As the outcome of each gathering, a report was adopted by consensus. Based on the conclusions and recommendations of these regional preparatory meetings, the participants have prepared the following Plan of Action aimed at continuing to strengthen mechanisms for protection and the search for solutions for refugees and other persons in need of protection in the region.

CHAPTER I

THE SITUATION OF REFUGEES IN LATIN AMERICA

Upon the commemoration of the twentieth Anniversary of the Cartagena Declaration on Refugees, there are still situations that generate forced displacement in Latin America, particularly in the Andean Region. In addition to a growing number of Latin American refugees, the region also provides protection and durable solutions to refugees from other continents.

With the exception of the Andean Region, where cross-border movements are driven by a humanitarian crisis characterized by forced displacement within Colombia's borders and which variously affects neighbouring countries and other countries of the region, at the present time asylum-seekers and refugees are caught up within migratory flows across the continent.

Furthermore, the magnitude of forced displacement in the Andean Region is made less visible in a context where many people in need of international protection opt for anonymity and dispersion, and therefore, do not formally request international protection.

At the same time, pilot resettlement programmes for refugees recognized in other parts of the world have been launched in the Southern Cone.

As a result, various situations co-exist in Latin America at present: 1) countries that continue to receive a small number of asylum-seekers and refugees immersed in regional and continental migratory flows; 2) countries hosting a significant number of recognized refugees and/or asylum-seekers; and 3) countries with emerging resettlement programmes. All three situations may converge in some countries of the region.

The normative and institutional framework for the protection of refugees has been strengthened in the last twenty years. A large number of Latin American countries have enshrined the right to asylum in their constitutions and the large majority of countries are party to the 1951 Convention relating to the Status of Refugees and/or its Protocol of 1967. Likewise, the large majority have national bodies, norms and procedures for determining refugee status. Some countries recognize that persecution can be related to gender and age, and take into consideration the differentiated protection needs of men and women, boys and girls, adolescents and elderly persons. However, some of these national mechanisms are still at incipient stages of development and require greater human, technical and financial resources to be operative, including training on international refugee law so as to guarantee fair and efficient procedures.

The Cartagena Declaration's refugee definition has been included in the national legislation of a significant number of countries. Nevertheless, during the preparatory process it was observed that there is a need to clarify and specify the criteria for its interpretation, in particular, the restrictive interpretation of the exclusion clauses, the interpretation of the specific grounds and their application in individual cases, using the jurisprudence of human rights organs and tribunals and taking into account the legitimate security concerns of States, through a broad and open dialogue, with a view to systematizing doctrine and state practice.

The enjoyment by refugees of their fundamental rights determines the quality of asylum. The quality of asylum is likewise vital to finding durable solutions to the plight of refugees. To the extent that refugees find effective protection in a receiving country, they will not be obliged to seek protection in third countries through secondary and/or irregular movements. At the same time, it is necessary for refugees' countries of origin, with the cooperation of the international community, to continue to make efforts to create adequate conditions for the safe and dignified return of its nationals who are refugees.

Taking into account the socio-economic conditions prevailing in the countries of asylum, as well as the distinct profiles of refugees and other persons in need of protection in the region, it is necessary to design and implement creative new policies to facilitate the search for adequate solutions. This requires devising new strategies to achieve self-sufficiency and local integration, both in urban centres as well as border areas, as well as the strategic use of resettlement, in a framework of regional solidarity.

In parallel, it is important to strengthen humanitarian and social programmes in border areas, emphasizing a geographic approach instead of a population approach, so that receiving communities benefit on equal footing with refugees and other persons in need of protection.

CHAPTER II

THE INTERNATIONAL PROTECTION OF REFUGEES

1. Research and Doctrinal Development:

- (a) The preparatory meetings considered it appropriate to acknowledge Latin America's contribution to the progressive development of international refugee law. In this respect, regional instruments such as the Cartagena Declaration on Refugees, the 1948 American Declaration of the Rights and Duties of Man and the 1969 American Convention on Human Rights, as well as the doctrine and jurisprudence developed, respectively, by the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights and the Inter-American Court of Human Rights have contributed to improve the situation of refugees in Latin America.
- (b) In this regard, note is taken of an additional recommendation reiterated in all of the preparatory meetings regarding the strengthening of cooperation among States in the region, as well as between the States and UNHCR, the human rights bodies of the Inter-American system and academic and research institutions in Latin America in the fields of interdisciplinary research, promotion and development of international refugee law.
- (c) Within this cooperation framework, it was recommended to initiate a consultative process aimed at clarifying the content and scope of Conclusion III of the Cartagena Declaration on Refugees, in order to strengthen the international protection of refugees in Latin America. In this respect, the development of a Handbook on Procedures and Criteria for Application of the Refugee Definition of the Cartagena Declaration is foreseen.
- (d) To deepen knowledge of international refugee law, it is proposed that UNHCR implement the following projects, in cooperation with the human rights bodies of the Inter-American System, as well as research and academic institutions:

- Legal Research Series on "The International Protection of Refugees in Latin America",

- Handbook on “Procedures and Criteria for Application of the Cartagena Declaration’s Refugee Definition”, and
- Glossary on “Concepts and Legal Terminology of International Refugee Law”.

2. Training and Institutional Capacity-building:

(a) The noteworthy efforts of countries in Latin America over the past 20 years to establish an institutional framework to ensure the right to seek and enjoy asylum were acknowledged throughout the consultation process. However, deficiencies in the asylum systems, which make it more difficult for refugees and asylum-seekers to access effective protection, were also noted.

2.1. With the aim of contributing to a broader knowledge of the normative framework and its effective implementation, as well as facilitating the effective use of domestic legal remedies (administrative, judicial and constitutional) for the protection of the rights of asylum seekers and refugees, thus ensuring the right to seek and be granted asylum, it was agreed to request that UNHCR, in collaboration with the human rights bodies of the Inter-American System, the Inter-American Institute of Human Rights, universities and civil society organizations, and national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights, develop and implement a “Latin American Training Programme on International Refugee Protection”. This Programme will be directed towards State officials and members of civil society “protection networks”. The Programme will entail a rigorous selection of participants, and a teaching methodology combining on-the-job training, distance-learning, self- and on-campus study, along with the development of precise evaluation and impact indicators, and proper follow-up of participants, among other technical aspects.

The Programme would give priority to:

- Presidents, members, legal advisers and interviewers of National Eligibility Commissions;
- State officials at borders and airports (police, military and migration staff);
- Judges, public Attorneys and Prosecutors;
- Professional staff from the national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights;
- Staff from non-governmental organizations and other civil society institutions participating in national and regional protection networks; and
- Legislators.

2.2. The difficulties faced by National Refugee Commissions or other institutions responsible for refugees in identifying specialized staff, setting up computerized registration systems, as well as the slow pace of refugee status determination procedures or the weaknesses of documentation processes owing, among other reasons, to lack of technical, human or financial resources were also noted. In this regard, States were urged to strengthen established refugee status determination mechanisms, allocating to them more financial resources, and UNHCR was requested to provide training and technical advice.

Recognizing the importance of National Refugee Commissions in guaranteeing effective protection, UNHCR is asked to cooperate with Latin American governments interested in drawing up regional or national projects within the framework and priorities of a “Programme to Strengthen National Refugee Commissions”. In this regard, it is necessary to note that the Andean countries that met in Cartagena de Indias on 16-17 September 2004, in the course of the preparatory process, agreed to submit for the consideration of the Andean Council of Ministers of Foreign Affairs the creation of an Andean Committee of Authorities responsible for Refugees.

The consultation process determined that strengthening of the Commissions could aim, inter alia, at:

- Guaranteeing respect for due process standards by ensuring asylum-seekers’ access to refugee status determination procedures, establishing effective remedies, taking decisions on claims within a reasonable timeframe and establishing procedures for appealing a decision to an independent body; and
- Simplifying procedures and facilitating the issuance of documentation.

2.3. The role of civil society organizations and national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights in Latin America in the defence and protection of refugees is widely acknowledged by the governments. This important work is carried out by non-governmental organizations and churches, in a spirit of cooperation with State institutions, including national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights, with UNHCR and other regional and international protection-oriented institutions. During the preparatory process, recommendations were made to further involve civil society in the design of public policies on refugees and to continue building their capacities.

It is therefore proposed to establish a “Programme to Strengthen National and Regional Protection Networks” to address the needs of non-governmental organizations, churches and national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights. This Programme could cover the following priority areas:

- Reinforcing legal advice and assistance services for refugees and asylum-seekers with a focus on meeting the specific needs of those seeking such services, whether they be men, women, boys, girls, adolescents, elderly persons, persons with disabilities, indigenous persons or other categories of persons;
- Reinforcing awareness of international refugee law and human rights law;
- Systematizing and disseminating best practices and successful programmes developed by some protection networks; and
- Exchanging experiences among the various protection networks.

The following programmes are suggested within this area of Training and Institution-Building:

- Latin American Training Programme on International Protection of Refugees;
- Programme to Strengthen National Refugee Commissions;
- Programme to Strengthen National and Regional Protection Networks.

CHAPTER III

DURABLE SOLUTIONS

The preparatory meetings identified operational priorities in the different sub-regions and countries of the region. It was noted that Latin America has a broad tradition of protection and solidarity toward those who have been persecuted and has been able to find solutions for its own refugees within the sub-continent. It was acknowledged that voluntary repatriation is the ideal solution for refugees, as an individual right to be exercised in a voluntary manner in conditions of safety and dignity. Furthermore, the current need to facilitate self-sufficiency and local integration for an increasing number of refugees, and the challenge that this represents to States, was underlined.

The preparatory process reiterated the need for international cooperation, in keeping with the principles of solidarity and responsibility-sharing, as a means to achieve effective durable solutions, as well as to disseminate best practices in the area of durable solutions in the region, promoting south-south cooperation and the creative approach of the 1984 Cartagena Declaration on Refugees.

In view of the current regional context, two situations were highlighted as requiring urgent attention and international support: the situation of growing numbers of urban refugees living in large urban centres in Latin America; and the situation of a large number of Colombian citizens living in border areas between Colombia and its neighbours Ecuador, Panama and Venezuela, most of whom are undocumented and in need of urgent protection and humanitarian assistance, owing to their acute vulnerability.

1. “Solidarity Cities” Programme for Self-Sufficiency and Local Integration

Urban refugees hail from a wide range of nationalities, with a small, but growing, percentage of refugees coming from other continents and cultures. These refugees predominantly settle in urban centres and their self-sufficiency and socio-economic integration remain a challenge for the States and civil society, especially given the economic difficulties faced by the countries of asylum themselves. When designing integration projects, it is therefore necessary to bear in mind the difficult situation of host communities.

The preparatory process highlighted the following:

- (a) The political will of governments to facilitate the economic self-sufficiency of refugees;
- (b) The lack of resources and experience of state social welfare institutions to achieve this goal;
- (c) Recognition of the work and experience of civil society;
- (d) The need to create strategies appropriate to the reality of the asylum countries and to exchange best practices; and
- (e) The need for international technical and financial cooperation.

The preparatory meetings suggested that, in designing this Programme, due consideration should be given to the region's socio-economic realities, in terms of unemployment levels, poverty, and social exclusion, as well as to the socio-economic profiles of the beneficiaries. In the same vein, the following broad goals were mentioned:

- Fostering the generation of sources of employment, in particular, the establishment of micro-credit systems;
- Setting up mechanisms for the expedited issuance of documents and simplifying procedures for authentication and recognition of certificates and diplomas issued abroad; and
- Contemplating mechanisms for the participation of civil society and UNHCR in designing, implementing, monitoring and improving integration projects.

The “Solidarity Cities” Programme for Self-Sufficiency and Local Integration seeks to mitigate, to the extent possible, so-called “irregular or secondary movements”, but its main aim is to provide effective protection which encompasses enjoyment of social, economic and cultural rights and observance of the obligations of refugees. It would also aim at facilitating the implementation of public policies, within an integrated social strategy, with the technical cooperation of United Nations and civil society organizations, and the financial support of the international community, in order to integrate a number of refugees, to be determined, in a series of “pilot” urban centres in Latin America.

2. Integrated “Borders of Solidarity” Programme

In the third sub-regional preparatory meeting, held in Cartagena de Indias, Colombia (16-17 September 2004), representatives of the Governments of Ecuador, Panama and Venezuela indicated that the true magnitude of the refugee problem is not known. In this regard, the 10,000 refugees and 30,000 asylum-seekers in these three countries is likely to represent only a fraction of the total number of Colombian citizens who transit and/or reside in these countries, most of them irregularly, and they also underlined the special plight of provinces and States bordering Colombia.

In light of the situation prevailing in the country of origin, as well as the economic difficulties faced by the receiving countries, it is presumed that a considerable number of Colombians, whether undocumented or in an “irregular” migratory situation, are in need of protection and humanitarian assistance. However, the majority of them remains “invisible” and therefore, vulnerable and marginalized. The hosting countries expressed their will to comply with their international protection obligations but, at the same time, expressed concern about the magnitude of the humanitarian problem whose real dimensions are not yet known.

In order to foster a humanitarian response towards those who are in need of and deserve international protection, and to address basic infrastructure and community services needs, in particular in the areas of health and education, as well as to facilitate employment generation and productive projects, it is necessary to promote the development of border areas through the consolidation of the presence of the State institutions along with specific investments and projects sponsored by the international community.

Government representatives meeting in Cartagena de Indias also mentioned the difficulties faced by local authorities in maintaining basic services in the area of health, sanitation, education and others in view of the overwhelming, and unplanned for, demand. They underlined the compelling need to include local populations as recipients of development aid since these populations are bearing the brunt of solidarity, despite being populations as needy and poor as the refugees themselves.

The preparatory meetings proposed the following priorities in hosting communities in border areas of the mentioned countries:

- Support to implement a programme with the objective of determining in a reliable manner the magnitude and the characteristics of the refugee problem, with a view to identifying protection and assistance needs as well as to propose the most appropriate durable solutions;
- Reinforcement of institutional mechanisms for protection and refugee status determination;
- Implementation of public awareness programmes targeting local populations to prevent negative feelings and all forms of discrimination;
- Formulation of a Regional Strategic Plan to address the protection, basic assistance and integration needs of all of the populations in need, using a territorial and differentiated approach, whose main components could include:
 - Promoting social and economic development, benefiting persons who are in need of international protection and local hosting communities alike;
 - Taking into account the profile of the uprooted population and local hosting communities living in border areas, composed mainly of rural and agricultural populations, the majority of whom are women and children; and
 - Taking due account of the specific protection needs of women and men, ethnic minorities, elderly persons and persons with disabilities.

It was noted that solidarity can only be sustained through active cooperation between the State, civil society and UNHCR, with the financial contribution of the international community, within the framework of responsibility-sharing. The importance of ensuring the participation of civil society in existing and future mechanisms (bilateral, tripartite and international) to consolidate the protection framework for persons in affected border areas, and to analyze the problem of forced displacement in the region, was mentioned. In this regard, participants took note with satisfaction of the proposal made by Brazil to promote the creation of a regional resettlement programme (see paragraph below).

3. Regional “Solidarity Resettlement” Programme

In the preparatory meeting held in Brasilia (26-27 August 2004), the Government of Brazil proposed the creation of a regional resettlement programme for Latin American refugees, in the framework of international solidarity and responsibility-sharing. This initiative opens the possibility for any Latin American country, at the opportune time, to participate and to receive refugees who are in other Latin American countries. The announcement of this programme was well received by the countries of the region who currently host an important number of refugees, as a tool to help to mitigate the effects of the humanitarian situation these countries face.

Latin American countries agree upon the importance of establishing resettlement policies that include a framework of principles and eligibility criteria, with due regard for the principle of non-discrimination. Furthermore, based on the experience of Brazil and Chile as emerging resettlement countries, they appeal to the international community to support the strengthening and consolidation of these initiatives, in order to improve and replicate them in other countries of Latin America.

In any case, it is underlined that resettlement, as a durable solution in the region and for the region, should not be viewed as “burden-sharing” but, instead, as a duty deriving from international solidarity, and the need for technical and financial cooperation from the international community for its strengthening and consolidation was reiterated.

CHAPTER IV

PROMOTION, IMPLEMENTATION, FOLLOW-UP AND EVALUATION MECHANISMS

In order to implement this Plan of Action, a series of activities are foreseen at different levels:

At the national level (during the first semester of 2005)

To carry out an assessment of the number of persons who could benefit from this Plan of Action as a basis for the formulation of projects within the programmes herein contemplated. Preparation of national projects within the framework of the Plan of Action. Furthermore, countries interested in the “Solidarity Borders” programme should present a study on the impact of the presence of asylum-seekers, refugees and other persons in need of international protection in the geographical areas covered by the programme. UNHCR shall provide all of its support and expertise in the formulation of these projects, which will be submitted for the consideration of the international community.

The national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights will issue a regular evaluation and follow up report on the projects and programmes formulated within the framework of this Plan of Action.

At the regional and sub-regional level

To organize at least two meetings per year to facilitate the exchange of information and experiences, the design of regional projects and the supervision of the implementation of this Plan of Action, with the participation of governments, the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, other UN agencies, the Organization of American States, donors, representatives of civil society, national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights and experts.

At the international level

Within the framework of the Executive Committee of the High Commissioner's Programme, organize an annual meeting with donor countries and financial institutions, with the participation of civil society, in order to present the Plan of Action programmes and projects and to provide information on their implementation and impact on the beneficiary populations.

Abstract

In their capacity as representatives of Latin American human rights institutions, the authors were invited to prepare a document reviewing existing principles and criteria, to serve as a background paper for CIREFCA, the International Conference on Central American Refugees, held in Guatemala City in May 1989. The present paper is not so much an evaluation of the relevant principles, as a description and reference to principal sources; the latter, in particular, include not only an extensive series of regional treaties, but also important instruments, such as the Cartagena Declaration, and State practice on asylum. The paper looks in detail at the notion of 'refugee' in Latin America, at standards for asylum, and protection and durable solutions. It also examines protection and assistance issues relating to refugees who have returned to their country of origin – so-called returnees; and finally, it addresses the situation of internally displaced persons, who as a group have received relatively little international attention. In the view of the authors, existing sources of law in Latin America already provide a comprehensive and elaborate framework for the protection of refugees and displaced persons; the task remains, to translate those principles into concrete solutions. The authors consider various specific issues, including the duties of refugees; the right to repatriate (including the responsibilities of States and international organizations) local integration; resettlement; and the role of non-governmental organizations. They conclude with recommendations for more extensive dissemination and promotion of the basic principles of protection.

When the five Central American States and Mexico met in San Salvador in September 1988 to set the objectives for the planned International Conference on Central American Refugees (CIREFCA), they underscored the importance of assessing the progress achieved with respect to the principles underlying the protection of and assistance to refugees, including in relation to their voluntary repatriation. Moreover, these States encouraged the dissemination and application of these principles.

In order to facilitate the work of the Conference with regard to this specific objective, the authors were invited, as representatives of the Latin American human rights institutions (the Inter-American Court, Commission and Institute of Human Rights), to prepare a document reviewing existing principles and criteria. The Group did not set out to undertake an evaluation of the development of the principles (since this would be the task of the Conference), but rather to list them and make extensive reference to source documents. In other words, it remains for the reader to assess the development and current strength of refugee protection and assistance principles in Latin American.

The focus of the document is clearly on refugees. It deals extensively with the notion of 'refugee' in Latin America, with standards for asylum, and protection and durable solutions. With regard to the last-mentioned, the paper also examines the protection and assistance to, former refugees who have returned to their country of origin – so-called returnees. Finally, the document addresses the situation of internally displaced persons, given the magnitude and severity of their problems, and the fact that as a group they have received relatively little international attention.

* Judge at the Inter-American Court of Human Rights.

 Judge at the Inter-American Court of Human Rights and Executive Director of the Inter-American Institute of Human Rights.

 Member of the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights.

At the International Conference, the participating States took note of the importance of the document for the countries in the region, and recognized that it could constitute a source of guidance and orientation for all interested States.¹ As authors, we hope that it will stimulate debate on the current state of law and practice in Latin America. Two initial conclusions seem appropriate, however. First, the legal background to the development of principles and criteria relating to the categories of persons under review is particularly rich in Latin America; and secondly, these principles and criteria themselves flow not only from refugee law as traditionally conceived, but also from humanitarian law and the international law of human rights. The existing law in Latin America in fact provides an elaborate framework and set of standards and mechanisms for protecting individuals in need.

Finally, we wish to acknowledge the support given to us in producing this document by a wide variety of professional lawyers in the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees and elsewhere. Needless to say, we remain responsible for the contents.

Preface

1. This document was prepared by the Group of Experts for the International Conference on Central American Refugees pursuant to specific objective (a) in paragraph 3 of the San Salvador Communiqué on Central American Refugees of 9 September 1988. According to this objective the conference is to 'assess the progress achieved in respect of the principles underlying the protection of and assistance to refugees and their voluntary repatriation with a view to encouraging their dissemination and application.'
2. In order to facilitate the work of the Conference in relation to the above-named objective, the Group has sought to identify the basic set of principles and criteria by which States are guided in their treatment of refugees, among which solutions to the problems of refugees may also be found. The Group has also referred extensively to the sources of the various principles and criteria, indicating by means of footnotes the documents in which they are contained. These are mainly treaties or conventions of international or regional scope, resolutions or decisions of international inter-governmental conferences or documents prepared by experts and organizations, to mention only a few examples. In the context of an assessment, these notes are of particular importance, as the character of these principles and criteria of international law varies according to the source from which they derive.
3. Account was taken of the comments on the first version of the document that were made by the Governments concerned which participated in the second meeting of the Preparatory Committee held in Antigua, Guatemala. It will, however, be noted that some of these comments have not been dealt with in the present document. These include references to the need further to clarify the scope of the definition of the term 'refugee' contained in the Cartagena Declaration and the guarantees and rights of returnees, as well as the desirability of assessing the manner in which countries apply, internally, international rules relating to refugees. The Group believes that these comments merit special attention which cannot be devoted to them in the framework of this study.
4. It will be noted that the document refers not only to principles and criteria for the protection of and assistance to refugees, but also to principles and criteria relating to the returnees and displaced persons, since the International Conference will also be concerned with solving the problems of these categories of persons. Even though considerable progress has been made in recent years in respect of these additional categories, much still remains to be done. In particular, the Group shares the view, reflected in some of the comments of Governments, that it is necessary to reach a clearer and more specific understanding of the concept of 'displaced person.'
5. The Group of Experts presents this document in the hope that it may be useful for the purposes of consultation and guidance. It hopes that the contents of the document may provide material for the dissemination action referred to in its final chapter.

¹ See Declaration and Concerted Plan of Action, adopted at the CIREFCA Conference on 31 May 1989; text in 1 IJRL 581-95 (1989). The CIREFCA Preparatory Committee took note of the document at its January 1989 meeting and expressed its appreciation to the authors. After analysis of the content, some Governments submitted comments, and these are annexed.

1. Introduction

6. The States which decided to convoke the Conference on the Central American Refugees have identified as one of its specific objectives to ‘assess the progress achieved in respect of the principles underlying the protection of and assistance to refugees and their voluntary repatriation, with a view to encouraging their dissemination and application’.² These very principles are contained in the Cartagena Declaration on Refugees³ and have been further complemented through the practice of the States concerned and of international organizations. Taken together, they not only give guidance to States for the treatment of refugees but also constitute a framework within which solutions to the problems of refugees can be identified. It is the purpose of the present document to describe this framework through the evolution of applicable legal norms and practices in order to permit its evaluation. In this manner, it is hoped that the document will be used for the purposes of consultation and orientation.
7. The development and diversification of conflicts in a number of Central American States in the late 1970s have led to the forced displacement of large segments of populations. As of that moment, the region witnessed a massive displacement of persons who, because of the violence, abandoned their homes and in many instances their countries of origin.⁴ Hundreds of thousands of people fled to neighbouring countries in search of protection and assistance and some travelled onwards to other States. This unprecedented phenomenon of displacement of Central Americans constituted a serious challenge, primarily to the Central American States themselves, including Belize and Mexico.
8. Whether displaced externally as refugees, or internally, the persons concerned had mostly been forced to abandon their houses at a moment’s notice and flee through areas of conflict. Consequently, their needs in terms of protection and assistance were acute. At the same time, their entry into and presence in neighbouring States had profound effects upon those societies particularly in the social, economic and political spheres. Although the refugees were assisted by the international community, the receiving States found their resources being stretched to meet the demands for subsistence of the additional populations.
9. Responding to the demands created by this unprecedented situation, the countries concerned initiated a process of identification and implementation of humanitarian measures for the protection and assistance of the refugees. This process was advanced further with the holding of a Colloquium⁵ in Cartagena, Colombia in November 1984, where the Cartagena Declaration on Refugees,⁶ which contains a set of principles and criteria for the protection of and assistance to refugees, was adopted.
10. Latin American States have, of course, a long tradition of providing humanitarian treatment to persons seeking protection and asylum. A century ago, the Treaty of International Penal Law⁷ was signed in Montevideo on 23 January 1889 on the occasion of the first South American Congress on Private International Law. It contains the first provision on asylum in international treaty law, with a stipulation (Article 16) to the effect that ‘asylum for persons persecuted for political crimes is inviolable’. Since then a number of additional treaties have been concluded in the region which deal with issues relating to the right to asylum.
11. These initiatives of Latin American States to regulate asylum matters at the international level were eventually followed by the adoption by States in 1951 of the United Nations Convention relating to the Status of Refugees⁸ which, together with the 1967 Protocol relating to the Status of Refugees,⁹ constitute the only universal instruments on refugee protection. There are to date 105 State parties to one or both of these international instruments, 16 of which are Latin American States.

12. Whether regional or universal, all these instruments have as common denominator that of being geared primarily to the needs of individuals for protection. Although they remain of fundamental importance for refugee protection worldwide, the large-scale displacement of victims of armed conflicts or similar events points to the need to develop complementary norms for their protection and assistance.
13. The phenomenon of masses of people crossing international boundaries in search of protection was first witnessed on the African continent during the decolonization period. It led to the adoption by African States in 1969 of the OAU Convention Governing the Specific Aspects of Refugee Problems in Africa.¹⁰ This Convention represents the first effort by States to complement the universal refugee instruments with provisions for the protection and assistance of refugees in a particular region and, in that sense, serves as inspiration for the Cartagena Declaration. In particular, this Convention extends the refugee definition in the African context to include also a person who, 'owing to external aggression, occupation, foreign domination or events seriously disturbing public order in either part or the whole of the country of origin or nationality, is compelled to leave his place of habitual residence in order to seek refuge in another place outside his country of origin or nationality.'¹¹
14. A similar evolution in Central America led to the adoption of the Cartagena Declaration. Although not a legally binding instrument for States, it is nevertheless of fundamental importance as it reflects consensus on particular principles and criteria and has guided States in their treatment of refugees for the last five years. In fact, the Declaration revitalizes the tradition of asylum in Latin America while aiming at consolidating a regional custom for the treatment of refugees, returnees and displaced persons.¹² In addition, it has acquired added prestige through different pronouncements of recognition and support by the United Nations General Assembly,¹³ the General Assembly of the Organization of American States,¹⁴ the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights,¹⁵ the Andean Parliament,¹⁶ the European Parliament,¹⁷ and the Executive Committee of the Programme of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees.¹⁸
15. The Central American refugee problem, whether viewed from the point of view of the individuals and their need for protection and assistance, or the receiving State, is inextricably linked to both the history of and the current situation in the region. Indeed, political, social and economic developments influence the phenomenon of displacement and vice versa. Similarly, the legal norms for the treatment of the refugees are inter-related with and dependent on social and economic realities. Massive flows of refugees might not only affect the domestic order and stability of receiving States, but may also have an impact on the political and social stability and development of entire regions, and thus endanger international peace and security.¹⁹
16. The solution to the problems of displacement constitutes therefore an important component of the peace process in the region, something which peace efforts in the region have always taken into account.²⁰ Hence, the Procedure for the Establishment of a Firm and Lasting Peace in Central America – Esquipulas

2. Applicable legal norms and practice

17. Under international law, treaties constitute the principal sources of obligations which are binding upon the States which have adhered to them in accordance with their constitutional procedures. At the universal level, the 1951 Refugee Convention²² and its 1967 Protocol²³ apply particularly to refugees. In addition, the principles and rules concerning the basic human rights of the individual benefit refugees and returnees, as well as displaced persons since these apply to all individuals on the territory of a State. Thus it is important in the refugee protection field to highlight the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights,²⁴ and the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights.²⁵ Similarly, international humanitarian law relating to armed conflicts provides important guidance for the protection of refugees, returnees and displaced persons when these are located in areas of international or non-international armed conflicts. The relevant instruments include the four Geneva Conventions of 1949²⁶ and the two Additional Protocols of 1977.²⁷
18. At the regional level, a large number of treaties are of direct importance to refugees, returnees and displaced persons. These include, first of all, the American Convention on Human Rights,²⁸ the so-called Pact of San José, and the Treaty on International Penal Law signed in Montevideo on 22 January 1889,²⁹ the Convention on Asylum signed in Havana on 20 February 1928,³⁰ the Convention on Political Asylum signed in Montevideo on 26 December 1933,³¹ the Treaty on Asylum and Political Refuge signed in Montevideo on 4 August 1939,³² the Treaty on International Penal Law signed in Montevideo on 19 March 1940,³³ the Convention on Territorial Asylum³⁴ and the Convention on Diplomatic Asylum,³⁵ both signed in Caracas on 28 March 1954 and the Inter-American Convention on Extradition signed in Caracas on 25 February 1981.³⁶
19. While international treaties constitute the principal source of international law, many other bases exist which provide guidance to States and international organizations for identifying and interpreting legal principles and criteria. In the refugee context, and still at the universal level, these include the United Nations Universal Declaration of Human Rights,³⁷ the Statute of the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR),³⁸ the United Nations Declaration on Territorial Asylum³⁹ and the General Assembly Resolution on Assistance to Refugees, Returnees and Displaced Persons from Central America⁴⁰ to mention but some of the more salient examples. Furthermore, there exist similarly relevant resolutions of the United Nations General Assembly, the Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC) and decisions as well as conclusions of the Executive Committee (EXCOM) of the High Commissioner's Programme.

20. In Latin America, the American Declaration on the Rights and Duties of Man,⁴¹ resolutions of the Organization of American States, reports of the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights and judgements and advisory opinions of the Inter-American Court of Human Rights⁴² provide an additional set of principles and criteria on matters relating to human rights and refugees protection. For example, successive resolutions of the OAS General Assembly have dealt with the issue of refugees, returnees and displaced persons⁴³ as did, amongst others, the 1984-85 Annual Report of the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights.⁴⁴
21. Moreover, the practice of the States in the region confirms many of the principles and criteria applied for the protection of and assistance to refugees, returnees and displaced persons. This is particularly true in the area of the voluntary return of refugees where several initiatives have been taken. Some of these have been formalized through especially constituted so-called tri-partite commissions, comprising representatives from the countries of origin and asylum and UNHCR. In another instance, the mechanism is bilateral with UNHCR participation in an advisory capacity. On the other hand, constitutional provisions, national laws and administrative regulations of the respective States confirm the efforts to provide protection and assistance to refugees, returnees and displaced persons.⁴⁵

3. The refugee instruments and internal application

22. In accordance with international law, every treaty in force is binding upon the parties to it and must be performed in good faith,⁴⁶ and a party may not invoke the provisions of its internal law as justification for its failure to perform a treaty.⁴⁷ In addition, the principle that international legal norms, including refugee law, which are contained in universal and regional treaties, are directly applicable in national legal systems and part of the internal law is acknowledged as a general rule in Latin America. This principle is expressly reflected in the constitutions of the great majority of the countries most directly affected by the Central American refugees.⁴⁸
23. The universal character and importance of the 1951 Refugee Convention and its Protocol and the need for further States to adhere to these instruments has repeatedly been recognized.⁴⁹ Similarly, the importance of establishing procedures for the determination of refugee status under the international instruments, has also been reiterated.⁵⁰ The call for accession to universal and regional treaties extends beyond the 1951 Refugee Convention and its 1967 Protocol and includes also the main human rights instruments which have a direct bearing upon the protection and assistance to refugees, returnees and displaced persons.⁵¹ These principles and criteria have been recognized and reaffirmed in the Cartagena Declaration.⁵²

4. The concept of refugee

4.1 Universal definition

24. The universal refugee definition is contained in Article 1 A(2) of the 1951 Refugee Convention, which includes as refugees persons who have a 'well-founded fear of persecution for reasons of race, religion, nationality, membership of a particular social group or political opinion'.⁵³ Detailed guidance as to how to interpret this definition is contained in the Handbook on Procedures and Criteria for Determining Refugee Status issued by UNHCR at the request of States.⁵⁴

4.2 Regional definition

25. Recognizing the particular characteristics of the flow of displaced persons in the region, the Cartagena Declaration extends the notion of refugee to include, apart from those covered by the universal refugee concept, also other externally displaced persons who are in need of protection and assistance. Consequently, the Declaration also considers as refugees persons 'who have fled their country because their lives, security or liberty have been threatened by generalized violence, foreign aggression, internal conflicts, massive violations of human rights or other circumstances which have seriously disturbed public order'.⁵⁵

26. The regional refugee concept contained in the Cartagena Declaration calls for examining the objective situation in the country of origin and the particular situation of the individual or group of persons who seek protection and assistance as refugees. This definition calls for the affected persons to fulfil two characteristics: on the one hand, that a threat to the life, security or liberty is in existence and, on the other hand, that this threat results from one of the five grounds listed in the text. These grounds were purposely written in a broad and encompassing manner to ensure that persons who are clearly in need of international protection can also be protected and assisted as refugees.

4.3 Protected rights

27. The Cartagena Declaration takes the individual's need for international protection and, in particular, the need to protect the physical integrity of the person as the starting point for developing the refugee definition; it is the right to life, security and liberty of a person including the right not to be subjected to arbitrary arrest or detention⁵⁶ or to torture⁵⁷ as defined in international law which are the protected rights. Consequently, the first of the two characteristics of the Cartagena Declaration's extended refugee definition is met when in a particular instant there is a threat to any one of these rights.

4.4 Humanitarian law grounds

28. Four of the five grounds included in the Cartagena Declaration's regional refugee concept, i.e. generalized violence, foreign aggression, internal conflicts and other circumstances which have seriously disturbed public order, reflect the fact that the conflicts faced by several of the Central American States are at the origin of much of the external displacement which has taken place in the region. These four grounds should better be understood in light of international humanitarian law provisions relating to armed conflicts which categorizes several situations involving different levels of violence.

29. First of all, international armed conflicts covered by the Geneva Conventions and Protocol I involve all cases of declared war or of any other armed conflict which may arise between two or more parties, even if the state of war is not recognized by one of them.⁵⁸ An armed conflict includes any difference arising between two States which leads to the intervention of members of the armed forces of one or both of the States.⁵⁹

30. Secondly, Article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions of 1949, and Additional Protocol II, deal with non-international armed conflicts. Additional Protocol II, without modifying the existing conditions and applications of Common Article 3, defines these as all armed conflicts, which are not covered by Article 1 of Additional Protocol I and ‘which take place in the territory of “State party” between its armed forces and dissident armed forces or other organized armed groups which, under responsible command, exercise such control over a part of its territory as to enable them to carry out sustained and concerted military operations and to implement this Protocol’.⁶⁰
31. A third situation involves violence not of a nature to constitute an armed conflict. This includes situations of internal disturbances and tensions, such as riots, isolated and sporadic acts of violence and other acts of a similar nature.⁶¹
32. Turning to the four humanitarian law grounds enumerated in the Cartagena Declaration, it is clear that ‘generalized violence’ involves armed conflicts as defined in international humanitarian law, whether it takes place in an international or non-international conflict. To be generalized, the violence must be regular, general and sustained. In other words, internal disturbances and tensions, as defined in Additional Protocol II but excluded from its field of application, do not amount to generalized violence.⁶² As regards ‘foreign aggression’, the United Nations General Assembly has defined this concept⁶³ as including the use of armed force by a State against the sovereignty, territorial integrity or political independence of another State, or in any other manner inconsistent with the Charter of the United Nations, as set out in this definition.⁶⁴ ‘Internal conflicts’ can be taken to correspond to non-international armed conflicts covered by Article 3, common to the Geneva Conventions and Additional Protocol II.
33. Finally, ‘other circumstances which have seriously disturbed public order’, must be man-made and cannot constitute natural disasters. They may, however, amount to no more than situations of internal disturbance

⁶¹ Ibid., art. 1.2. The ICRC Commentary to Protocol II, ICRC Geneva, 1987, p. 1355, describes internal disturbances as ‘situations in which there is no non-international armed conflict as such, but there exists a confrontation within the country, which is characterized by a certain seriousness or duration and which involves acts of violence. These latter can assume various forms, all the way from the spontaneous generation of acts of revolt to the struggle between more or less organized groups and the authorities in power. In these situations, which do not necessarily degenerate into open struggle, the authorities in power call upon extensive police forces, or even armed forces, to restore internal order. The high number of victims has made necessary the application of a minimum of humanitarian rules’. Internal tensions include ‘in particular, situations of serious tension (political, religious, racial, social, economic, etc.), but also the sequels of armed conflict or of internal disturbances. Such situations have one or more of the following characteristics, if not all at the same time: large scale arrests; a large number of ‘political’ prisoners; the probable existence of ill-treatment or inhumane conditions of detention; the suspension of fundamental judicial guarantees, either as part of the promulgation of a state of emergency or simply as a matter of fact; allegations of disappearances. In short, as stated above, there are internal disturbances, without being an armed conflict, when the State uses armed force to maintain order; there are internal tensions, without being internal disturbances, when force is used as a preventive measure to maintain respect for law and order.’

⁶³ UNGA res. 3314 (XXIX), 14 Dec. 1974.

and tensions, such as riots, isolated and sporadic acts of violence and other acts of a similar nature,⁶⁵ as long as they seriously disturb public order.⁶⁶

4.5 Human rights ground

34. The fifth ground included in the Cartagena Declaration refers to massive violations of human rights. This ground can be considered fulfilled when violations are carried out on a large scale and affect the human rights and fundamental freedoms as defined in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and other relevant instruments. In particular, the denial of civil, political, economic, social and cultural rights in a gross and consistent pattern⁶⁷ can be considered to constitute massive violations of human rights which include those which are subject to Resolution 1503.⁶⁸

4.6 Civilian character of the refugee concept

35. The refugee concept contained in the Cartagena Declaration, like other definitions, is predicated on the assumption that the persons concerned are civilians. Refugees, both in the ordinary and legal sense, means persons not taking part in the hostilities. To be a refugee, it is a sine qua non that the persons concerned are civilians. In other words, combatants, whether members of regular armies or irregular forces, are not refugees.⁶⁹ Other persons, such as former combatants, may however be considered as refugees should they fulfil the criteria of the definition.

4.7 Special categories

36. A particular group of persons who may need international protection as refugees consists of draft evaders and deserters from mandatory military service. Normally, such persons do not qualify for refugee status in accordance with the 1951 Refugee Convention.⁷⁰ Nevertheless, they may qualify as refugees if they can show that the performance of military service would require them to participate in military action contrary to their genuine political, religious or moral convictions or to valid reasons of conscience,⁷¹ or where the type of military action with which they do not wish to be associated is condemned by the international community as contrary to basic rules of human conduct.⁷² This exception may, however, normally not be invoked when the country in question exempts such persons from mandatory military service or offers them an alternative activity.⁷³

37. Persons who leave their country or their place of habitual residence for personal reasons, either to work or to improve their living conditions, known as economic migrants,⁷⁴ do not generally fulfil the criteria for refugee status. According to the definition of the Cartagena Declaration, adverse economic conditions are not normally of a nature to constitute a threat to the life, security and liberty of the individual. On the other hand, economic measures affecting a person's livelihood may, in a particular instance, be of such severity as to amount to persecution if they are motivated by political, racial, or religious aims or intentions directed against a particular group in which case the affected persons may well be refugees.⁷⁵

38. Economic migrants should not be confused with victims of natural disasters. These victims do not qualify as refugees, unless special circumstances arise which are closely linked to the refugee definition.

39. Externally displaced persons constitute a fourth special category which is composed of individuals who are outside their country and have no legal status or documents authorizing them to stay. In general, they have been obliged to leave their country for reasons that are not clearly defined, among which reasons of an economic nature are mixed with the non-immediate consequences of conflicts and widespread violence.⁷⁶

- 40 Finally, special mention should be made of those persons who, while meeting the criteria of the refugee concept, have not been identified and therefore not been formally granted refugee status. Such individuals are considered as refugees given the declaratory and non-constitutive nature of the decision to grant refugee status.⁷⁷ These persons find themselves in a particularly precarious situation and deserve special attention by the international community.

4.8 Persons not deserving international protection as refugees

41. Persons who have committed a crime against peace, a war crime, a crime against humanity, a serious non-political crime outside the country of refuge prior to admission or who are guilty of acts contrary to the purposes and principles of the United Nations⁷⁸ fall into this category and are therefore denied refugee status.⁷⁹ These dispositions are of particular importance when considering claims to refugee status by former combatants. In case they have committed atrocious acts or other grave violations of human rights, their request for refugee status will be denied.⁸⁰ As regards mercenaries,⁸¹ they are also denied refugee status since their activities are ‘contrary to fundamental principles of international law’, as determined by the United Nations General Assembly.⁸²

5. Asylum and protection standards

5.1 The nature of the grant of asylum

42. It is a universally-accepted principle that the grant of asylum as well as the recognition of refugee status have a peaceful, non-political and exclusively humanitarian nature. No aspect of these acts shall be interpreted as unfriendly towards the country of origin of the refugees. These same principles are reflected in several instruments and legal material, including the Cartagena Declaration.⁸³
43. These principles are complemented by the criteria which call upon States to do everything within their power to prevent a refugee problem from becoming a source of tension between States.⁸⁴ Some instruments go further and call upon States to prohibit refugees from performing acts contrary to the public peace.⁸⁵

III(2), 1969 OAU Convention – to prohibit refugees from attacking Member States

44. It follows from the above principles that the work of the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees shall be of an entirely non-political character and that it shall be humanitarian and social.⁸⁶ Similarly, these principles dictate that the treatment of refugees and the search for solutions to their problems should take place on a purely humanitarian and non-political basis.⁸⁷

5.2. The principle of non-refoulement

45. The principle of non-refoulement constitutes the cornerstone of the international system for the protection of refugees and is the most fundamental of refugee rights. It signifies being protected from expulsion or return in any manner whatsoever to the frontiers of territories where the refugee's life or freedom would be threatened.⁸⁸ This principle, which is fully recognized in the Cartagena Declaration, extends beyond expulsion and return and also applies to measures such as rejection at the frontier.⁸⁹ Moreover, it applies not only to persons who have a well-founded fear of persecution in the sense of the 1951 Refugee Convention, but also to those who fall under the regional refugee concept contained in the Cartagena Declaration.⁹⁰

46. The American Convention on Human Rights is of particular importance in the region for protecting refugees from refoulement. Going beyond the traditional statement of the non-refoulement principle, it holds that 'in no case may an alien be deported or returned to a country, regardless of whether or not it is his country of origin, if in that country his right to life or personal freedom is in danger of being violated because of his race, nationality, religion, social status, or political opinions'.⁹¹

47. The application of the principle of non-refoulement is independent of any formal determination of refugee status by a State or an international organization⁹² and is considered by many as a peremptory rule of international law.⁹³ In other words, non-refoulement as a fundamental principle of refugee protection is applicable as soon as certain objective conditions occur. Thus, also those persons who, while meeting the criteria of the refugee concept, have not been identified and therefore not formally granted refugee status, are also protected by the non-refoulement principle.

5.3 Minimum standards of treatment for refugees

48. The 1951 Refugee Convention and its 1967 Protocol provide standards of treatment for refugees as defined in these instruments, which are recommended for application also to other categories of refugees.⁹⁴ Moreover, there is a broader and direct relationship between the observance of human rights of the OAU, by any activity likely to cause tension between Member States, and in particular by the use of arms, through the press, or by radio; art. 8, 1954 Caracas Convention on Territorial Asylum, 28 Mar. 1954 – to restrict the freedom of assembly or association of refugees when such assembly or association has as its purpose to foment the use of force or violence against the country of origin.

standards and protection problems.⁹⁵ States should therefore ensure that their treatment of refugees conforms to existing international law and humanitarian principles and practice.⁹⁶

49. It is a fundamental principle of international law that the principles and rules concerning basic human rights of the individual, are obligations owed by States to the international community at large.⁹⁷ These are rights from which no derogation is permitted, even in times of exceptional circumstances. They benefit everyone as a result of which also refugees, returnees and displaced persons should benefit from such non-derogatory human rights as the right to protection from the arbitrary deprivation of life,⁹⁸ and against torture or cruel or inhuman treatment or punishment,⁹⁹ the rights not to be subjected to slavery or servitude,¹⁰⁰ or to retroactive criminal penalties,¹⁰¹ the rights to recognition as a person before the law¹⁰² and to freedom of thought, conscience and religion¹⁰³ and the right to be protected from discrimination.¹⁰⁴ Additional non-derogatory rights are included in the American Convention on Human Rights such as protection of the family, the rights of the child, the right to a nationality, political rights and the right to judicial guarantees.¹⁰⁵
50. The Cartagena Declaration underlines the importance of the countries in the region establishing minimum standards of treatment for refugees, on the basis of the provisions of the 1951 Refugee Convention and its 1967 Protocol and of the American Convention on Human Rights.¹⁰⁶ It calls on the States parties to this latter instrument to apply it in dealing with asilados and refugees who are in their territories.¹⁰⁷ Furthermore, it recognizes the validity of the Conclusions of the Executive Committee of the High Commissioner's Programme, and in particular its Conclusion No. 22 on the Protection of Asylum-Seekers in Situations of Large Scale Influx.¹⁰⁸ Complementing the non-derogatory human rights, these Conclusions identify, inter alia, a set of minimum basic standards which should benefit refugees and asylum-seekers.
51. Amongst these minimum basic standards, the Conclusion identifies the principle that refugees should enjoy the fundamental civil rights internationally recognized, in particular those set out in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.¹⁰⁹ It also points out that they should not be discriminated against on the grounds of race, religion, political opinion, nationality, country of origin or physical incapacity,¹¹⁰ and should not be penalized or exposed to any unfavourable treatment solely on the ground that their presence in the country is considered unlawful.¹¹¹ Furthermore, they should not be subjected to restrictions on their movements other than those which are necessary in the interest of public health and public order.¹¹²

52. Recognizing that the family deserves special protection in international law, the Conclusion furthermore holds that the family unit should be respected and refugees and asylum-seekers should benefit from the fundamental principle of family reunification.¹¹³ Furthermore, they have a right to register births, deaths and marriages¹¹⁴ and adequate provisions should be made for the protection of minors and unaccompanied children.¹¹⁵

5.4 Refugee camps

53. It follows from the principle that the grant of asylum is a peaceful, non-political and exclusively humanitarian act and that refugees by definition are civilians, that refugee camps or settlements also have an exclusively civilian and humanitarian character.¹¹⁶ As a consequence they should also have a civilian administration. Such camps and settlements do not enjoy any status of extra-territoriality but are part of the territory of States and refugees living there, like others, have a duty to conform to the laws and regulations of the country of asylum, including lawful measures taken for the maintenance of public order.¹¹⁷ Thus, refugees have a duty to abstain from any activity likely to detract from the exclusively civilian and humanitarian character of the camps and settlements.¹¹⁸ Such activities do, however, not comprise the exercise for peaceful purposes of fundamental human rights, such as the right to freedom of thought, expression, association and assembly.¹¹⁹
54. In order to safeguard the human rights and the protection of refugees, their camps or settlements should, whenever possible, be set up at a reasonable distance from the border with the country of origin.¹²⁰ States should also refrain from attacking such camps and settlements; acts which should be condemned as they are against the principles of international law and, therefore, cannot be justified.¹²¹

55. Refugee camps are by their very nature temporary in character. The establishment of makeshift or closed camps is sometimes unavoidable at the beginning of a massive influx of refugees, as they make it easier to provide effective emergency assistance and ensure the protection of refugees during the initial stage. Nevertheless, such camps may, in time, have a series of harmful effects, such as: restrictions on freedom, internal control leading to human rights abuses, mental health problems, internal violence and disturbances of public order, artificial means of support and dependency on external aid. Furthermore, such camps lead to an urbanization of rural refugees resulting in difficulties in becoming integrated, whether in the context of voluntary repatriation, local integration or resettlement.¹²² As a result, it is necessary eventually to gradually open closed camps¹²³ or relocate the refugees so that they can become part of another more appropriate scheme.¹²⁴

6.1 Voluntary repatriation

56. Voluntary repatriation is the preferred solution to the problems of refugees since it achieves the ultimate goal of international protection, namely the re-establishment of refugees in a community, in this case their own.¹²⁵ It is a purely humanitarian and non-political act¹²⁶ which gives substance to the right of refugees, and others, to return voluntarily to their country of origin, and re-avail themselves of its protection. Their right to voluntary repatriation is fully recognized in the region in both law and in practice.¹²⁷ Similarly, refugees have a right to be protected in a manner that they can effectively exercise their right to return voluntarily to their country.¹²⁸
57. They have also the right to receive objective and complete information on the prevailing situation in their country of origin so as to be able to take a fully informed decision.¹²⁹ One manner in which this right may be exercised is through the arrangement of visits of groups of refugees to their country of origin to allow them to inform themselves on the spot of the current situation there.¹³⁰

¹³⁰ Report of the Advisory Group (above, note 113), para. 7.9; UNHCR Executive Committee Conclusion No. 18 (XXXI) on Voluntary Repatriation.

58. Voluntary repatriation may be facilitated and provided through various forms of repatriation mechanisms, sometimes formally constituted as tri-partite commissions involving representatives from the refugees' country of origin, the country of asylum and UNHCR.¹³¹ Such mechanisms can concern themselves with both the joint planning and implementation of a repatriation programme while providing an effective means of securing consultations between the main parties concerned.¹³² It is of fundamental importance that all aspects of a repatriation movement be clarified with all the parties concerned, including the returning refugees, prior to any movement.¹³³
59. A foremost principle of refugee protection in the context of voluntary repatriation is the one which proclaims that the repatriation of refugees must take place at the individually and freely-expressed wish of the refugees themselves.¹³⁴ Voluntary repatriation must take place under conditions of safety and dignity, preferably to the refugees' place of origin or previous residence in their country if they so wish.¹³⁵ This core element in refugee protection flows from the fundamental human rights of security and liberty and from the right to freedom of movement and free choice of residence.¹³⁶ In the regional context in which a great majority of the refugees are of peasant origin, it is particularly important that they can return to their previous economic activities and recuperate their former land and possessions.¹³⁷
60. Returnees should also benefit, at the time of their return, from adequate guarantees of non-discrimination and full respect for their human rights under the same conditions to those of their compatriots.¹³⁸ Under no circumstances should they be disadvantaged or penalized for having sought asylum and protection as refugees in another country.
61. Both former countries of asylum¹³⁹ and UNHCR as the agent of the international community, have a recognized interest in the development of the return.¹⁴⁰ In that respect they have a right to be informed of the results of any voluntary repatriation operation.¹⁴¹ For this reason, the High Commissioner's Office should follow closely the situation of the returnees not only during the return movement but also subsequent thereto.¹⁴² Such action is of an exclusively humanitarian nature in order to witness the fulfilment of the agreements which formed the basis for the return. It does not imply special privileges or immunities for the returnees and is carried out in close consultation with the State concerned which provides direct access to the returnees to the High Commissioner's staff.¹⁴³
62. In order to facilitate the reintegration process and also ensure that the returnees can effectively benefit from the protection of the national authorities, it is important that they be provided with the same identity documents as their compatriots.¹⁴⁴ The registration of refugees who have been born abroad should also be regularized to ensure that they obtain their nationality and provision should be made so that they get full and formal credit for studies undertaken while abroad.¹⁴⁵ Whenever the circumstances permit, the documentation and registration process should be carried out prior to the actual return.¹⁴⁶

63. The success of a voluntary repatriation programme will very often depend upon adequate assistance being made available to the returnees. Such assistance should include transportation and assistance during the movement back to their country of origin as well as assistance upon return during the reintegration process.¹⁴⁷ The latter type of assistance should be compatible with development plans and projects of the community to which the refugees are returning.¹⁴⁸ Such assistance programmes could usefully benefit the community as a whole, including displaced persons,¹⁴⁹ and might also help to improve conditions generally in the places of return and thus stimulate future repatriation movements.¹⁵⁰

64. It is of fundamental importance for refugees to be able to enjoy their economic, social and cultural rights so that they may lead a productive and dignified life without, for that reason, being privileged vis-à-vis national groups. To this end, the 1951 Refugee Convention stipulates that contracting States shall, for example, in the context of wage-earning employment, accord to refugees lawfully staying in their territory 'the most favourable treatment accorded to nationals of a foreign country in the same circumstances'.¹⁵¹ In this regard, the Cartagena Declaration recommends that countries in the region study the possibility of integrating the refugees into the productive life of the country by allocating the resources made available by the international community to UNHCR for the creation or generation of employment.¹⁵² Such activities have been initiated in several of the countries concerned, benefiting both rural and urban refugees.¹⁵³
65. In particular, countries in the region have designed projects which provide for integration in the rural sector as well as for the creation of employment opportunities for urban refugees, while attempting to ensure that national workers are not therefore displaced¹⁵⁴ and that the cultural identity of the ethnic groups which may be found amongst the refugee populations is maintained. These projects should be harmonized with local, national and regional development plans as a guarantee of viability and so as to contribute to the welfare of the refugees themselves and the community which is receiving them. In this context, it is also recommended that nationals are included amongst the participants and direct beneficiaries of the projects.¹⁵⁵ At the same time, it is important that States consider assimilating the rights of refugees with regard to wage-earning employment to those of nationals, to ensure that successful employment insertion schemes do not fail because of restrictive national laws and regulations.¹⁵⁶

Resettlement

66. Resettlement of Central American refugees has not constituted a durable solution on par with voluntary repatriation, but has been reserved for particular cases involving persons who, for protection or family reunification reasons, need to be resettled elsewhere. In view of the situation prevailing in some of the refugee camps, and in line with practices established elsewhere,¹⁵⁷ the need has been felt to offer resettlement in third countries to some of the refugees. There is therefore a recognized need to identify other countries which might receive Central American refugees.¹⁵⁸ Such resettlement should, of course, only take place on a voluntary basis.¹⁵⁹

7. Displaced persons

67. The problem of displaced persons has long been a serious concern of the countries in the region and the need for extending both protection and assistance to them has repeatedly been stressed.¹⁶⁰ Although there is no generally accepted definition, displaced persons have been considered as those who have been obliged to abandon their homes or usual economic activities, while remaining within their countries, because their lives, security or liberty have been threatened by widespread violence or prevailing conflict.¹⁶¹ Their need for protection and assistance is at times as great, if not greater, than that of the refugees who have left the country.
68. Displaced persons have a right to be protected by their national authorities and, in particular, to benefit from fundamental human rights such as the right to life, security and liberty, freedom from torture, etc.¹⁶² Furthermore, in situations involving armed conflicts they benefit from the minimum standards contained in common Article 3 of the four Geneva Conventions since they are persons taking no active part in hostilities.¹⁶³
69. The primary responsibility for aiding displaced persons falls on the State, since these persons are citizens of the State and are also situated within its territory. The possibilities of the States in the region to meet the needs of the displaced persons are, however, severely hampered as their resources are limited and assistance from the international community has not been directed to this category of the population. It is for this reason that the States who decided to convene the international conference included displaced persons as a category in need of special attention by the international community.¹⁶⁴

8. Non-governmental organizations

70. Non-governmental organizations, both international and national, generally play an important role in the assistance to refugees, returnees and displaced persons. In particular, they co-ordinate and implement a wide variety of assistance programmes and projects.
71. The role of these organizations, which is based on humanitarian principles and on national and international solidarity, has repeatedly been recognized by the international community.¹⁶⁵ Similarly, it has underlined the need for continued and increased co-operation between concerned Governments, UNHCR and other bodies of the United Nations system and non-governmental organizations.¹⁶⁶ Finally, there is a clear need of close co-ordination between UNHCR and non-governmental organizations of their different activities in accordance with directives provided by the concerned Governments.¹⁶⁷

9. Human rights mechanisms

72. There is a direct and multiple relationship between the observance of human rights standards, refugee movements and problems of protection.¹⁶⁸ Gross violations of human rights give rise to refugee movements, sometimes on a massive scale, and may impede the attainment of durable solutions to their problems. At the same time, human rights principles and practices provide standards to States and international organizations for their treatment of refugees, returnees and displaced persons.¹⁶⁹
73. It is this reality, which in Latin America has led to a call for better use to be made of the competent organisms of the inter-American system and, in particular, of the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights, with a view to complementing the international protection of refugees in the region.¹⁷⁰ This also requires closer co-operation between the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees on the one hand, and on the other hand, the Organization of American States,¹⁷¹ the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights, the Inter-American Court of Human Rights and the Inter-American Institute of Human Rights.

10. Dissemination

74. The last ten years have seen a growing public awareness of the problem of Central American refugees, returnees and displaced persons. In large sectors in the region there is a clear interest and necessity to know in more detail the principles and criteria which make up the legal framework within which adequate solutions are being sought. For this reason, both the Cartagena Declaration and the Preparatory Committee of the International Conference on the Central American Refugees through its San Salvador Communiqué identified the need to promote the dissemination, and consequent compliance, of the relevant principles and criteria.¹⁷² This task requires the support of the governments concerned, UNHCR, non-governmental organizations and the other members of the International Community.

Annex

Comments of the Government of Costa Rica

1. A point to be noted first of all is the importance of this type of document for reference purposes. It contains important information on various international instruments relating to refugees, such as United Nations resolutions, international conventions on asylum, etc. The document also provides a legal and historical analysis of refugee protection in Latin America and a legal assessment of the situation of refugees in Central America.
2. The following comments on the document may nevertheless be made:

The application of the Geneva Convention and the recommendations proposed at the Cartagena Colloquium with regard to the determination of refugee status give rise to certain doubts. The Geneva Convention is obviously restricted in its scope and is not applicable in the case of massive flows of refugees. The Cartagena Colloquium has broadened the notion of refugee but it did not deal with other cases, such as that of externally displaced persons, cases whose direct cause is the economic situation but whose indirect cause is a political situation which, according to the Cartagena Declaration, may give rise to recognition of refugee status. An effort should therefore be made at the Conference to clarify and define more precisely when a refugee situation corresponds to the Convention's traditional definition, when it corresponds to the 'Cartagena' notion and when it is one of the other non-typical situations where – depending on the broadness of the Government's view – the person concerned may or may not be deemed a refugee.

3. The document outlines the elements that are included in the definition as factors or grounds for the grant or recognition of refugee status and it explains them clearly. However, it does not distinguish these from the situation of other categories of persons who leave their country for reasons that are different from, but are nevertheless linked with, the above-mentioned grounds. While not direct causes, they are factors which foster the condition of socio-economic despair. This is the case of the socio-economic refugees who have to abandon their country because the political situation described in the Cartagena Declaration prevents them from working or producing or, worse still, prevents their survival. The document should explain whether this aspect comes under the heading 'human rights ground', where reference is made to '... a consistent pattern of gross denial of civil, political, economic, social and cultural rights ...'. This aspect, too, should be clarified.
4. The document indicates the precedence of international law over internal law, stating: '... every treaty in force is binding on the parties to it and must be performed in good faith, and a party may not invoke the provisions of its internal law as justification for its failure to perform a treaty'. It should be noted, however, that the document makes no reference to the case of constitutional provisions which, in certain of their aspects, conflict with the Convention. It should in fact be pointed out that the jurisprudence often does not apply with full rigour the principle of the precedence of international law over ordinary internal law. This is a particularly serious matter in countries such as Costa Rica where the courts have great autonomy and independence and where the remedy does not exist of claiming the unconstitutionality of a law because it violates an international treaty. Although this is a technical point, it is most important that it should be examined since whether a treaty will have full effect in the internal legal system will depend on it.
5. As for the requirement that a person must be a civilian to be a refugee – a point made clear in the Cartagena and other definitions, this principle has been adopted by Costa Rica and was the subject of a pronouncement by the Attorney General's Office on 5 June 1985.
6. A subject closely linked with the question of camps for temporary refugees is that of finding durable solutions to refugee problems. We share the view expressed in the document that a period longer than is necessary spent in such camps produces very harmful effects both for the refugees and for the country of asylum. It should be noted, however, that durable solutions aimed at repatriation or resettlement in third countries result in a situation of insecurity and instability for the refugee programmes. If, therefore, neither of these options is sound or viable, the logical course is to place emphasis on integration of the refugees in the community of asylum and to compensate the receiving country so that the impact of the refugees on the population will not be so harmful as to affect the country's social stability, 'with unfavourable consequences for both the refugees and the local population'. In this connection, the document looks at refugees independently of the host country and, in particular, the host country which has limited resources. The correct approach must necessarily take account of the country's asylum own socially-marginalized or vulnerable position. For the government concerned and the international organizations to apply international norms to the detriment of vulnerable local populations would be an irresponsible act with highly dangerous consequences that might prove disastrous.
7. In this connection it is pointed out that repatriation must provide guarantees and rights for the returnees. The Conference should establish principles leading to a declaration and, at a later stage, a convention on returnees. This should include a substantive part relating to the local bodies which receive the returning refugees and it should provide for suitable procedures and fundamental guarantees, as well as control measures designed to avoid irreparable situations. In this process there must be a willingness of both States and international aid agencies to act together. From the legal standpoint, too, there must be an agreement between the country of asylum, the country of origin of the returnees and the international community.

Conclusion

8. While the document is to be commended for the features mentioned earlier: a substantial fund of information, an appropriate historical and legal analysis of the refugee problem and a call for information to be made available on a systematic basis, it does not make any effort to identify the legal principles and institutions for dealing with refugee problems at the level of internal law. The text is obviously entirely satisfactory from the standpoint of international refugee law, but there also exists an internal standpoint from which refugee law must be viewed. This involves all domestic legislation on such matters as asylum, migration, labour, commerce and health that is applicable to refugees. This document naturally does not aim to provide a comparative study of the domestic law of each country but it ignores the fact that the application of international law requires the enactment of complementary legislation, the appropriateness and viability of which may be open to question but the need for which cannot be denied. Apart from the proposed specific refugee legislation, harmonized with and complementing the international legislation on this subject, there already exists a whole internal system of law arising from the regulations and guidelines that are needed for putting the international law into effect. Refugee law had its origin in international law, although the causes of refugee movements are often internal. It is clear, however, that the application of refugee law calls for the development of a complementary law, having several dimensions: as a value, as a practical reality and as a normative factor. In this context, the main legal challenge for Central America is perhaps to develop a refugee law – both international and domestic, both regional and local – which does not conflict with international refugee law but rather complements and enriches it.

2. Comments of the Government of El Salvador

1. In the interest of consistent interpretation of the international instruments concerning the protection of and assistance to refugees, returnees and displaced persons, it appears desirable, not only to promote knowledge of these instruments but also to throw more light on, and seek solutions to, refugee problems, because it is precisely these international instruments, combined with national legislation, that define the basic rights of refugees and the scope of their protection.
2. Refugee law applicable to persons, States and international governmental organizations, incorporating essential principles and norms is already of considerable scope.
3. The 1951 Convention relating to the Status of Refugees and the 1967 Protocol are applicable to the situation of refugees and have served as the basis for combining the elements which they contain with the introduction of new elements applicable to the specific circumstances of the Latin American region and of Central America in particular, where the refugee problem is most acute and large mass flows have taken place.
4. In order to deal with the situations occurring in Central America and on the basis of a broader concept of refugee protection, the Cartagena Declaration was adopted in 1984. This instrument incorporates not only the basic principles of international protection, such as asylum and non-refoulement but also elements applicable to the socio-political context of the Central American region.
5. Thus, efforts are already being made to develop a more effective system for the protection of refugees by combining the basic international instruments with Latin American law, with the aim of further developing refugee law in Latin America.
6. As far as the international instruments relating to refugees are concerned, El Salvador is party to the 1951 Convention relating to the Status of Refugees and to the 1967 Protocol, as well as to the American conventions on asylum.
7. El Salvador was present at the Cartagena Colloquium in 1984 and, as a country of origin of refugee movements, expressed, through its delegation, its confidence in the progressive development of machinery and practical means for solving refugee problems, and therefore its supports for international instruments relating to the protection of refugees. It also placed emphasis on observance of the principle of non-refoulement, the institution of asylum and the security and physical integrity of refugees, as well as on the need to ensure the practical effectiveness of solutions to refugee problems in Central America, such as voluntary repatriation and integration of refugees.
8. In the 'Procedure for the establishment of a firm and lasting peace in Central America' (Esquipulas II), the Central American countries undertook to seek solutions to the problem of refugees and displaced persons, recognizing that this formed part of the overall efforts to be made in order to achieve peace.
9. Since 1986, El Salvador has been pursuing a policy that is aimed at finding an appropriate, honourable and comprehensive solution to this problem. In April 1986, a 'Tripartite Commission for the Voluntary Repatriation of Salvadorian Refugees in Honduras', composed of representatives of the Governments of El Salvador and Honduras and of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), was set up to consider methods and machinery for repatriation.

10. The Guatemala Agreement (Esquipulas II) gave further impetus to the application of solutions to refugee problems at the national level and encouraged the establishment, despite problems and constraints of machinery and measures for offering practical alternatives to meet the needs of refugees, as well as taking other important action on their behalf.
11. The setting up of responsible national bodies such as the Salvadorian Commission for Refugees and Displaced Persons has furthered the efforts that are being made to develop appropriate machinery and find viable solutions for the problem of Salvadorian refugees, such as voluntary repatriation or integration.
12. The voluntary repatriation process was started in October 1987 and continued in 1988. It has enabled several thousands of Salvadorians who were in Honduran territory to return to their home country.
13. The situation of displaced persons also calls for urgent attention. The Government of El Salvador has been carrying out a policy of assisting displaced population groups through public and private inter-agency co-ordination of programmes aimed at meeting their most urgent and specific needs, so that they may become integrated in the country's economy and society.
14. In 1986, with the 'National Plan of Aid to Displaced Persons', the Government of El Salvador re-oriented its policy in favour of displaced persons and concentrated on the implementation of programmes in the following areas: (1) identification and registration of displaced persons; (2) social welfare; (3) literacy and health; (4) work training; (5) employment and production; (6) settlement; (7) food distribution; (8) administration.
15. These are the objectives aimed at by the National Commission for Aid to Displaced Persons (CONADES).
16. The situation of the Central American refugees is the result of the current political, economic and social conditions in the region. In this connection the Cartagena Declaration makes reference to factors connected with the situation in Central America that need to be taken into account in order to meet humanitarian needs and it proposes a more direct approach in dealing with questions of humanitarian law, asylum and protection.
17. Among the particular or special categories of persons who may need international protection are those whose well-founded fear entitles them to refugee status.
18. Regarding asylum and standards of protection, it is emphasized that, in the search for solutions, there should be co-operation based on the principles of solidarity and humanitarian feeling. There must be observance, not only of the rules concerning treatment of refugees in accordance with the international law in force and humanitarian principles and practices but also of rules of a socio-economic nature, including the right to education and health.
19. Camps in which there are refugees must be used for civilian and humanitarian refugee purposes. They must therefore not be used for the purpose of political or ideological activities and the introduction of elements or activities conflicting with the civilian and humanitarian character of a refugee camp must not be allowed.
20. It is pointed out that, in those cases where refugees are displaced or relocated, this must be done in a planned fashion so as to ensure the safety of the refugees and give them a better opportunity for survival.
21. Adopting one of the durable solutions proposed, El Salvador has arranged, on a voluntary, gradual and planned basis, the repatriation of Salvadorian refugees who were on Honduran territory, allowing them to resettle in their various places of origin, enabling them to obtain papers and furnishing them with assistance, through development plans and programmes established for their benefit.
22. The case of internally displaced persons requires special attention if the main problems of these persons are to be solved. In this connection a call should be made for the aid that is necessary in order to provide them with relief and improve their living conditions. Aid provided by the international community is vital for meeting the specific needs of internally displaced persons.

23. The international organizations, both governmental and non-governmental, through their activities to protect and assist refugees, returnees and displaced persons, obviously constitute the framework of the main humanitarian efforts in this area.
24. The Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) should receive effective and continuing co-operation in the performance of its valuable role and there should be joint support for new approaches to relations with that body. Greater international co-operation is needed to enable UNHCR to develop its services for refugees.
25. Consideration should be given to the special needs of the most vulnerable group among refugees and displaced persons, namely the women and children. Protection efforts should include special programmes to deal with the special needs of these categories of persons.
26. In order to increase the effectiveness of activities for the benefit of women and children, efforts should be made by UNHCR to recruit more female officers.
27. In order to increase support for activities in favour of refugees and displaced persons and to publicise them more effectively at the world level, it will be necessary to ensure the implementation and dissemination of the latest United Nations resolution and programme on assistance to refugees, returnees and displaced persons and of the resolution on Central American refugees and regional efforts for the solution of their problems that was adopted by the OAS General Assembly at its eighteenth session, held in San Salvador in November 1988.

3. Comments of the Government of Mexico

1. Considering the importance of the work developed by the Group of Experts and Jurists who undertook the investigation and analysis of the national and international documentation required for the preparation of the document under review, it is indispensable that its official presentation contains the names of the three experts who were convoked by UNHCR. It would also be convenient that the document itself identifies the foundations and agreements which gave rise to the convocation of the Group of Experts such as the San Salvador Communiqué of September 1988.
2. As a recommendation of general character, it would be necessary for the document to be re-arranged so that its contents would be in the following order.
 - Principles emanating from provisions of international agreements, treaties and multilateral conventions.
 - Principles, norms and criteria derived from other international instruments adopted at international and/or regional intergovernmental meetings (declarations, resolutions etc.).
 - Criteria or decisions included in other international documents adopted in or issued by international forums (non-governmental and/or governmental), such as seminars, colloquiums and meetings of experts.
3. Lastly, the paragraph which corresponds to chapter 10 on Dissemination would have to be the subject of a decision by the Conference. Additionally, it is important to underline that the principles and criteria developed in the document do not constitute, in their totality, the legal framework in which adequate solutions can be identified to the problems of refugees, returnees and displaced persons. The document is an excellent basis for consultation and guidance and of great significance for the protection of and assistance to the groups of persons referred to above. Only with this purpose in mind should it be extensively disseminated, for which reason it would be better understood if the words ‘for subsequent application’ could be eliminated.

RECOMMENDATION OF THE INTER-AMERICAN COMMISSION ON HUMAN RIGHTS ON ASYLUM AND INTERNATIONAL CRIMES

Adopted on 20 October 2000

Asylum is an institution that provides for the protection of individuals whose life or liberty is threatened or endangered by acts of persecution or violence stemming from the acts or omissions of a State. One form, political asylum, has been especially well-developed in Latin America. States have accepted that there are limits to asylum, based on several sources of international law, including that asylum cannot be granted to persons with respect to whom there are serious indicia that they may have committed international crimes, such as crimes against humanity (which include the forced disappearance of persons, torture, and summary executions), war crimes, and crimes against peace.

According to article 1(1) of the American Convention on Human Rights, the States have an obligation to prevent, investigate, and punish any violation of the rights recognized therein. The IACHR has stated previously that the evolution of the standards in public international law has consolidated the notion of universal jurisdiction, whereby any State has the authority to “prosecute and sanction individuals responsible for such international crimes, even those committed outside of a State’s territorial jurisdiction, or which do not relate to the nationality of the accused or of the victims, inasmuch as such crimes affect all of humanity and are in conflict with public order in the world community.”¹ The Inter-American Convention to Prevent and Punish Torture and the Inter-American Convention on Forced Disappearance of Persons expressly provide that a State party should take the measures necessary to establish its jurisdiction over the crimes provided for in those instruments when the alleged offender is within its jurisdiction and it does not extradite him/her.

Based on the foregoing considerations, the Inter-American Commission should note that the institution of asylum is totally subverted by granting such protection to persons who leave their country to elude a determination of their liability as the material or intellectual author of international crimes. The institution of asylum presupposes that the person seeking protection is persecuted in his or her state of origin, and is not supported by it in applying for asylum.

In view of the foregoing considerations, the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights, in the exercise of the power conferred on it by Article 41(b) of the American Convention, hereby recommends to the Member States of the OAS that they refrain from granting asylum to any person alleged to be the material or intellectual author of international crimes.

AMERICAN DECLARATION OF THE RIGHTS AND DUTIES OF MAN

Text: "Ninth Pan-American Conference, Bogotá, 1948", Acta y Documentos, p. 297

Whereas:

The American peoples have acknowledged the dignity of the individual, and their national constitutions recognize that juridical and political institutions, which regulate life in human society, have as their principal aim the protection of the essential rights of man and the creation of circumstances that will permit him to achieve spiritual and material progress and attain happiness;

The American States have on repeated occasions recognized that the essential rights of man are not derived from the fact that he is a national of a certain state, but are based upon attributes of his human personality;

The international protection of the rights of man should be the principal guide of an evolving American law;

The affirmation of essential human rights by the American States together with the guarantees given by the internal regimes of the states establish the initial system of protection considered by the American States as being suited to the present social and juridical conditions, not without a recognition on their part that they should increasingly strengthen that system in the international field as conditions become more favourable,

The Ninth International Conference of American States

Agrees:

To adopt the following

AMERICAN DECLARATION OF THE RIGHTS AND DUTIES OF MAN

PREAMBLE

All men are born free and equal, in dignity and in rights, and, being endowed by nature with reason and conscience, they should conduct themselves as brothers one to another.

The fulfilment of duty by each individual is a prerequisite to the rights of all. Rights and duties are interrelated in every social and political activity of man. While rights exalt individual liberty, duties express the dignity of that liberty.

Duties of a juridical nature presuppose others of a moral nature which support them in principle and constitute their basis.

Inasmuch as spiritual development is the supreme end of human existence and the highest expression thereof, it is the duty of man to serve that end with all his strength and resources.

Since culture is the highest social and historical expression of that spiritual development, it is the duty of man to preserve, practice and foster culture by every means within his power.

And, since moral conduct constitutes the noblest flowering of culture, it is the duty of every man always to hold it in high respect.

AMERICAN CONVENTION ON HUMAN RIGHTS (PACT OF SAN JOSÉ)

Adopted at the Inter-American Specialized Conference on Human Rights, San José, Costa Rica, 22 November 1969

Entry into force: 18 July 1978, in accordance with Article 74
Text: United Nations, Treaty Series, vol. 1144, p. 123

PREAMBLE

The American states signatory to the present Convention,

Reaffirming their intention to consolidate in this hemisphere, within the framework of democratic institutions, a system of personal liberty and social justice based on respect for the essential rights of man;

Recognizing that the essential rights of man are not derived from one's being a national of a certain state, but are based upon attributes of the human personality, and that they therefore justify international protection in the form of a convention reinforcing or complementing the protection provided by the domestic law of the American states;

Considering that these principles have been set forth in the Charter of the Organization of American States, in the American Declaration of the Rights and Duties of Man, and in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, and that they have been reaffirmed and refined in other international instruments, worldwide as well as regional in scope;

Reiterating that, in accordance with the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the ideal of free men enjoying freedom from fear and want can be achieved only if conditions are created whereby everyone may enjoy his economic, social, and cultural rights, as well as his civil and political rights; and

Considering that the Third Special Inter-American Conference (Buenos Aires, 1967) approved the incorporation into the Charter of the Organization itself of broader standards with respect to economic, social, and educational rights and resolved that an inter-American convention on human rights should determine the structure, competence, and procedure of the organs responsible for these matters,

Have agreed upon the following:

PART I

STATE OBLIGATIONS AND RIGHTS PROTECTED

GENERAL OBLIGATIONS

Article 1

Obligation to Respect Rights

1. 2. In countries that have not abolished the death penalty, it may be imposed only for the most serious crimes and pursuant to a final judgment rendered by a competent court and in accordance with a law establishing such punishment, enacted prior to the commission of the crime. The application of such punishment shall not be extended to crimes to which it does not presently apply.
3. The death penalty shall not be re-established in states that have abolished it.
4. In no case shall capital punishment be inflicted for political offenses or related common crimes.
5. Capital punishment shall not be imposed upon persons who, at the time the crime was committed, were under 18 years of age or over 70 years of age; nor shall it be applied to pregnant women.

5. Minors while subject to criminal proceedings shall be separated from adults and brought before specialized tribunals, as speedily as possible, so that they may be treated in accordance with their status as minors.
6. Punishments consisting of deprivation of liberty shall have as an essential aim the reform and social re-adaptation of the prisoners.

Article 6

Freedom from Slavery

1. No one shall be subject to slavery or to involuntary servitude, which are prohibited in all their forms, as are the slave trade and traffic in women.

Forced labour shall not adversely affect the dignity or the physical or intellectual capacity of the prisoner.
3. For the purposes of this article, the following do not constitute forced or compulsory labour:

His release may be subject to guarantees to assure his appearance for trial.
6. Anyone who is deprived of his liberty shall be entitled to recourse to a competent court, in order that the court may decide without delay on the lawfulness of his arrest or detention and order his release if the arrest or detention is unlawful. In States Parties whose laws provide that anyone who believes himself to be threatened with deprivation of his liberty is entitled to recourse to a competent court in order that it may decide on the lawfulness of such threat, this remedy may not be restricted or abolished. The interested party or another person on his behalf is entitled to seek these remedies.

ADDITIONAL PROTOCOL TO THE AMERICAN CONVENTION ON HUMAN RIGHTS IN THE AREA OF ECONOMIC, SOCIAL AND CULTURAL RIGHTS (PROTOCOL OF SAN SALVADOR)

Adopted at San Salvador on 17 November 1988

Entry into force: 16 November 1999, in accordance with Article 21
Text: OAS, Treaty Series, No. 69

PREAMBLE

The States Parties to the American Convention on Human Rights "Pact of San José, Costa Rica,"

Reaffirming their intention to consolidate in this hemisphere, within the framework of democratic institutions, a system of personal liberty and social justice based on respect for the essential rights of man;

Recognizing that the essential rights of man are not derived from one's being a national of a certain State, but are based upon attributes of the human person, for which reason they merit international protection in the form of a convention reinforcing or complementing the protection provided by the domestic law of the American States;

Considering the close relationship that exists between economic, social and cultural rights, and civil and political rights, in that the different categories of rights constitute an indivisible whole based on the recognition of the dignity of the human person, for which reason both require permanent protection and promotion if they are to be fully realized, and the violation of some rights in favour of the realization of others can never be justified;

Recognizing the benefits that stem from the promotion and development of cooperation among States and international relations;

Recalling that, in accordance with the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and the American Convention on Human Rights, the ideal of free human beings enjoying freedom from fear and want can only be achieved if conditions are created whereby everyone may enjoy his economic, social and cultural rights as well as his civil and political rights;

Bearing in mind that, although fundamental economic, social and cultural rights have been recognized in earlier international instruments of both world and regional scope, it is essential that those rights be reaffirmed, developed, perfected and protected in order to consolidate in America, on the basis of full respect for the rights of the individual, the democratic representative form of government as well as the right of its peoples to development, self-determination, and the free disposal of their wealth and natural resources; and

Considering that the American Convention on Human Rights provides that draft additional protocols to that Convention may be submitted for consideration to the States Parties, meeting together on the occasion of the General Assembly of the Organization of American States, for the purpose of gradually incorporating other rights and freedoms into the protective system thereof,

Have agreed upon the following Additional Protocol to the American Convention on Human Rights "Protocol of San Salvador:"

Article 1

Article 2

INTER-AMERICAN DEMOCRATIC CHARTER (DECLARATION OF LIMA)

Adopted by the OAS General Assembly at its special session held in Lima, Peru, on September 11, 2001

Text: OAS Document OEA/SerP/AG/Res.1 (2001)

The General Assembly,

Considering that the Charter of the Organization of American States recognizes that representative democracy is indispensable for the stability, peace, and development of the region, and that one of the purposes of the OAS is to promote and consolidate representative democracy, with due respect for the principle of non-intervention;

Recognizing the contributions of the OAS and other regional and sub-regional mechanisms to the promotion and consolidation of democracy in the Americas;

Recalling that the Heads of State and Government of the Americas, gathered at the Third Summit of the Americas, held from April 20 to 22, 2001 in Quebec City, adopted a democracy clause which establishes that any unconstitutional alteration or interruption of the democratic order in a state of the Hemisphere constitutes an insurmountable obstacle to the participation of that state's government in the Summits of the Americas process;

Bearing in mind that existing democratic provisions in regional and subregional mechanisms express the same objectives as the democracy clause adopted by the Heads of State and Government in Quebec City;

Reaffirming that the participatory nature of democracy in our countries in different aspects of public life contributes to the consolidation of democratic values and to freedom and solidarity in the Hemisphere;

Considering that solidarity among and cooperation between American states require the political organization of those states based on the effective exercise of representative democracy, and that economic growth and social development based on justice and equity, and democracy are interdependent and mutually reinforcing;

Reaffirming that the fight against poverty, and especially the elimination of extreme poverty, is essential to the promotion and consolidation of democracy and constitutes a common and shared responsibility of the American states;

Bearing in mind that the American Declaration on the Rights and Duties of Man and the American Convention on Human Rights contain the values and principles of liberty, equality, and social justice that are intrinsic to democracy;

Reaffirming that the promotion and protection of human rights is a basic pre-requisite for the existence of a democratic society, and recognizing the importance of the continuous development and strengthening of the inter-American human rights system for the consolidation of democracy;

Considering that education is an effective way to promote citizens' awareness concerning their own countries and thereby achieve meaningful participation in the decision-making process, and reaffirming the importance of human resource development for a sound democratic system;

Recognizing that a safe environment is essential to the integral development of the human being, which contributes to democracy and political stability;

Bearing in mind that the Protocol of San Salvador on Economic, Social, and Cultural Rights emphasizes the great importance of the reaffirmation, development, improvement, and protection of those rights in order to consolidate the system of representative democratic government;

Recognizing that the right of workers to associate themselves freely for the defence and promotion of their interests is fundamental to the fulfilment of democratic ideals;

Taking into account that, in the Santiago Commitment to Democracy and the Renewal of the Inter-American System, the ministers of foreign affairs expressed their determination to adopt a series of effective, timely, and expeditious procedures to ensure the promotion and defence of representative democracy, with due respect for the principle of non-intervention; and that resolution AG/RES. 1080 (XXI-O/91) therefore established a mechanism for collective action in the case of a sudden or irregular interruption of the democratic political institutional process or of the legitimate exercise of power by the democratically-elected government in any of the Organization's Member States, thereby fulfilling a long-standing aspiration of the Hemisphere to be able to respond rapidly and collectively in defence of democracy;

Recalling that, in the Declaration of Nassau [AG/DEC. 1 (XXII-O/92)], it was agreed to develop mechanisms to provide assistance, when requested by a Member State, to promote, preserve, and strengthen representative democracy, in order to complement and give effect to the provisions of resolution AG/RES. 1080 (XXI-O/91);

Bearing in mind that, in the Declaration of Managua for the Promotion of Democracy and Development [AG/DEC. 4 (XXIII-O/93)], the Member States expressed their firm belief that democracy, peace, and development are inseparable and indivisible parts of a renewed and integral vision of solidarity in the Americas; and that the ability of the Organization to help preserve and strengthen democratic structures in the region will depend on the implementation of a strategy based on the interdependence and complementarity of those values;

Considering that, in the Declaration of Managua for the Promotion of Democracy and Development, the Member States expressed their conviction that the Organization's mission is not limited to the defence of democracy wherever its fundamental values and principles have collapsed, but also calls for ongoing and creative work to consolidate democracy as well as a continuing effort to prevent and anticipate the very causes of the problems that affect the democratic system of government;

Bearing in mind that the Ministers of Foreign Affairs of the Americas, at the thirty-first regular session of the General Assembly, held in San Jose, Costa Rica, in keeping with express instructions from the Heads of State and Government gathered at the Third Summit of the Americas, in Quebec City, accepted the base document of the Inter-American Democratic Charter and entrusted the Permanent Council of the Organization with strengthening and expanding the document, in accordance with the OAS Charter, for final adoption at a special session of the General Assembly in Lima, Peru;

Recognizing that all the rights and obligations of Member States under the OAS Charter represent the foundation on which democratic principles in the Hemisphere are built; and

Bearing in mind the progressive development of international law and the advisability of clarifying the provisions set forth in the OAS Charter and related basic instruments on the preservation and defence of democratic institutions, according to established practice,

Resolves

To adopt the following:

INTER-AMERICAN DEMOCRATIC CHARTER

I. DEMOCRACY AND THE INTER-AMERICAN SYSTEM

Article 1

The peoples of the Americas have a right to democracy and their governments have an obligation to promote and defend it.

Democracy is essential for the social, political, and economic development of the peoples of the Americas.

Article 2

The effective exercise of representative democracy is the basis for the rule of law and of the constitutional regimes of the Member States of the Organization of American States. Representative democracy is strengthened and deepened by permanent, ethical, and responsible participation of the citizenry within a legal framework conforming to the respective constitutional order.

Article 3

Essential elements of representative democracy include, inter alia, respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms, access to and the exercise of power in accordance with the rule of law, the holding of periodic, free, and fair elections based on secret balloting and universal suffrage as an expression of the sovereignty of the people, the pluralistic system of political parties and organizations, and the separation of powers and independence of the branches of government.

Article 4

Transparency in government activities, probity, responsible public administration on the part of governments, respect for social rights, and freedom of expression and of the press are essential components of the exercise of democracy.

The constitutional subordination of all state institutions to the legally constituted civilian authority and respect for the rule of law on the part of all institutions and sectors of society are equally essential to democracy.

Article 5

The strengthening of political parties and other political organizations is a priority for democracy. Special attention will be paid to the problems associated with the high cost of election campaigns and the establishment of a balanced and transparent system for their financing.

Article 6

It is the right and responsibility of all citizens to participate in decisions relating to their own development. This is also a necessary condition for the full and effective exercise of democracy. Promoting and fostering diverse forms of participation strengthens democracy.

II. DEMOCRACY AND HUMAN RIGHTS

Article 7

Democracy is indispensable for the effective exercise of fundamental freedoms and human rights in their universality, indivisibility and interdependence, embodied in the respective constitutions of states and in inter-American and international human rights instruments.

Article 8

Any person or group of persons who consider that their human rights have been violated may present claims or petitions to the inter-American system for the promotion and protection of human rights in accordance with its established procedures.

Member states reaffirm their intention to strengthen the inter-American system for the protection of human rights for the consolidation of democracy in the Hemisphere.

Article 9

The elimination of all forms of discrimination, especially gender, ethnic and race discrimination, as well as diverse forms of intolerance, the promotion and protection of human rights of indigenous peoples and migrants, and respect for ethnic, cultural and religious diversity in the Americas contribute to strengthening democracy and citizen participation.

Article 10

The promotion and strengthening of democracy requires the full and effective exercise of workers' rights and the application of core labour standards, as recognized in the International Labour Organization (ILO) Declaration on Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work, and its Follow-up, adopted in 1998, as well as other related fundamental ILO conventions. Democracy is strengthened by improving standards in the workplace and enhancing the quality of life for workers in the Hemisphere.

III. DEMOCRACY, INTEGRAL DEVELOPMENT, AND COMBATING POVERTY

Article 11

Democracy and social and economic development are interdependent and are mutually reinforcing.

Article 12

Poverty, illiteracy, and low levels of human development are factors that adversely affect the consolidation of democracy. The OAS Member States are committed to adopting and implementing all those actions required to generate productive employment, reduce poverty, and eradicate extreme poverty, taking into account the different economic realities and conditions of the countries of the Hemisphere. This shared commitment regarding the problems associated with development and poverty also underscores the importance of maintaining macroeconomic equilibria and the obligation to strengthen social cohesion and democracy.

Article 13

The promotion and observance of economic, social, and cultural rights are inherently linked to integral development, equitable economic growth, and to the consolidation of democracy in the states of the Hemisphere.

Article 14

Member states agree to review periodically the actions adopted and carried out by the Organization to promote dialogue, cooperation for integral development, and the fight against poverty in the Hemisphere, and to take the appropriate measures to further these objectives.

Article 15

The exercise of democracy promotes the preservation and good stewardship of the environment. It is essential that the states of the Hemisphere implement policies and strategies to protect the environment, including application of various treaties and conventions, to achieve sustainable development for the benefit of future generations.

Article 16

Education is key to strengthening democratic institutions, promoting the development of human potential, and alleviating poverty and fostering greater understanding among our peoples. To achieve these ends, it is essential that a quality education be available to all, including girls and women, rural inhabitants, and minorities.

IV. STRENGTHENING AND PRESERVATION OF DEMOCRATIC INSTITUTIONS

Article 17

When the government of a Member State considers that its democratic political institutional process or its legitimate exercise of power is at risk, it may request assistance from the Secretary General or the Permanent Council for the strengthening and preservation of its democratic system.

Article 18

When situations arise in a Member State that may affect the development of its democratic political institutional process or the legitimate exercise of power, the Secretary General or the Permanent Council may, with prior consent of the government concerned, arrange for visits or other actions in order to analyze the situation. The Secretary General will submit a report to the Permanent Council, which will undertake a collective assessment of the situation and, where necessary, may adopt decisions for the preservation of the democratic system and its strengthening.

Article 19

Based on the principles of the Charter of the OAS and subject to its norms, and in accordance with the democracy clause contained in the Declaration of Quebec City, an unconstitutional interruption of the democratic order or an unconstitutional alteration of the constitutional regime that seriously impairs the democratic order in a Member State, constitutes, while it persists, an insurmountable obstacle to its government's participation in sessions of the General Assembly, the Meeting of Consultation, the Councils of the Organization, the specialized conferences, the commissions, working groups, and other bodies of the Organization.

Article 20

In the event of an unconstitutional alteration of the constitutional regime that seriously impairs the democratic order in a Member State, any Member State or the Secretary General may request the immediate convocation of the Permanent Council to undertake a collective assessment of the situation and to take such decisions as it deems appropriate.

The Permanent Council, depending on the situation, may undertake the necessary diplomatic initiatives, including good offices, to foster the restoration of democracy.

If such diplomatic initiatives prove unsuccessful, or if the urgency of the situation so warrants, the Permanent Council shall immediately convene a special session of the General Assembly. The General Assembly will adopt the decisions it deems appropriate, including the undertaking of diplomatic initiatives, in accordance with the Charter of the Organization, international law, and the provisions of this Democratic Charter.

The necessary diplomatic initiatives, including good offices, to foster the restoration of democracy, will continue during the process.

Article 21

When the special session of the General Assembly determines that there has been an unconstitutional interruption of the democratic order of a Member State, and that diplomatic initiatives have failed, the special session shall take the decision to suspend said Member State from the exercise of its right to participate in the OAS by an affirmative vote of two thirds of the Member States in accordance with the Charter of the OAS. The suspension shall take effect immediately.

The suspended Member State shall continue to fulfil its obligations to the Organization, in particular its human rights obligations.

Notwithstanding the suspension of the Member State, the Organization will maintain diplomatic initiatives to restore democracy in that state.

Article 22

Once the situation that led to suspension has been resolved, any Member State or the Secretary General may propose to the General Assembly that suspension be lifted. This decision shall require the vote of two thirds of the Member States in accordance with the OAS Charter.

V. DEMOCRACY AND ELECTORAL OBSERVATION MISSIONS

Article 23

Member States are responsible for organizing, conducting, and ensuring free and fair electoral processes.

Member States, in the exercise of their sovereignty, may request that the Organization of American States provide advisory services or assistance for strengthening and developing their electoral institutions and processes, including sending preliminary missions for that purpose.

Article 24

The electoral observation missions shall be carried out at the request of the Member State concerned. To that end, the government of that state and the Secretary General shall enter into an agreement establishing the scope and coverage of the electoral observation mission in question. The Member State shall guarantee conditions of security, free access to information, and full cooperation with the electoral observation mission.

Electoral observation missions shall be carried out in accordance with the principles and norms of the OAS. The Organization shall ensure that these missions are effective and independent and shall provide them with the necessary resources for that purpose. They shall be conducted in an objective, impartial, and transparent manner and with the appropriate technical expertise.

Electoral observation missions shall present a report on their activities in a timely manner to the Permanent Council, through the General Secretariat.

Article 25

The electoral observation missions shall advise the Permanent Council, through the General Secretariat, if the necessary conditions for free and fair elections do not exist.

The Organization may, with the consent of the state concerned, send special missions with a view to creating or improving said conditions.

VI. PROMOTION OF A DEMOCRATIC CULTURE

Article 26

The OAS will continue to carry out programs and activities designed to promote democratic principles and practices and strengthen a democratic culture in the Hemisphere, bearing in mind that democracy is a way of life based on liberty and enhancement of economic, social, and cultural conditions for the peoples of the Americas. The OAS will consult and cooperate on an ongoing basis with Member States and take into account the contributions of civil society organizations working in those fields.

Article 27

The objectives of the programs and activities will be to promote good governance, sound administration, democratic values, and the strengthening of political institutions and civil society organizations. Special attention shall be given to the development of programs and activities for the education of children and youth as a means of ensuring the continuance of democratic values, including liberty and social justice.

Article 28

States shall promote the full and equal participation of women in the political structures of their countries as a fundamental element in the promotion and exercise of a democratic culture.

INTER-AMERICAN CONVENTION ON THE INTERNATIONAL RETURN OF CHILDREN

Adopted on 15 July 1989 at the Fourth Inter-American Specialized Conference on Private International Law (CIDIP-IV)

Entry into force: 4 November 1994, in accordance with Article 36
Text: OAS, Treaty Series, No. 70

Article 1

The purpose of this Convention is to secure the prompt return of children habitually resident in one State Party who have been wrongfully removed from any State to a State Party or who, having been lawfully removed, have been wrongfully retained. This Convention further seeks to secure enforcement of visitation and custody rights of parties entitled to them.

Article 2

For the purposes of this Convention, a child shall be any person below the age of sixteen years.

Article 3

For the purposes of this Convention:

- (a) Rights of custody include rights relating to the care of the child and, in particular, the right to determine the child's place of residence;
- (b) Rights of visitation include the right to take a child for a limited period of time to a place other than the child's habitual residence.

Article 4

The removal or retention of a child shall be considered wrongful whenever it is in breach of the custody rights that parents, institutions or others having such rights individually or jointly exercise over the child under the law of the child's habitual residence immediately prior to the removal or retention.

Article 5

Any party designated by Article 4 may, in the exercise of custody or similar rights, bring an action for the child's return.

Article 6

Judicial or administrative authorities of the State Party in which the child habitually resided immediately before the removal or retention shall have jurisdiction to consider a petition for the child's return.

In urgent cases, the applicant may choose, instead, to file a request for the child's return directly with authorities of the State Party in whose territory the wrongfully removed or retained child is or is thought to be when the request is made, or with the authorities of the State Party in which the wrongful act giving rise to the request took place.

Making a request in the manner described in the preceding paragraph shall in no way alter the jurisdiction authorized by the first paragraph of this article.

THE CENTRAL AUTHORITYArticle 7

For the purposes of this Convention, each State Party shall designate a central authority to ensure fulfilment of the obligations established under this Convention and shall inform the General Secretariat of the Organization of American States of that designation.

Specifically the Central Authority shall assist the applicant and competent authorities of the respective States in locating and returning the child. It shall also facilitate the prompt return and delivery of the child to the applicant and assist the parties in obtaining the necessary documents for proceedings under this Convention.

The Central Authorities of the States Parties shall cooperate with one another and exchange information on the operation of the Convention in order to secure the prompt return of children and to achieve the other purposes of this Convention.

RETURN PROCEEDINGS

Article 8

A party seeking a child's return may file an application or petition with the competent authorities in accordance with Article 6:

- (a) By a letter rogatory;
- (b) By filing a request with a central authority; or
- (c) Directly, or through diplomatic or consular channels.

Article 9

1. The application or petition referred to in Article 8 shall contain:
 - (a) An account of the removal or retention and sufficient information to identify the applicant, the removed or retained child and, where possible, the person alleged to have removed or retained the child;
 - (b) Information on the presumed location of the child and on the circumstances and dates of the removal to a foreign country or of the expiration of the authorized length of stay; and
 - (c) The legal grounds for the child's return.
2. The application or petition shall be accompanied by:
 - (a) A full and certified copy of a judicial or administrative opinion, if any, or of a determination on which the request is based; concise evidence of the existing situation or, if appropriate, a statement of the pertinent applicable law;
 - (b) Certified documents establishing the standing of the applicant;
 - (c) Certification of or information on the applicable law of the State of the child's habitual residence issued by the Central Authority of, or by any other competent source in, that State;
 - (d) Where necessary, translations into the official language of the requested State of all documents referred to in this article; and
 - (e) A statement of the measures required to effect the return of the child.
3. A competent authority may dispense with any of the requirements on the presentation of documents called for by this article if, in its opinion, the child's return is justified.
4. Letters rogatory or requests, and the documents attached thereto, shall not require certification if they are transmitted through diplomatic or consular channels or through the Central Authority.

Article 10

The requested court, Central Authority, or other competent authorities of the State where the child is found shall, where appropriate, take all measures conducive to the voluntary return of the child.

Should a voluntary return not take place, the judicial, or administrative authorities, after verifying compliance with Article 9, shall forthwith meet with the child and take such measures to provide for its temporary custody or care as the circumstances may dictate, and shall, where appropriate, immediately order its return. Further, the agency charged by domestic law with protecting the child's welfare shall be notified.

In addition, while the application for return is pending, the competent authorities shall take the necessary steps to prevent the child from leaving their jurisdiction.

Article 11

A judicial or administrative authority of the requested State is not required to order the child's return if the party raising objections to the return establishes that:

- (a) The party seeking the child's return was not actually exercising its rights at the time of the removal or retention, or had consented to or subsequently acquiesced in such removal or retention; or
- (b) There is a grave risk that the child's return would expose the child to physical or psychological danger.

The requested authority may also refuse to order the child's return if it finds that the child is opposed to it and if, in the judgment of the requested authority, the child's age and maturity warrant taking its views into account.

Article 12

The objections mentioned in Article 11 shall be raised within a period of eight working days from the time the authorities meet with the child and bring such period to the attention of the person retaining the child.

The judicial or administrative authorities shall assess the circumstances and the evidence furnished by the opposing party to support its objections to the child's return, shall ascertain the applicable law and judicial or administrative precedents of the State of the child's habitual residence, and, if necessary, shall request assistance from Central Authorities, diplomatic agents or consular officers of the States Parties.

The judicial or administrative authority shall issue its decision within sixty calendar days after receipt of the objection.

Article 13

If within forty-five calendar days after the requesting authority has received notice of a decision to return the child, the steps necessary for the child's return have not been taken, the return order shall become inoperative and any measures taken shall be lifted.

Costs of the return shall be borne by the claimant; should the claimant lack the means, the authorities of a requesting State may defray the costs, which may be recovered from the person responsible for the wrongful removal or retention.

Article 14

Proceedings under this Convention shall be commenced within one calendar year of the wrongful removal or retention.

As to children whose location is unknown, the period shall run from the time they are located.

Nevertheless, expiration of the one-year period shall not bar the child's return if, in the opinion of the requested authority, the circumstances so warrant, unless it is demonstrated that the child is settled in its new environment.

Article 15

The fact of a child's return shall not prejudice the ultimate custody decision.

Article 16

After receiving notice of a child's wrongful removal or retention as defined in Article 4, the judicial or administrative authorities of the State Party to which the child has been removed or where it is retained shall refrain from deciding on the merits of custody claims until it is determined either that the child is not to be returned under this Convention or that no request pursuant to this Convention has been lodged within a reasonable time following receipt of such notice.

Article 17

The foregoing provisions shall not limit the power of a judicial or administrative authority to order the child's return at any time.

LOCATING MINORS

Article 18

Any person mentioned in Article 5 may directly, through the Central Authority, or through the judicial or administrative authorities of one State Party request the competent authorities of another State Party to locate children whose habitual residence is in the State of the requesting authority and who are thought to be wrongfully in the requested State.

The request shall be accompanied by any information supplied by the person making the request or gathered by the requesting authority relevant to the locating of the child and the identity of the person with whom the child is presumed to be.

Article 19

The Central Authority or judicial or administrative authorities of one State Party which, upon learning from a request pursuant to Article 18 that a child wrongfully outside its habitual residence is located within their jurisdiction, shall immediately take all appropriate measures to safeguard its health and prevent its concealment or removal to another jurisdiction.

The location of the child shall be reported to the authorities of the requesting State.

Article 20

The measures adopted pursuant to Article 19 may be lifted if the child's return is not requested within sixty calendar days after the authorities of the requesting State have been informed of the location of the child.

A lifting of such measures shall not preclude exercise of the right to request the child's return in accordance with the procedures and time limits specified in this Convention.

VISITATION RIGHTS

Article 21

Any person with visitation rights may, pursuant to Article 6, address a request for their enforcement to the competent authorities of any State Party. The same procedures shall be followed as those governing a request for a child's return under this Convention.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Article 22

Letters rogatory and requests for the return or the locating of children may be transmitted, as appropriate, to the requested authority by the parties themselves, or through judicial, diplomatic, or consular channels, or through the Central Authority of the requesting or the requested State.

Article 23

The processing of letters rogatory or requests under this Convention and the measures arising therefrom shall be free of charge and exempt from any tax, deposit or bond, however named.

The parties initiating a letter rogatory or request that have appointed a person to represent them in the requested forum shall bear any expenses incurred in connection with such representation.

Nevertheless, upon ordering a child's return under this Convention, the competent authorities may, where appropriate, direct the person who wrongfully removed or retained the child to pay the necessary expenses incurred by the applicant, those incurred in locating the minor, and the costs of return.

Article 24

The arrangements and measures necessary to give effect to letters rogatory shall not require the intervention of the petitioner, and shall be implemented directly by the requested authority. This procedure, however, shall not bar any party from intervening either personally or through a duly appointed representative.

Article 25

A child's return under this Convention may be refused where it would be manifestly in violation of the fundamental principles of the requested State recognized by universal and regional instruments on human rights or on the rights of children.

Article 26

This Convention shall not bar the competent authorities from ordering the child's immediate return when its removal or retention is a criminal offense.

Article 27

As a Specialized Organization of the Organization of American States, the Inter-American Children's Institute shall be responsible for coordinating the activities of the Central Authorities within the scope of the Convention and for receiving and evaluating information from the States Parties in respect of application of the Convention.

It shall also be responsible for cooperating with other international organizations competent in the matter.

FINAL PROVISIONS

Article 28

This Convention shall be open for signature by the Member States of the Organization of American States.

Article 29

This Convention is subject to ratification. The instruments of ratification shall be deposited with the General Secretariat of the Organization of American States.

Article 30

This Convention shall remain open for accession by any other State. The instruments of accession shall be deposited with the General Secretariat of the Organization of American States.

Article 31

Each State may, at the time of signature, ratification or accession, make reservations to this Convention, provided that each reservation concerns one or more specific provisions and is not incompatible with the purposes and objectives of this Convention.

Article 32

If a State has two or more territorial units in which different systems of law apply in relation to the matters dealt with in this Convention, it may, at the time of signature, ratification or accession, declare that this Convention shall extend to all its territorial units or to only one or more of them.

Such declaration may be modified by subsequent declarations, which shall expressly indicate the territorial unit or units to which the Convention applies. Such subsequent declarations shall be transmitted to the General Secretariat of the Organization of American States, and shall become effective thirty days after the date of their receipt.

Article 33

In the case of a State that, with respect to the custody of children, has two or more systems of law applicable in different territorial units:

- (a) Any reference to the habitual residence in that State refers to habitual residence in a territorial unit of that State;
- (b) Any reference to the law of the State of habitual residence refers to the law of the territorial unit in which the child has its habitual residence.

Article 34

Among the Member States of the Organization of American States that are parties to this Convention and to the Hague Convention of October 25, 1980 on the civil aspects of international child abduction, this Convention shall prevail.

However, States Parties may enter into bilateral agreements to give priority to the application of the Hague Convention.

Article 35

This Convention shall limit neither the provisions of existing or future bilateral or multilateral conventions on this subject entered into by the States Parties, nor the more favourable practices that those States may observe in this area.

Article 36

This Convention shall enter into force on the thirtieth day following the date of deposit of the second instrument of ratification.

For each State ratifying; or acceding to the Convention after the deposit of the second instrument of ratification, the Convention shall enter into force on the thirtieth day after deposit by such State of its instrument of ratification or accession.

Article 37

This Convention shall remain in force indefinitely, but any of the States Parties may denounce it. The instrument of denunciation shall be deposited with the General Secretariat of the Organization of American States. After one year from the date of deposit of the instrument of denunciation, the Convention shall no longer be in force for the denouncing State, but shall remain in force for the other States Parties.

Article 38

The original instrument of this Convention, the English, French, Portuguese and Spanish texts of which are equally authentic, shall be deposited with the General Secretariat of the Organization of American States, which shall forward an authenticated copy of its text to the Secretariat of the United Nations for registration and publication in accordance with Article 102 of its Charter. The General Secretariat of the Organization of American States shall notify the Member States of that Organization and the States that have acceded to the Convention of the signatures, deposits of instruments of ratification, accession and denunciation, as well as of reservations, if any. It shall also transmit the declarations provided for in the pertinent articles of this Convention.

The States Parties to this Convention,

Considering the importance of ensuring comprehensive and effective protection for minors, through appropriate mechanisms to guarantee respect for their rights;

Aware that the international traffic in minors is a universal concern;

Taking into consideration conventions on international protection of minors, particularly the provisions of Articles 11 and 35 of the Convention on the Rights of the Child, adopted by the United Nations General Assembly on November 20, 1989;

Reaffirming the importance of international cooperation to achieve effective protection of the best interests of minors,

Have agreed upon the following:

CHAPTER I

Article 3

This Convention shall also cover the civil aspects of the wrongful removal, transfer, or retention of minors internationally, not dealt with by other international conventions on this subject.

Article 4

To the extent possible, States Parties shall cooperate with States that are not Parties in preventing and punishing international traffic in minors, and in protecting and caring for minors who are victims of that wrongful act.

The competent authorities of a State Party are to notify the competent authorities of a State that is not a Party whenever a minor is within its territory who has been a victim of international traffic in minors in a State Party.

Article 5

For the purposes of the present Convention, each State Party shall designate a Central Authority and shall inform the General Secretariat of the Organization of American States of that designation.

A federal State, or a State in which several legal systems apply, or a State with autonomous territorial units may designate more than one Central Authority, specifying the legal or territorial area covered by each of them. The State making use of this possibility shall designate the Central Authority to which all communications should be addressed.

Should a State Party designate more than one Central Authority, it shall so inform the General Secretariat of the Organization of American States.

Article 6

States Parties shall protect the minor's interests with a view to ensuring that all procedures applied pursuant to the present Convention shall remain confidential.

CHAPTER II

PENAL ASPECTS

Article 7

The States Parties undertake to adopt effective measures, under their domestic law, to prevent and severely punish the international traffic in minors defined in this Convention.

Article 8

The States Parties to the present Convention undertake to:

- (a) Assist each other promptly and expeditiously through their Central Authorities, as permitted by the domestic laws of each State and by applicable international treaties, to conduct judicial and administrative proceedings, to take evidence, and to take any other procedural steps that may be necessary for fulfilling the objectives of this Convention;
- (b) Establish through their Central Authorities mechanisms for the exchange of information about any domestic statute, case law, administrative practices, statistics and modalities regarding international traffic in minors in their States; and
- (c) Order such measures as may be necessary to remove any obstacles that might affect the enforcement of this Convention in their States.

Article 9

The following shall have competence in cases of crimes involving international traffic in minors:

- (a) The State Party where the wrongful conduct occurred;
- (b) The State Party that is the habitual residence of the minor;
- (c) The State Party in which the alleged offender is located if said offender has not been extradited.
- (d) The State Party in which the minor who is a victim of said traffic is located.

For the purposes of the preceding paragraph, the State Party that first conducted formal proceedings concerning the wrongful act shall have preference.

Article 10

If one of the States Parties where extradition is subject to the existence of a treaty receives a request for extradition from a State Party with which it has no such treaty, or if it has such a treaty, this crime is not among the extraditable offenses, it may consider the present Convention as the legal grounds needed to grant extradition in the case of the international traffic in minors.

Further, States Parties that do not make extradition conditional on the existence of a treaty shall recognize the international traffic in minors as a basis for extradition between them. Where no extradition treaty exists, extradition shall be subject to the other conditions required by the domestic laws of the requested State.

Article 11

The actions taken in accordance with the provisions of this chapter shall not prevent the competent authorities of the State Party where the minor is located from ordering, at any time, said minor's immediate return to the State of his or her habitual residence, bearing in mind the best interests of the minor.

CHAPTER III

CIVIL ASPECTS

Article 12

A request for locating and returning a minor under the present Convention shall be lodged by those entitled to do so by the laws of the State where the minor habitually resides.

Article 13

The judicial or administrative authorities of the State Party of the minor's habitual residence, or those of the State Party where the minor is or is assumed to be retained, shall be competent to hear the request for the minor's location and return, at the option of the complainants.

When in the complainants' view there are urgent reasons, the request may be submitted to the judicial or administrative authorities of the State Party where the wrongful act occurred.

Article 14

The request for locating and returning shall not require authentication and shall be processed through the Central Authorities or directly through the competent authorities referred to in Article 13 of the present Convention. The requested authorities shall decide upon the most expeditious procedures for effecting it.

After receiving the request, the requested authorities shall order the necessary steps taken in accordance with their domestic laws to initiate, facilitate, and assist the judicial and administrative procedures involved in locating and returning the minor. In addition, steps shall be taken to ensure the immediate return of the minor, and where necessary, to ensure his or her care, custody or provisional guardianship, depending on the circumstances, and, as a preventive measure, to bar the minor from being wrongfully removed to another State.

The request, stating grounds for location and return of the minor, shall be lodged within one hundred and twenty days after the wrongful removal or retention of the minor has been detected. If the request for location and return is lodged by a State Party, the latter shall do so within one hundred and eighty days.

When it is necessary to take action before locating the minor, the above-mentioned period shall run from the day on which a person or authority entitled to file the request is informed that the minor has been located.

Irrespective of the above, the authorities of the State Party where the minor is retained may at any time order his or her return if it is in the minor's best interests.

Article 15

The authentication or similar formalities otherwise required shall be unnecessary when requests for cooperation encompassed by this Convention are transmitted via consular or diplomatic channels or via the Central Authorities, and when conveyed directly from one tribunal to another in the border area of the States Parties. No authentication in the requesting State Party shall be required in the case of related documents returned via the same channels.

Where necessary, the requests shall be translated into the official language or languages of the State Party to which they are addressed. With respect to attachments, a translation of the summary of the essential information shall suffice.

Article 16

Having confirmed that a victim of traffic in minors is present within their jurisdiction, the competent authorities of a State Party shall take such immediate measures as may be necessary for the minor's protection, including those of a preventive nature to ensure that the minor is not improperly removed to another State.

The Central Authorities shall inform the competent authorities of the State of the minor's previous habitual residence of all such measures. The intervening authorities shall take such steps as may be necessary to keep the persons or authorities seeking the minor's location and return duly informed of the measures adopted.

Article 17

In keeping with the purposes of this Convention, the Central Authorities of the States Parties shall exchange information and cooperate with their competent judicial and administrative authorities on all matters concerning control of the entry of minors into and departure from their territories.

Article 18

Adoptions and other similar legal proceedings performed in a State Party shall be subject to annulment if they had their origin or purpose in international traffic in minors.

In such annulment, the minor's best interests shall be taken into account at all times.

The annulment shall be subject to the law and the competent authorities of the State where the adoption or legal proceedings concerned took place.

Article 19

Care or custody of a minor may be revoked whenever it has its origin or purpose in the international traffic in minors, under the same conditions provided for in the preceding article.

Article 20

A request for locating and returning a minor may be lodged without prejudice to the annulment and revocation actions provided for in Articles 18 and 19.

Article 21

In any proceeding provided for under this chapter, the competent authority may order the person or organization responsible for international traffic in minors to pay the costs and expenses of locating and returning the minor if such person or organization is a party to the proceeding.

A person or authority lodging a request for the return or, where applicable, the competent authority may bring a civil action to recover costs, including legal fees and the expenses of locating and returning the minor, unless said costs were already assessed in a criminal proceeding or a proceeding under this chapter.

The competent authority or any injured person or authority may bring a civil action for damages against the persons or organizations responsible for the international traffic in minors involving the minor.

Article 22

The States Parties shall adopt the measures needed to ensure that no costs are charged for proceedings to secure the return of the minor, in accordance with their laws and shall advise persons legitimately interested in the return of the minor of the public defender services, benefits to the needy and other forms of free legal aid to which they may be entitled under the laws and regulations of the respective States Parties.

CHAPTER IV

FINAL CLAUSES

Article 27

The competent authorities in border areas of the States Parties may, at any time, directly agree on more expeditious procedures to locate and return minors than those provided for in the present Convention and without prejudice thereto.

None of the provisions in the present Convention shall be interpreted as restricting the more favourable practices that the competent authorities of the States Parties may agree to follow for the matters covered by this Convention.

Article 29

This Convention shall be subject to ratification. The instruments of ratification shall be deposited with the General Secretariat of the Organization of American States.

None of the provisions in this Convention shall be construed as limiting other bilateral or multilateral treaties or other agreements entered into between the Parties.

Article 33

This Convention shall enter into force for the ratifying States on the thirtieth day following the date of deposit of the second instrument of ratification.

For each State ratifying or acceding to the Convention after the deposit of the second instrument of ratification, the Convention shall enter into force on the thirtieth day after deposit by such State of its instrument of ratification or accession.

Article 34

INTER-AMERICAN CONVENTION TO PREVENT AND PUNISH TORTURE

Adopted at Cartagena de Indias on 9 December 1985 at the fifteenth regular session of the OAS General Assembly

Entry into force: 28 February 1987, in accordance with Article 22

Text: OAS, Treaty Series, No. 67

The American States signatory to the present Convention,

Aware of the provision of the American Convention on Human Rights that no one shall be subjected to torture or to cruel, inhuman, or degrading punishment or treatment;

Reaffirming that all acts of torture or any other cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment constitute an offense against human dignity and a denial of the principles set forth in the Charter of the Organization of American States and in the Charter of the United Nations and are violations of the fundamental human rights and freedoms proclaimed in the American Declaration of the Rights and Duties of Man and the Universal Declaration of Human Rights;

Noting that, in order for the pertinent rules contained in the aforementioned global and regional instruments to take effect, it is necessary to draft an Inter-American Convention that prevents and punishes torture;

Reaffirming their purpose of consolidating in this hemisphere the conditions that make for recognition of and respect for the inherent dignity of man, and ensure the full exercise of his fundamental rights and freedoms,

Have agreed upon the following:

Article 1

The States Parties undertake to prevent and punish torture in accordance with the terms of this Convention.

Article 2

For the purposes of this Convention, torture shall be understood to be any act intentionally performed whereby physical or mental pain or suffering is inflicted on a person for purposes of criminal investigation, as a means of intimidation, as personal punishment, as a preventive measure, as a penalty, or for any other purpose. Torture shall also be understood to be the use of methods upon a person intended to obliterate the personality of the victim or to diminish his physical or mental capacities, even if they do not cause physical pain or mental anguish.

The concept of torture shall not include physical or mental pain or suffering that is inherent in or solely the consequence of lawful measures, provided that they do not include the performance of the acts or use of the methods referred to in this article.

Article 3

The following shall be held guilty of the crime of torture:

- (a) A public servant or employee who acting in that capacity orders, instigates or induces the use of torture, or who directly commits it or who, being able to prevent it, fails to do so.
- (b) A person who at the instigation of a public servant or employee mentioned in subparagraph (a) orders, instigates or induces the use of torture, directly commits it or is an accomplice thereto.

Article 4

The fact of having acted under orders of a superior shall not provide exemption from the corresponding criminal liability.

Article 5

The existence of circumstances such as a state of war, threat of war, state of siege or of emergency, domestic disturbance or strife, suspension of constitutional guarantees, domestic political instability, or other public emergencies or disasters shall not be invoked or admitted as justification for the crime of torture.

Neither the dangerous character of the detainee or prisoner, nor the lack of security of the prison establishment or penitentiary shall justify torture.

Article 6

In accordance with the terms of Article 1, the States Parties shall take effective measures to prevent and punish torture within their jurisdiction.

The States Parties shall ensure that all acts of torture and attempts to commit torture are offenses under their criminal law and shall make such acts punishable by severe penalties that take into account their serious nature.

The States Parties likewise shall take effective measures to prevent and punish other cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment within their jurisdiction.

Article 7

The States Parties shall take measures so that, in the training of police officers and other public officials responsible for the custody of persons temporarily or definitively deprived of their freedom, special emphasis shall be put on the prohibition of the use of torture in interrogation, detention, or arrest.

The States Parties likewise shall take similar measures to prevent other cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment.

Article 8

The States Parties shall guarantee that any person making an accusation of having been subjected to torture within their jurisdiction shall have the right to an impartial examination of his case.

Likewise, if there is an accusation or well-grounded reason to believe that an act of torture has been committed within their jurisdiction, the States Parties shall guarantee that their respective authorities will proceed properly and immediately to conduct an investigation into the case and to initiate, whenever appropriate, the corresponding criminal process.

After all the domestic legal procedures of the respective State and the corresponding appeals have been exhausted, the case may be submitted to the international fora whose competence has been recognized by that State.

Article 9

The States Parties undertake to incorporate into their national laws regulations guaranteeing suitable compensation for victims of torture.

None of the provisions of this article shall affect the right to receive compensation that the victim or other persons may have by virtue of existing national legislation.

Article 10

No statement that is verified as having been obtained through torture shall be admissible as evidence in a legal proceeding, except in a legal action taken against a person or persons accused of having elicited it through acts of torture, and only as evidence that the accused obtained such statement by such means.

Article 11

The States Parties shall take the necessary steps to extradite anyone accused of having committed the crime of torture or sentenced for commission of that crime, in accordance with their respective national laws on extradition and their international commitments on this matter.

Article 12

Every State Party shall take the necessary measures to establish its jurisdiction over the crime described in this Convention in the following cases:

- (a) When torture has been committed within its jurisdiction;
- (b) When the alleged criminal is a national of that State; or
- (c) When the victim is a national of that State and it so deems appropriate.

Every State Party shall also take the necessary measures to establish its jurisdiction over the crime described in this Convention when the alleged criminal is within the area under its jurisdiction and it is not appropriate to extradite him in accordance with Article 11.

This Convention does not exclude criminal jurisdiction exercised in accordance with domestic law.

Article 13

The crime referred to in Article 2 shall be deemed to be included among the extraditable crimes in every extradition treaty entered into between States Parties. The States Parties undertake to include the crime of torture as an extraditable offence in every extradition treaty to be concluded between them.

Every State Party that makes extradition conditional on the existence of a treaty may, if it receives a request for extradition from another State Party with which it has no extradition treaty, consider this Convention as the legal basis for extradition in respect of the crime of torture. Extradition shall be subject to the other conditions that may be required by the law of the requested State.

States Parties which do not make extradition conditional on the existence of a treaty shall recognize such crimes as extraditable offences between themselves, subject to the conditions required by the law of the requested State.

Extradition shall not be granted nor shall the person sought be returned when there are grounds to believe that his life is in danger, that he will be subjected to torture or to cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment, or that he will be tried by special or ad hoc courts in the requesting State.

Article 14

When a State Party does not grant the extradition, the case shall be submitted to its competent authorities as if the crime had been committed within its jurisdiction, for the purposes of investigation, and when appropriate, for criminal action, in accordance with its national law. Any decision adopted by these authorities shall be communicated to the State that has requested the extradition.

Article 15

No provision of this Convention may be interpreted as limiting the right of asylum, when appropriate, nor as altering the obligations of the States Parties in the matter of extradition.

Article 16

This Convention shall not limit the provisions of the American Convention on Human Rights, other conventions on the subject, or the Statutes of the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights, with respect to the crime of torture.

Article 17

The States Parties undertake to inform the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights of any legislative, judicial, administrative, or other measures they adopt in application of this Convention.

In keeping with its duties and responsibilities, the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights will endeavour in its annual report to analyze the existing situation in the Member States of the Organization of American States in regard to the prevention and elimination of torture.

Article 18

This Convention is open to signature by the Member States of the Organization of American States.

Article 19

This Convention is subject to ratification. The instruments of ratification shall be deposited with the General Secretariat of the Organization of American States.

Article 20

This Convention is open to accession by any other American state. The instruments of accession shall be deposited with the General Secretariat of the Organization of American States.

Article 21

The States Parties may, at the time of approval, signature, ratification, or accession, make reservations to this Convention, provided that such reservations are not incompatible with the object and purpose of the Convention and concern one or more specific provisions.

Article 22

This Convention shall enter into force on the thirtieth day following the date on which the second instrument of ratification is deposited. For each State ratifying or acceding to the Convention after the second instrument of ratification has been deposited, the Convention shall enter into force on the thirtieth day following the date on which that State deposits its instrument of ratification or accession.

Article 23

This Convention shall remain in force indefinitely, but may be denounced by any State Party. The instrument of denunciation shall be deposited with the General Secretariat of the Organization of American States. After one year from the date of deposit of the instrument of denunciation, this Convention shall cease to be in effect for the denouncing State but shall remain in force for the remaining States Parties.

Article 24

The original instrument of this Convention, the English, French, Portuguese, and Spanish texts of which are equally authentic, shall be deposited with the General Secretariat of the Organization of American States, which shall send a certified copy to the Secretariat of the United Nations for registration and publication, in accordance with the provisions of Article 102 of the United Nations Charter. The General Secretariat of the Organization of American States shall notify the Member States of the Organization and the States that have acceded to the Convention of signatures and of deposits of instruments of ratification, accession, and denunciation, as well as reservations, if any.

INTER-AMERICAN CONVENTION ON FORCED DISAPPEARANCE OF PERSONS

Adopted at Belem do Para on 9 June 1994 at the twenty-fourth regular session of the OAS General Assembly

Entry into force: 28 March 1996, in accordance with Article 20

Text: OAS, Treaty Series, No. 68

PREAMBLE

The Member States of the Organization of American States signatory to the present Convention,

Disturbed by the persistence of the forced disappearance of persons;

Reaffirming that the true meaning of American solidarity and good neighbourliness can be none other than that of consolidating in this Hemisphere, in the framework of democratic institutions, a system of individual freedom and social justice based on respect for essential human rights;

Considering that the forced disappearance of persons is an affront to the conscience of the Hemisphere and a grave and abominable offense against the inherent dignity of the human being, and one that contradicts the principles and purposes enshrined in the Charter of the Organization of American States;

Considering that the forced disappearance of persons violates numerous non-derogable and essential human rights enshrined in the American Convention on Human Rights, in the American Declaration of the Rights and Duties of Man, and in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights;

Recalling that the international protection of human rights is in the form of a convention reinforcing or complementing the protection provided by domestic law and is based upon the attributes of the human personality;

Reaffirming that the systematic practice of the forced disappearance of persons constitutes a crime against humanity;

Hoping that this Convention may help to prevent, punish, and eliminate the forced disappearance of persons in the Hemisphere and make a decisive contribution to the protection of human rights and the rule of law,

Resolve to adopt the following Inter-American Convention on Forced Disappearance of Persons:

Article I

The States Parties to this Convention undertake:

- (a) Not to practice, permit, or tolerate the forced disappearance of persons, even in states of emergency or suspension of individual guarantees;
- (b) To punish within their jurisdictions, those persons who commit or attempt to commit the crime of forced disappearance of persons and their accomplices and accessories;
- (c) To cooperate with one another in helping to prevent, punish, and eliminate the forced disappearance of persons;
- (d) To take legislative, administrative, judicial, and any other measures necessary to comply with the commitments undertaken in this Convention.

Article II

For the purposes of this Convention, forced disappearance is considered to be the act of depriving a person or persons of his or their freedom, in whatever way, perpetrated by agents of the state or by persons or groups of persons acting with the authorization, support, or acquiescence of the state, followed by an absence of information or a refusal to acknowledge that deprivation of freedom or to give information on the whereabouts of that person, thereby impeding his or her recourse to the applicable legal remedies and procedural guarantees.

Article III

The States Parties undertake to adopt, in accordance with their constitutional procedures, the legislative measures that may be needed to define the forced disappearance of persons as an offense and to impose an appropriate punishment commensurate with its extreme gravity. This offense shall be deemed continuous or permanent as long as the fate or whereabouts of the victim has not been determined.

The States Parties may establish mitigating circumstances for persons who have participated in acts constituting forced disappearance when they help to cause the victim to reappear alive or provide information that sheds light on the forced disappearance of a person.

Article IV

The acts constituting the forced disappearance of persons shall be considered offenses in every State Party. Consequently, each State Party shall take measures to establish its jurisdiction over such cases in the following instances:

- (a) When the forced disappearance of persons or any act constituting such offense was committed within its jurisdiction;
- (b) When the accused is a national of that state;
- (c) When the victim is a national of that state and that state sees fit to do so.

Every State Party shall, moreover, take the necessary measures to establish its jurisdiction over the crime described in this Convention when the alleged criminal is within its territory and it does not proceed to extradite him.

This Convention does not authorize any State Party to undertake, in the territory of another State Party, the exercise of jurisdiction or the performance of functions that are placed within the exclusive purview of the authorities of that other Party by its domestic law.

Article V

The forced disappearance of persons shall not be considered a political offense for purposes of extradition.

The forced disappearance of persons shall be deemed to be included among the extraditable offenses in every extradition treaty entered into between States Parties.

The States Parties undertake to include the offense of forced disappearance as one which is extraditable in every extradition treaty to be concluded between them in the future.

Every State Party that makes extradition conditional on the existence of a treaty and receives a request for extradition from another State Party with which it has no extradition treaty may consider this Convention as the necessary legal basis for extradition with respect to the offense of forced disappearance.

States Parties which do not make extradition conditional on the existence of a treaty shall recognize such offense as extraditable, subject to the conditions imposed by the law of the requested state.

Extradition shall be subject to the provisions set forth in the constitution and other laws of the request state.

Article VI

When a State Party does not grant the extradition, the case shall be submitted to its competent authorities as if the offense had been committed within its jurisdiction, for the purposes of investigation and when appropriate, for criminal action, in accordance with its national law. Any decision adopted by these authorities shall be communicated to the state that has requested the extradition.

Article VII

Criminal prosecution for the forced disappearance of persons and the penalty judicially imposed on its perpetrator shall not be subject to statutes of limitations.

However, if there should be a norm of a fundamental character preventing application of the stipulation contained in the previous paragraph, the period of limitation shall be equal to that which applies to the gravest crime in the domestic laws of the corresponding State Party.

Article VIII

The defence of due obedience to superior orders or instructions that stipulate, authorize, or encourage forced disappearance shall not be admitted. All persons who receive such orders have the right and duty not to obey them.

The States Parties shall ensure that the training of public law-enforcement personnel or officials includes the necessary education on the offense of forced disappearance of persons.

Article IX

Persons alleged to be responsible for the acts constituting the offense of forced disappearance of persons may be tried only in the competent jurisdictions of ordinary law in each state, to the exclusion of all other special jurisdictions, particularly military jurisdictions.

The acts constituting forced disappearance shall not be deemed to have been committed in the course of military duties.

Privileges, immunities, or special dispensations shall not be admitted in such trials, without prejudice to the provisions set forth in the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations.

Article X

In no case may exceptional circumstances such as a state of war, the threat of war, internal political instability, or any other public emergency be invoked to justify the forced disappearance of persons. In such cases, the right to expeditious and effective judicial procedures and recourse shall be retained as a means of determining the whereabouts or state of health of a person who has been deprived of freedom, or of identifying the official who ordered or carried out such deprivation of freedom.

In pursuing such procedures or recourse, and in keeping with applicable domestic law, the competent judicial authorities shall have free and immediate access to all detention centres and to each of their units, and to all places where there is reason to believe the disappeared person might be found including places that are subject to military jurisdiction.

Article XI

Every person deprived of liberty shall be held in an officially recognized place of detention and be brought before a competent judicial authority without delay, in accordance with applicable domestic law.

The States Parties shall establish and maintain official up-to-date registries of their detainees and, in accordance with their domestic law, shall make them available to relatives, judges, attorneys, any other person having a legitimate interest, and other authorities.

Article XII

The States Parties shall give each other mutual assistance in the search for, identification, location, and return of minors who have been removed to another state or detained therein as a consequence of the forced disappearance of their parents or guardians.

Article XIII

For the purposes of this Convention, the processing of petitions or communications presented to the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights alleging the forced disappearance of persons shall be subject to the procedures established in the American Convention on Human Rights and to the Statute and Regulations of the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights and to the Statute and Rules of Procedure of the Inter-American Court of Human Rights, including the provisions on precautionary measures.

Article XIV

Without prejudice to the provisions of the preceding article, when the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights receives a petition or communication regarding an alleged forced disappearance, its Executive Secretariat shall urgently and confidentially address the respective government, and shall request that government to provide as soon as possible information as to the whereabouts of the allegedly disappeared person together with any other information it considers pertinent, and such request shall be without prejudice as to the admissibility of the petition.

Article XV

None of the provisions of this Convention shall be interpreted as limiting other bilateral or multilateral treaties or other agreements signed by the Parties.

This Convention shall not apply to the international armed conflicts governed by the 1949 Geneva Conventions and their Protocols, concerning protection of wounded, sick, and shipwrecked members of the armed forces; and prisoners of war and civilians in time of war.

Article XVI

This Convention is open for signature by the Member States of the Organization of American States.

Article XVII

Article XVIII

This Convention shall be open to accession by any other state. The instruments of accession shall be deposited with the General Secretariat of the Organization of American States.

Article XIX

The states may express reservations with respect to this Convention when adopting, signing, ratifying or acceding to it, unless such reservations are incompatible with the object and purpose of the Convention and as long as they refer to one or more specific provisions.

Article XX

This Convention shall enter into force for the ratifying states on the thirtieth day from the date of deposit of the second instrument of ratification.

For each state ratifying or acceding to the Convention after the second instrument of ratification has been deposited, the Convention shall enter into force on the thirtieth day from the date on which that state deposited its instrument of ratification or accession.

Article XXI

This Convention shall remain in force indefinitely, but may be denounced by any State Party. The instrument of denunciation shall be deposited with the General Secretariat of the Organization of American States. The Convention shall cease to be in effect for the denouncing state and shall remain in force for the other States Parties one year from the date of deposit of the instrument of denunciation.

Article XXII

The original instrument of this Convention, the Spanish, English, Portuguese, and French texts of which are equally authentic, shall be deposited with the General Secretariat of the Organization of American States, which shall forward certified copies thereof to the United Nations Secretariat, for registration and publication, in accordance with Article 102 of the Charter of the United Nations. The General Secretariat of the Organization of American States shall notify Member States of the Organization and states acceding to the Convention of the signatures and deposit of instruments of ratification, accession or denunciation, as well as of any reservations that may be expressed.

INTER-AMERICAN CONVENTION ON THE ELIMINATION OF ALL FORMS OF DISCRIMINATION AGAINST PERSONS WITH DISABILITIES

Adopted on 7 June 1999

Entry into force: 14 September 2001, in accordance with Article 8
Text: AG/RES. 1608 (XXIX-O/99)

The General Assembly,

Having seen the report of the Permanent Council on the draft Inter-American Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Persons with Disabilities (CP/CAJP-1532/99);

Considering that, during its twenty-sixth regular session, the General Assembly, in resolution AG/RES. 1369 (XXVI-O/96), “Panama Commitment to Persons with Disabilities in the American Hemisphere,” instructed the Permanent Council to prepare, through the appropriate working group, a “draft Inter-American Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination by Reason of Disability”;

Bearing in mind that disability can lead to situations of discrimination, and that it is necessary therefore to encourage actions and measures to bring about a substantial improvement in the situation of persons with disabilities in the Hemisphere;

Recalling that the American Declaration of the Rights and Duties of Man proclaims that all human beings are born free and equal, in dignity and in rights, and that the rights and freedoms of every person must be respected without distinction of any kind;

Taking into consideration that the Additional Protocol to the American Convention on Human Rights in the area of Economic, Social, and Cultural Rights, or “Protocol of San Salvador,” recognizes that “everyone affected by a diminution of his physical or mental capacities is entitled to receive special attention designed to help him achieve the greatest possible development of his personality”; and

Noting that resolution AG/RES. 1564 (XXVIII-O/98) reiterates “the importance of adopting an Inter-American Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Persons with Disabilities” and, in addition, requests that every necessary effort be made to ensure that this legal instrument is adopted and signed at the twenty-ninth regular session of the General Assembly,

Resolves

To adopt the following Inter-American Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Persons with Disabilities:

INTER-AMERICAN CONVENTION ON THE ELIMINATION OF ALL FORMS OF DISCRIMINATION AGAINST PERSONS WITH DISABILITIES

The States Parties to this Convention,

Reaffirming that persons with disabilities have the same human rights and fundamental freedoms as other persons; and that these rights, which include freedom from discrimination based on disability, flow from the inherent dignity and equality of each person;

Considering that the Charter of the Organization of American States, in Article 3.j, establishes the principle that “social justice and social security are bases of lasting peace”;

Concerned by the discrimination to which people are subject based on their disability;

Bearing in mind the agreement of the International Labour Organization on the vocational rehabilitation and employment of disabled persons (Convention 159); the Declaration of the Rights of Mentally Retarded Persons (UN General Assembly resolution 2856 (XXVI) of December 20, 1971); the Declaration on the Rights of Disabled Persons (UN General Assembly resolution 3447 (XXX) of December 9, 1975); the World Programme of Action concerning Disabled Persons (UN General Assembly resolution 37/52 of December 3, 1982); the Additional Protocol to the American Convention on Human Rights in the area of Economic, Social, and Cultural Rights, “Protocol of San Salvador” (1988); the Principles for the Protection of Persons with Mental Illness and for the Improvement of Mental Health Care (UN General Assembly resolution 46/119 of December 17, 1991); the Declaration of Caracas of the Pan American Health Organization; resolution AG/RES. 1249 (XXIII-O/93), “Situation of Persons with Disabilities in the American Hemisphere”; the Standard Rules on the Equalization of Opportunities for Persons with Disabilities (UN General Assembly resolution 48/96 of December 20, 1993); the Declaration of Managua (December 1993); the Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action, adopted by the UN World Conference on Human Rights (157/93); resolution AG/RES. 1356 (XXV-O/95), “Situation of Persons with Disabilities in the American Hemisphere”; and AG/RES. 1369 (XXVI-O/96), “Panama Commitment to Persons with Disabilities in the American Hemisphere”; and

Committed to eliminating discrimination, in all its forms and manifestations, against persons with disabilities,

Have agreed as follows:

Article I

For the purposes of this Convention, the following terms are defined:

1. Disability

The term “disability” means a physical, mental, or sensory impairment, whether permanent or temporary, that limits the capacity to perform one or more essential activities of daily life, and which can be caused or aggravated by the economic and social environment.

2. Discrimination against persons with disabilities

- (a) The term “discrimination against persons with disabilities” means any distinction, exclusion, or restriction based on a disability, record of disability, condition resulting from a previous disability, or perception of disability, whether present or past, which has the effect or objective of impairing or nullifying the recognition, enjoyment, or exercise by a person with a disability of his or her human rights and fundamental freedoms.
- (b) A distinction or preference adopted by a state party to promote the social integration or personal development of persons with disabilities does not constitute discrimination provided that the distinction or preference does not in itself limit the right of persons with disabilities to equality and that individuals with disabilities are not forced to accept such distinction or preference. If, under a state’s internal law, a person can be declared legally incompetent, when necessary and appropriate for his or her well-being, such declaration does not constitute discrimination.

Article II

The objectives of this Convention are to prevent and eliminate all forms of discrimination against persons with disabilities and to promote their full integration into society.

Article III

To achieve the objectives of this Convention, the states parties undertake:

1. To adopt the legislative, social, educational, labour-related, or any other measures needed to eliminate discrimination against persons with disabilities and to promote their full integration into society, including, but not limited to:
 - (a) Measures to eliminate discrimination gradually and to promote integration by government authorities and/or private entities in providing or making available goods, services, facilities, programs, and activities such as employment, transportation, communications, housing, recreation, education, sports, law enforcement and administration of justice, and political and administrative activities;
 - (b) Measures to ensure that new buildings, vehicles, and facilities constructed or manufactured within their respective territories facilitate transportation, communications, and access by persons with disabilities;
 - (c) Measures to eliminate, to the extent possible, architectural, transportation, and communication obstacles to facilitate access and use by persons with disabilities; and

- (d) Measures to ensure that persons responsible for applying this Convention and domestic law in this area are trained to do so.
2. To work on a priority basis in the following areas:
 - (a) Prevention of all forms of preventable disabilities;
 - (b) Early detection and intervention, treatment, rehabilitation, education, job training, and the provision of comprehensive services to ensure the optimal level of independence and quality of life for persons with disabilities; and
 - (c) Increasing of public awareness through educational campaigns aimed at eliminating prejudices, stereotypes, and other attitudes that jeopardize the right of persons to live as equals, thus promoting respect for and coexistence with persons with disabilities.

Article IV

To achieve the objectives of this Convention, the states parties undertake to:

1. Cooperate with one another in helping to prevent and eliminate discrimination against persons with disabilities;
2. Collaborate effectively in:
 - (a) Scientific and technological research related to the prevention of disabilities and to the treatment, rehabilitation, and integration into society of persons with disabilities; and
 - (b) The development of means and resources designed to facilitate or promote the independence, self-sufficiency, and total integration into society of persons with disabilities, under conditions of equality.

Article V

1. To the extent that it is consistent with their respective internal laws, the states parties shall promote participation by representatives of organizations of persons with disabilities, nongovernmental organizations working in this area, or, if such organizations do not exist, persons with disabilities, in the development, execution, and evaluation of measures and policies to implement this Convention.
2. The states parties shall create effective communication channels to disseminate among the public and private organizations working with persons with disabilities the normative and juridical advances that may be achieved in order to eliminate discrimination against persons with disabilities.

Article VI

1. To follow up on the commitments undertaken in this Convention, a Committee for the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Persons with Disabilities, composed of one representative appointed by each state party, shall be established.
2. The Committee shall hold its first meeting within the 90 days following the deposit of the 11th instrument of ratification. Said meeting shall be convened by the General Secretariat of the Organization of American States and shall be held at the Organization's headquarters, unless a state party offers to host it.
3. At the first meeting, the states parties undertake to submit a report to the Secretary General of the Organization for transmission to the Committee so that it may be examined and reviewed. Thereafter, reports shall be submitted every four years.
4. The reports prepared under the previous paragraph shall include information on measures adopted by the Member States pursuant to this Convention and on any progress made by the states parties in eliminating all forms of discrimination against persons with disabilities. The reports shall indicate any circumstances or difficulties affecting the degree of fulfilment of the obligations arising from this Convention.
5. The Committee shall be the forum for assessment of progress made in the application of the Convention and for the exchange of experience among the states parties. The reports prepared by the Committee shall reflect the deliberations; shall include information on any measures adopted by the states parties pursuant to this Convention, on any progress they have made in eliminating all forms of discrimination against persons with disabilities, and on any circumstances or difficulties they have encountered in the implementation of the Convention; and shall include the Committee's conclusions, its observations, and its general suggestions for the gradual fulfilment of the Convention.

6. The Committee shall draft its rules of procedure and adopt them by a simple majority.
7. The Secretary General shall provide the Committee with the support it requires in order to perform its functions.

Article VII

No provision of this Convention shall be interpreted as restricting, or permitting the restriction by states parties of the enjoyment of the rights of persons with disabilities recognized by customary international law or the international instruments by which a particular state party is bound.

Article VIII

1. This Convention shall be open for signature by all Member States in Guatemala City, Guatemala, on June 8, 1999, and, thereafter, shall remain open for signature by all states at the headquarters of the Organization of American States, until its entry into force.
2. This Convention is subject to ratification.
3. This Convention shall enter into force for the ratifying states on the 30th day following the date of deposit of the sixth instrument of ratification by a Member State of the Organization of American States.

Article IX

After its entry into force, this Convention shall be open for accession by all states that have not signed it.

Article X

1. The instruments of ratification and accession shall be deposited with the General Secretariat of the Organization of American States.
2. For each state that ratifies or accedes to the Convention after the sixth instrument of ratification has been deposited, the Convention shall enter into force on the 30th day following deposit by that state of its instrument of ratification or accession.

Article XI

1. Any state party may make proposals for amendment of this Convention. Said proposals shall be submitted to the General Secretariat of the OAS for dissemination to the states parties.
2. Amendments shall enter into force for the states ratifying them on the date of deposit of the respective instruments of ratification by two thirds of the Member States. For the remaining states parties, they shall enter into force on the date of deposit of their respective instruments of ratification.

Article XII

The states may enter reservations to this Convention when ratifying or acceding to it, provided that such reservations are not incompatible with the aim and purpose of the Convention and relate to one or more specific provisions thereof.

Article XIII

This Convention shall remain in force indefinitely, but any state party may denounce it. The instrument of denunciation shall be deposited with the General Secretariat of the Organization of American States. The Convention shall cease to have force and effect for the denouncing state one year after the date of deposit of the instrument of denunciation, and shall remain in force for the other states parties. Such denunciation shall not exempt the state party from the obligations imposed upon it under this Convention in respect of any action or omission prior to the date on which the denunciation takes effect.

Article XIV

1. The original instrument of this Convention, the English, French, Portuguese, and Spanish texts of which are equally authentic, shall be deposited with the General Secretariat of the Organization of American States, which shall send a certified copy thereof to the United Nations Secretariat for registration and publication pursuant to Article 102 of the United Nations Charter.
2. The General Secretariat of the Organization of American States shall notify the Member States of that Organization and the states that have acceded to the Convention of the signatures, deposits of instruments of ratification, accession, and denunciation, and any reservations entered.

TREATY ON INTERNATIONAL PENAL LAW¹

Signed at Montevideo on 23 January 1889 at the First South American Congress on Private International Law

Text: OAS, Treaty Series, No. 34

Their Excellencies the Presidents of the Argentine Republic, Bolivia, Paraguay, Peru and Uruguay have agreed to a Treaty on International Penal Law, through their respective Plenipotentiaries, assembled in Congress, in the City of Montevideo, on the initiative of the Government of the Eastern Republic of Uruguay and of the Argentine Republic, represented by:

Here follow the names of the Plenipotentiaries,

Who, after the presentation of their full powers, which were found in good form, and after conferences and discussions of the matter, have agreed to the following stipulations:

TITLE I ON JURISDICTION

Article 1

Crimes and offenses shall be subject to trial by the courts and punished according to the laws of the country where the offense was committed, regardless of the nationality of the agent, or of the victim or wronged party.

Article 2

Such violations of criminal law as are perpetrated in a State, but exclusively affect rights and interests guaranteed by the laws of another State, shall fall under the jurisdiction of the State affected by them, and shall be punished according to its laws.

Article 3

When an offense affects different States, the jurisdiction of the State in whose territory the offender is caught shall prevail.

If the offender should seek shelter in a State different from the ones affected by his action, the jurisdiction of the State which first requests the extradition shall prevail.

Article 4

In the cases referred to in the preceding article, if there is only one offender there shall be only one trial, and the penalty to be imposed shall be the severest one imposed by the penal laws of the different States concerned.

If the penalty ascertained to be the severest one should be one not permitted in the State in which the trial takes place, the severest penalty which is permitted shall be imposed.

The court shall, in all cases, apply to the executive power in order that due notice of the initiation of the proceedings may be given through it to the interested States.

Article 5

Each one of the contracting States shall have the power to expel from its territory, under its own laws, offenders who have taken shelter therein, if after notice to the State against which the refugee committed an extraditable offense no action shall have been taken by such State.

¹ Revised by the Treaty on International Penal Law signed at Montevideo, March 19, 1940, at the Second South American Congress on Private International Law. See p. 1355.

Article 6

Acts done in the territory of a State, which are not punishable according to its laws, but are punishable in another country, in which they produce injurious results, shall not be made the subject of judicial action in the latter, unless the offender is found within its territory.

The same rule shall also apply to those offenses which do not admit of extradition.

Article 7

In the trial and punishment of offenses committed by a member of a legation, the rules of public international law shall be observed.

Article 8

Crimes committed on the high seas, or on neutral waters, on board either a man-of-war or a merchant vessel, shall be tried and punished according to the laws of the State to which the flag of the vessel belongs.

Article 9

Crimes and offenses committed on board a man-of-war when in the waters of a foreign nation shall be tried and punished according to the laws of the State to which the vessel belongs.

The same rule shall be applicable to offenses committed outside the vessels by members of the crew thereof, or by persons employed on board the same, if the said crimes or offenses infringe principally the law or rules of discipline in force upon the vessel.

But when the crimes or offenses herein referred to, committed outside the vessel, were so committed by persons not belonging to the ship's company, then the jurisdiction to try the offenders shall belong to the State in whose territorial waters the vessel may happen to find itself.

Article 10

Crimes and offenses committed on board a man-of-war or on board a merchant vessel, under the circumstances mentioned in Article 2, shall be tried and punished as provided by that article.

Article 11

Crimes and offenses committed on board a merchant vessel shall be tried and punished according to the laws of the State in whose territorial waters the offense was committed.

Article 12

For purposes of jurisdiction, territorial waters are declared to be those comprised in a belt five miles wide running along the coast, either of the mainland or of the islands which form part of the territory of each State.

Article 13

Acts of piracy, as defined by public international law, shall be subject to the jurisdiction of the State under whose power the offenders may happen to fall.

Article 14

Criminal prosecution shall be governed by the laws of the State having jurisdiction to punish the offense.

TITLE II

ON ASYLUM

Article 15

No offender who has taken refuge in the territory of a State shall be surrendered to the authorities of any other State except in compliance with the rules governing extradition.

Article 16

Political refugees shall be afforded an inviolable asylum; but it is the duty of the nation of refuge to prevent asylees of this kind from committing within its territory any acts which may endanger the public peace of the nation against which the offense was committed.

Article 17

Such persons as may be charged with non-political offenses and seek refuge in a legation, shall be surrendered to the local authorities by the head of the said legation, at the request of the Ministry of Foreign Relations, or of his own motion.

Said asylum shall be respected with regard to political offenders, but the head of the legation shall be bound to give immediate notice to the government of the State to which he is accredited; and the said government shall have the power to demand that the offender be sent away from the national territory in the shortest possible time.

The head of the legation shall, in his turn, have the right to require proper guarantees for the exit of the refugee without any injury to the inviolability of his person.

The same rule shall be applicable to the refugees on board a man-of-war anchored in the territorial waters of the State.

Article 18

The provisions of Article 15 shall not be applicable to deserters from vessels of war while in the territorial waters of a State.

Said deserters, whatever their nationality may be, shall be surrendered by the local authorities, upon proper identification, whenever the legation, or if there is no legation, the consular officer of the country concerned may request it.

TITLE III

EXTRADITION

Article 19

The signatory States shall be bound to deliver up to another such offenders as have taken refuge within its territory, whenever the following circumstances shall concur, namely:

1. That the nation which claims the offender has competent jurisdiction to take cognizance of and punish the offense with which the refugee is charged.
2. That the kind and gravity of the offense are such as to justify extradition.
3. That the nation which demands the extradition has presented such documents as, under its own laws, authorize the imprisonment and trial of the offender.
4. That the action against the offender has not been barred by the statute of limitations, under the laws of the country which makes the demand.
5. That the offender has not been sentenced for the same offense and served out his sentence.

Article 20

Extradition shall in no case be barred by the nationality of the offender.

Article 21

The offenses for which extradition is warranted are the following:

1. As to alleged offenders, those offenses which under the laws of the country which demands the extradition are punishable by imprisonment for not less than two years, or the equivalent thereof.
2. As to the convicted offenders, those offenses the minimum penalty for which is imprisonment for one year.

Article 22

No person shall be delivered up on extradition proceedings when the offense charged is one of the following:

- Duelling;
- Adultery;
- Slander and libel;
- Crimes against worship.

But common (non-political) offenses connected with any of the above named shall warrant the extradition of the offenders.

Article 23

Political offenses, offenses subversive of the internal or external safety of a State, or common offenses connected with these, shall not warrant extradition.

The determination of the character of the offense is incumbent upon the nation upon which the demand for extradition is made; and its decision shall be made under and according to the provisions of the law which shall prove to be most favourable to the accused.

Article 24

No civil or commercial action affecting the offender shall prevent the extradition from being accomplished.

Article 25

The surrender of the offender may be delayed as long as he shall continue subject to the penal action of the State from which he is demanded; but the extradition proceedings shall not be interrupted for that reason.

Article 26

Such offenders as shall have been delivered up on extradition proceedings, shall never be either tried or punished for political offenses, or for any acts connected with political offenses, previously committed.

But said offenders may be subject to trial and punishment upon consent of the State which surrendered them, in accordance with the terms of the present treaty, for offenses which are extraditable but which did not form part of the charge upon which extradition was granted.

Article 27

When several nations demand the surrender of an offender for different offenses, he shall be surrendered to the nation against which the gravest offense was committed in the judgment of the State upon which the requisition has been made. If the offenses are equally grave, preference shall be given to the nation which had priority in the demand for extradition; if all the demands bear the same date, the country upon which the demand is made shall determine the order of surrender.

Article 28

If, after an offender is delivered up to one State, a new demand for his extradition is made by another State, it shall be optional with the State which first granted the extradition whether or not to accede to the new demand, provided that the prisoner has not been set at liberty.

Article 29

When the penalty for the offense with which the offender is charged is the penalty of death, the nation which grants the extradition may demand the imposition of the penalty next lower in degree.

TITLE IV
PROCEEDINGS FOR EXTRADITION

Article 30

Demands for extradition shall be presented through the respective legations or consular offices, and, in the absence of these, directly from Government to Government, and they shall be accompanied by the following documents:

1. In cases of alleged delinquents, a legalized copy of the penal law applicable to the offense on which the demand is based, and of the warrant of arrest and other antecedents referred to in paragraph 3 of Article 19.
2. In cases of those already sentenced, by a legalized copy of the final sentence of condemnation passed against the offender and the proper evidence that the condemned man was summoned and was either represented at the trial, or legally adjudged in contumaciam.

Article 31

If the State upon which the demand for extradition is made should deem the said demand to be unwarranted, owing to some defects of form, it shall return the papers to the Government which made it, with the proper explanation of the defects.

Article 32

If the demand for extradition is made in due form, the Government upon which it is made shall transmit all the antecedents to a judge or tribunal of competent jurisdiction on the subject, and the said judge or tribunal shall order the arrest of the offender and the sequestration of any property related to the crime, if it is deemed proper, under the provisions of this Treaty.

Article 33

In all cases involving the arrest of the refugee, due notice shall be given to him within the twenty-four hours following his arrest, of the cause for his arrest and of the right which is vested in him under the following article.

Article 34

The prisoner shall be allowed, within three days and no more, to be counted from the day following that on which notification was first received, to object to his extradition on the following grounds:

1. That he is not the person to whom the demand for extradition refers.
2. That the documents upon which the demand is based are not in due form.
3. That the extradition is not warranted.

Article 35

Evidence shall be admitted in the cases in which it may be necessary, governed by the same rules, as far as relevancy and time are concerned, as are in force in the country upon which the demand is made.

Article 36

After the whole evidence is on file, the judge or tribunal shall decide within ten days, and without any further steps, whether the extradition must or must not be granted.

An appeal can be taken against this decision to the competent court within three days, and that court shall decide within five days.

Article 37

If the decision is to the effect that the extradition be granted, the tribunal which rendered it shall give notice thereof immediately to the executive power, in order that the proper provision may be made by it for the delivery of the prisoner.

If the decision be adverse to the extradition, the judge or tribunal shall at once order the release of the prisoner, and shall give due information to the executive power by sending to it a copy of its decision.

If extradition was refused due to insufficient documents, the case shall be reopened provided that the Government demanding the extradition presents new documents, or supplements those which had been presented before.

Article 38

Whenever the prisoner acquiesces in his surrender, the court, upon entering the said acquiescence in due form, shall render a decision, without further transaction, granting his extradition.

Article 39

Every article or object related to the crime on which the extradition is based and found in the possession of the offender, shall be yielded to the State which obtained the surrender.

Those found in the possession of third parties shall not be surrendered unless the possessors thereof have first been given the proper hearing, and unless their objections have been resolved.

Article 40

When the extradition is to take place by land, the Government which delivers up the prisoner shall be bound to take the latter to the most convenient point of its frontier.

When the extradition is to take place over sea or by a river route, the prisoner shall be delivered up to the agents of the other nation at the most appropriate port of embarkation.

The nation requesting the extradition shall always have the right to send one or more security agents for the proper custody of the prisoner; but the functions and power of said officers shall be subordinate to the agents or authorities of the country which makes the delivery, or of the country over which the prisoner is conveyed.

Article 41

Whenever the extradition of a prisoner has been granted but the delivery cannot be actually accomplished without passing through the territory of another State, the latter shall grant permission to do so, upon no other requisite than the exhibition, diplomatically, of the decree of extradition issued by the Government which granted it.

If the transit is granted, the provisions of the third paragraph of the preceding article shall be complied with.

Article 42

The expenses which may be incurred owing to the demand of extradition up to the moment of the delivery, shall be paid by the State upon which the demand is made; but all those incurred after such delivery shall be paid by the Government making the demand.

Article 43

Whenever the extradition is granted, and the offender involved is a convicted criminal, the Government which obtained the extradition shall be bound to communicate to the Government which granted it, the decision rendered in the case or trial for which it was granted.

TITLE V
OF THE PRECAUTIONARY ARREST

Article 44

When the signatory Governments deem the case to be urgent, they shall request by mail or by telegraph that administrative procedures leading to the provisional arrest of the offender, as well as to the security of the objects related to the crime, be taken, provided that a sentence or a warrant of arrest is positively asserted to have been issued and the nature of the offense with which he is charged is clearly defined.

Article 45

The person so arrested shall be set at liberty if within ten days subsequent to the arrival of the first mail sent after the date of the petition for the provisional arrest no formal demand of extradition shall have been made by the requesting State.

Article 46

In all cases of precautionary arrest the responsibilities thereof belong to the Government which requested it.

TITLE VI
GENERAL PROVISIONS

Article 47

No simultaneous ratification of this treaty by all the signatory States shall be necessary for its validity. Any State which approves of the treaty shall communicate its approval thereof to the Governments of the Argentine Republic and of the Oriental Republic of Uruguay, which shall give notice thereof to the other contracting States. This process shall take the place of an exchange.

Article 48

The exchange having been made in the manner provided for in the preceding article, the treaty shall remain in force for an indefinite period of time.

Article 49

If any one of the contracting nations should deem it advisable to discontinue its adhesion to the treaty, or should desire to introduce modifications into its provisions, it shall be in its power to do so provided that it give notice of its intention to do so to the other parties; but it shall not be released from its obligation until after two years have elapsed after the notice aforesaid was given by it; and in these two years it shall endeavour to reach a new agreement on the subject.

Article 50

The stipulations of this treaty shall be applicable only to offenses committed during the time in which it has been in force.

Article 51

The provisions of Article 47 are applicable to nations which have not attended this Congress, but wish to adhere to this treaty.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, the Plenipotentiaries of the cited Nations sign it and set thereto the seal on five copies, in Montevideo, on the twenty-third day of January in the year of one thousand eight hundred and eighty nine.

Here follow the signatures of the Plenipotentiaries.

Note: The following countries are parties to this treaty, having deposited their instruments of ratification, without reservations, with the Government of Uruguay: Argentina, Bolivia, Paraguay, Peru, and Uruguay.

TREATY ON INTERNATIONAL PENAL LAW (REVISED)¹

Signed at Montevideo on 19 March 1940 at the Second South American Congress on Private International Law

Text: OAS Official Records, OEA/Ser. X/1. Treaty Series 34

His Excellency the President of the Oriental Republic of Uruguay; His Excellency the President of the Republic of the United States of Brazil; His Excellency the President of the Republic of Colombia; His Excellency the President of the Republic of Bolivia; His Excellency the President of the Argentine Republic; His Excellency the President of the Republic of Peru, and His Excellency the President of the Republic of Paraguay,

Have agreed to conclude the present treaty through the medium of their respective plenipotentiaries, assembled in congress in the City of Montevideo as a result of the initiative taken by the Governments of the Oriental Republic of Uruguay and the Argentine Republic.

[Here follow the names of the Plenipotentiaries]

The said representatives, having presented their full powers, which were found to be in due form, having taken into consideration the fact that the Treaty on International Penal Law signed at Montevideo on January 23, 1889, might well be subjected to a process of revision for the purpose of modifying and harmonizing the rules therein laid down, and bearing in mind the conferences and discussions held in this connection, have agreed upon the following provisions:

TITLE IJURISDICTION AND THE LAW APPLICABLE THERETO*Article 1

Crimes, whatever may be the nationality of the agent, of the victim, or of the injured party, shall be tried by the tribunals, and punished according to the laws, of the State in whose territory they are committed.

Article 2

Crimes affecting two or more States and committed by one or more offenders, shall come under the jurisdiction of the judges or tribunals of the place where the said crimes were perpetrated; and the local laws must be applied in the corresponding proceedings.

If the crime was perpetrated in more than one country, it shall come under the jurisdiction of the tribunals of the first State to take judicial cognizance thereof, and the laws of that State must apply.

Article 3

In cases involving connected crimes committed by one or more offenders, whether as principals, as accomplices, or as harbourers, in the territory of two or more signatory States, preference shall be given in regard to trial of the crime, to the authorities and penal law of the country in which the more serious offense was perpetrated, a matter which shall be left to the discretion of the requested State.

Article 4

In the cases to which Articles 2 and 3 refer, the judge of the proceedings shall communicate with the Executive Power, in order that the latter may notify the States interested in the trial, of the institution of proceedings.

¹ Revision of the Treaty on International Penal Law signed at the First South American Congress on Private International Law, Montevideo, 1888-1889. See p. 1348.

Article 5

Acts committed in the territory of a given State, which are not susceptible of punishment according to its own laws but which are punishable by the State wherein they produce their effects, may not be tried by the judges or tribunals of the latter unless the offender shall be found within its jurisdiction.

A similar rule applies with respect to those crimes for which the extradition of the offenders is not authorized.

In cases involving acts committed by public functionaries who are serving in a foreign country, if such acts constitute a criminal violation of the specific duties attached to the office with which they have been entrusted, the foregoing rule shall not apply, and the said functionaries shall be tried and punished by the judges or tribunals of the offenders' own State, in conformity with its laws.

Article 6

Any of the signatory States may expel, in accordance with its laws, alien offenders who have taken refuge in its territory, provided that after the appropriate request has been presented to the authorities of the country where any of the extraditable crimes were committed, the surrender of the said offenders is not requested, through the channel of extradition, within ninety days.

Article 7

The principles of public international law shall be observed for the trial of crimes committed by any of the functionaries of a diplomatic mission or by any member of their respective suites.

A similar procedure shall be followed with respect to Chiefs of State and their suites; and also with respect to members of armed forces, when the crime has been committed within the bounds of the place where they are stationed, and bears a legal relationship to the said forces.

Article 8

Crimes committed on the high seas, whether on board airplanes, or on men-of-war, or on merchant ships, must be tried and punished according to the law of the State whose flag the vessel flies.

Article 9

Crimes perpetrated on board men-of-war or military planes of one State, while these are in the territorial waters of another State, shall be tried by the tribunals, and punished according to the laws, of the State to which the said men-of-war or airplanes belong.

If only persons who do not belong to the crew of the warship or airplane, participate in the commission, on board, of such acts, prosecution and punishment shall be conducted in accordance with the laws of the State within whose territorial waters the warship or airplane is located.

The laws of the country to which the ship or airplane belongs, shall also govern the trial and punishment of such punishable acts as are committed elsewhere than on board by members of the crew or by individuals charged with the exercise of some function on board, when the said acts affect only the disciplinary order of those ships or planes.

Article 10

Crimes committed on board vessels other than vessels of war shall be tried and punished by the judges or tribunals, and according to the laws, of the State in whose territorial waters a given vessel was located at the time when such a crime was committed.

If the crimes are committed on board private airplanes which are not in flight, the corresponding trial and imposition of punishment shall be conducted according to the laws, and by the judges of the territory where the crimes occurred.

Article 11

Trial and punishment for crimes committed on board airplanes or on men-of-war or on merchant ships, under the conditions specified in Articles 2 and 3, shall be conducted according to the provisions laid down in those articles.

Article 12

For the purposes of criminal jurisdiction, territorial waters are declared to be those included in a belt five miles wide running along the coast of the mainland or of the islands which constitute part of the territory of the various States.

Article 13

A riparian State has the right to continue on the high seas a pursuit begun within its territorial waters, as well as the right to arrest and try the vessel that has committed an offense within the said waters. In all cases where a capture is effected on the high seas, that fact shall be communicated without delay to the State whose flag the vessel flies. The pursuit must be broken off instantly when the vessel enters [other] territorial waters, or a port belonging to its own country or to a third State.

Article 14

International piracy, traffic in narcotics, white slavery, and the destruction or damage of submarine cables, are subject to the jurisdiction and law of the State into whose power the offenders may come, regardless of the place where such crimes were committed; but without prejudice to the preferential right of the State in which the criminal acts were perpetrated, to request the extradition of the offenders.

Article 15

Crimes committed on board airplanes in flight over a foreign State shall come under the jurisdiction of the latter if the airplane should make its first landing there. Otherwise, such jurisdiction shall appertain to the State in whose territory that first landing is made, and the laws of the subjacent State shall apply. When it is not possible to determine the territory over which the crime was committed, the case shall be governed by the law of the State whose flag the plane flies.

The pilot of an airplane in flight, who has been notified of the commission of a crime, is bound to land at the first known airport and inform the authorities of that port.

Article 16

Prescription of actions and of penalties shall be determined by the judges or tribunals, and in accordance with the laws, of the State to which cognizance of the crimes in question appertains.

Article 17

A judgment rendered in any of the signatory States shall be recognized in those States for the purpose of establishing the repetition or habitual commission of the offense, or a tendency thereto, on the part of the accused; and also in order to make it obligatory that he accede, while he is in their territory, to indemnification of the damage, to measures of security against his person, and to the interdiction resulting from the proceedings.

The signatory States shall furnish reports in regard to the judicial or police antecedents on file in their archives, if they are requested to do so by another interested State.

TITLE II

EXTRADITION

CHAPTER I

THE SYSTEM OF EXTRADITION

Article 18

The contracting States bind themselves to surrender, if they are requested to do so, persons who have been prosecuted or condemned by the authorities of one of those States, and who are found in the territory of another.

The request for surrender shall be granted in accordance with the procedural formalities in force within the requested State, provided that the following conditions are both met:

- (a) The person to be surrendered must have been condemned by final judgment to one year in prison, at least; or, if the case concerns an indicated person, the crime that constitutes the subject-matter of the prosecution must be punishable, according to the laws of the requesting State, by a minimum intermediate penalty of two years' imprisonment. Half the sum of the extremes within which the particular penalty involving deprivation of liberty is fixed, shall be considered as the intermediate penalty.
- (b) The requesting State must have jurisdiction to try and to pass sentence concerning the crime which motivates the demand, even when the acts involved have been committed outside the territory of the contracting States.

Article 19

The nationality of the accused may not be invoked as a reason for refusing extradition, except when a constitutional provision establishes otherwise.

Article 20

Extradition shall not be granted:

- (a) For the crime of duelling;
- (b) For the crime of adultery;
- (c) For the crimes of libel and slander, even when perpetrated through the medium of the press;
- (d) For political crimes;
- (e) For common crimes committed with a political purpose, except when, in the opinion of the judge or tribunal receiving the request, the common character manifestly predominates;
- (f) For common crimes in cases where, in the opinion of the judge or tribunal of the requested State, it can be inferred from the attendant circumstances that the purpose in making that request is preponderantly political;
- (g) For essentially military crimes, exclusive of those governed by the common law. If the person sought is charged with a military crime which is also punishable by the common law, he shall be surrendered with the reservation that he is to be tried only in accordance with the said law and by the ordinary tribunals;
- (h) When the person sought has been or is being tried, for the same act and in accordance with the provisions of this treaty, in the requested State; or when the action or penalty has been invalidated by prescription, according to the laws of the requesting State, before the seizure of the accused;
- (i) When the person sought would have to appear before a tribunal or court taking cognizance of exceptions.

The determination of the character of the offenses involved appertains exclusively to the authorities of the requested State, on the basis of the law more favourable to the accused.

Article 21

No civil or commercial action involving the accused shall hinder his extradition.

Article 22

When the individual sought is deprived of his freedom by virtue of a prosecution or a service of sentence in the requested State, his surrender may be postponed until the restriction on his freedom has been removed, or the sentence has been served; but in the meantime, prescription of the action or penalty in question shall be suspended.

Article 23

The murder of the Chief of a contracting State, or an attempt upon his life, shall not be regarded as a political crime or act connected therewith.

Article 24

Persons whose extradition has been granted may not be tried for crimes previous to those on which the extradition is based.

Crimes constituting grounds for extradition may be tried and punished, provided that the requested State gives its consent previously and in conformity with the terms of this treaty.

Article 25

When the extradition of a given individual is demanded by different States, and the demands are based upon the same crime, preference shall be accorded to that of the State in whose territory the crime was perpetrated; or, if it was committed in different countries, preference shall be given to the first demand. If different acts are involved, preference in granting the extradition shall be given to the State in whose territory the more serious crime was committed, according to the judgment of the requested State.

In cases involving different acts which the requested State regards as equally serious, the preference shall be determined by the order in which the requests are received.

Article 26

In the cases contemplated in paragraphs 2 and 3 of the foregoing article, the requested State may, as a condition of granting the extradition, stipulate that the person demanded must also be subject to ulterior extradition.

Article 27

In no case shall the death penalty be imposed for the crime for which extradition has been granted.

Article 28

The foregoing rules will apply in the case of persons condemned to measures of security, provided that the latter consist of deprivation or restriction of freedom, and that for their extinction more than a year has yet to elapse.

TITLE II

EXTRADITION

CHAPTER II

EXTRADITION PROCEDURE

Article 29

The demand for extradition must be made by the appropriate diplomatic agent or, in default thereof, either by the consular agents or directly from Government to Government; and it must be accompanied, according to whether the persons involved are accused or condemned persons, either by a copy of the order of imprisonment or judicial order providing for deprivation of freedom, issued by the competent authorities, or by an authenticated copy of the judgment of condemnation.

The records supplied must include a precise statement as to the act on which the charge is based, and the date and place of its occurrence. The said records shall be accompanied by copies of the laws applicable to the case, as well as by copies of those relative to prescription as it affects the action or penalty in question. Data and information regarding antecedents, to facilitate identification of the person sought, shall also be included.

Article 30

The demand for extradition of a condemned person cannot be based on a sentence rendered by default, that is to say, a sentence rendered when the accused has not been personally summoned to defend, or when he has been summoned but has not appeared. However, the requested extradition may be granted if the requesting State promises to reopen the case in such a way as to allow for the defence of the accused.

Article 31

If the demand for extradition has been made in due form, the requested Government shall send the documents on the case to the competent judge or tribunal, who must pass upon the propriety of the said demand, on the basis of the provisions contained in Articles 29 and 30; and, whenever the case warrants such action, the said judge or tribunal shall take the necessary steps for the apprehension of the person sought, ordering his arrest and the seizure of the articles involved in the crime, if they believe this to be the proper procedure.

Article 32

If the judge of the requested State considers that the demand is legally inadmissible because of some defect of form, he shall advise the judge of the requesting State as to what documents are lacking and shall fix a reasonable time-limit for their remission.

Article 33

In cases where the arrest is made, the party concerned shall be informed of the cause of arrest within twenty-four hours.

Within a period of three days and no more, reckoned from the day following the notification, the interested party may oppose exceptions based on the following grounds:

- (a) Incompetence of the judge of the requested State who ordered the arrest;
- (b) The fact that the said party is not the person sought;
- (c) Defects of form in the document presented;
- (d) Impropriety of the demand for extradition.

Article 34

In cases where it is necessary to verify the allegations, the question shall be laid open for proof; and the provisions of the procedural law of the requested State shall govern with respect to such proof and to the time allowed for it.

Article 35

When the proof has been produced, a decision on the question shall be reached without further proceedings, by a declaration as to whether or not grounds for extradition exist.

In cases where cognizance of the demand appertains originally to the judge of first instance, the decision shall be appealable to the competent tribunal.

Article 36

If the sentence is favourable to the demand for extradition, the tribunal which renders the decision shall communicate it immediately to the Executive Power, in order that he may take the steps necessary for the surrender of the culprit.

If the sentence is unfavourable, the judge or tribunal, once it has become final, shall order the immediate release of the prisoner and shall so advise the Executive Power, enclosing a copy of the said sentence in order that the Executive may bring it to the knowledge of the requesting Government.

Article 37

If the prisoner acquiesces in the demand, the judge or tribunal shall draw up a statement regarding the terms of that acquiescence, and shall, without further proceedings, declare that extradition is proper.

Article 38

Articles found in the possession of the person sought, if they were acquired in consequence of the act in question, if they were used in its execution, if the act was perpetrated upon them, or if they constitute evidence in some other way, shall be seized and delivered to the demanding State, even though the extradition may fail to take place owing to the death or disappearance of the accused.

Article 39

In cases where the delivery of the accused is to be effected over a land route, the requested State shall transfer him to the most suitable point on the frontier.

When his transfer must be effected over a maritime, fluvial or air route, he shall be delivered to those agents whom the requesting State may appoint, at the most suitable port or aerodrome of embarkation.

The requesting State may, in any case, appoint one or more police agents; but they shall act as subordinates of the agents or authorities representing the territory of the requested State, or that of the State of transit.

Article 40

If it should be necessary to traverse the territory of an intermediate State in order to surrender a prisoner whose extradition has been agreed to by one State in favour of another, such transit shall be permitted by the said intermediate State without any requirement other than the exhibition through diplomatic channels of the proper attestation, in the form of a decree of extradition which authorized the surrender.

Article 41

The expenses incurred in the extradition of the offender shall be borne by the requested State until the moment when the surrender takes place; and thenceforth, they shall be borne by the requesting Government.

Article 42

When extradition of a person under indictment has been accorded, the Government whose request was granted shall communicate to the Government that granted it, the final judgment pronounced in the case which constituted the grounds for extradition.

Article 43

When extradition has been accorded, and the person sought has been placed at the disposal of the diplomatic, consular or police agent of the demanding State, he shall be released if, within a period of forty days from the date of the pertinent communication, he has not been sent to his destination; always provided that no request for a reasonable delay has been presented. In such circumstances, no new demand based upon the same grounds will be admissible.

Article 44

When the request for extradition has been granted, the requesting State agrees to try the accused, in accordance with Article 24, exclusively for the act for which he was surrendered and not for any previous act, unless he should remain voluntarily for more than thirty days, after being released, in the territory of the requested State.

Article 45

During the extradition proceedings the person detained may not be released on bail.

PROVISIONAL ARREST

Article 46

In urgent cases, the contracting States may request by post or by telegraph that steps be taken for the arrest of the accused and for the seizure of articles connected with the crime, once the nature of that crime has been determined and the existence of an order of imprisonment issued by a competent judge, has been invoked.

In such cases, the prisoner shall be released if, within sixty days from the date of his arrest, the formal demand for extradition, duly drawn up, has not been presented to the requested State. When that interval has elapsed and the prisoner has been released, his arrest cannot be requested again until after the documents required by Article 29 have been presented.

Article 47

In cases of provisional arrest, the release of the accused shall be effected without prejudice to the retention of the articles mentioned in Article 38, for a reasonable time, to be fixed by the judges of the State which proceeded to the arrest and in accordance with the attendant circumstances.

Article 48

In all cases of provisional arrest, the responsibilities which may arise therefrom appertain to the State that requested it.

TITLE IV

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Article 49

The simultaneous ratification of this treaty by all of the signatory States is not necessary in order to bring it into operation. The States which approve it shall communicate their approval to the Government of the Oriental Republic of Uruguay, so that the latter may notify the other contracting States to that effect. This procedure shall take the place of an exchange.

Article 50

When the exchange has been made, in the form indicated by the preceding article, this treaty shall be effective from that time forth indefinitely.

Article 51

If any of the contracting States should deem it advisable to withdraw its adherence to the treaty or introduce changes into the said instrument, it shall so advise the other signatories; but the withdrawal shall not take effect until two years after the date of denunciation, during which time an effort to reach a new accord shall be made.

Article 52

No demand for extradition in connection with a crime committed before the exchange of the ratifications of this treaty may be based upon the provisions therein contained.

Article 53

Article 49 applies also to States which have not attended this Congress, but which wish to adhere to the present treaty.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the Plenipotentiaries of the aforesaid nations sign the present treaty in Montevideo on the 19th day of March, 1940.

Here follow the signatures of the Plenipotentiaries.

Note: The following countries are signatories to this treaty: Argentina, which signed with a reservation, Bolivia, Brazil, Colombia, Paraguay, and Peru. Uruguay, which is the depositary country, has deposited its instrument of ratification.

RESERVATION

The Delegation of the Argentine Republic reserves the right to differentiate between “political offender” and “international terrorist”.

MONTEVIDEO MULTILATERAL CONVENTION ON EXTRADITION

Signed at Montevideo on 26 December 1933

Text: OAS, Treaty Series, No. 34

The Governments represented in the Seventh International Conference of American States: Wishing to conclude a Convention on Extradition, have appointed the following plenipotentiaries:

[Here follow the names of the plenipotentiaries.]

Who, after having exhibited their Full Powers, which were found in good and due form, have agreed upon the following:

Article 1

Each one of the signatory States in harmony with the stipulations of the present Convention assumes the obligation of surrendering to any one of the States which may make the requisition, the persons who may be in their territory and who are accused or under sentence. This right shall be claimed only under the following circumstances:

- (a) That the demanding State has the jurisdiction to try and to punish the delinquency which is attributed to the individual whom it desires to extradite.
- (b) That the act for which extradition is sought constitutes a crime and is punishable under the laws of the demanding and surrendering States with a minimum penalty of imprisonment for one year.

Article 2

When the person whose extradition is sought is a citizen of the country to which the requisition is addressed, his delivery may or may not be made, as the legislation or circumstances of the case may, in the judgment of the surrendering State, determine. If the accused is not surrendered, the latter State is obliged to bring action against him for the crime with which he is accused, if such crime meets the conditions established in sub-article (b) of the previous article. The sentence pronounced shall be communicated to the demanding State.

Article 3

Extradition will not be granted:

- (a) When, previous to the arrest of the accused person, the penal action or sentence has expired according to the laws of the demanding or the surrendering State.
- (b) When the accused has served his sentence in the country where the crime was committed or when he may have been pardoned or granted an amnesty.
- (c) When the accused has been or is being tried by the State to which the requisition was directed for the act with which he is charged and on which the petition of extradition is based.
- (d) When the accused must appear before any extraordinary tribunal or court of the demanding State (tribunal o juzgado de excepcion del Estado requiriente). Military courts will not be considered as such tribunals.
- (e) When the offense is of a political nature or of a character related thereto. An attempt against the life or person of the Chief of State or members of his family, shall not be deemed to be a political offense.
- (f) When the offense is purely military or directed against religion.

Article 4

The determination of whether or not the exceptions referred to in the previous article are applicable shall belong exclusively to the State to which the request for extradition is addressed.

Article 5

A request for extradition should be formulated by the respective diplomatic representative. When no such representative is available, consular agents may serve, or the governments may communicate directly with one another. The following documents in the language of the country to which the request for extradition is directed, shall accompany every such request:

- (a) An authentic copy of the sentence, when the accused has been tried and condemned by the courts of the demanding State.
- (b) When the person is only under accusation, an authentic copy of the order of detention issued by the competent judge, with a precise description of the imputed offense, a copy of the penal laws applicable thereto, and a copy of the laws referring to the prescription of the action or the penalty.
- (c) In the case of an individual under accusation as also of an individual already condemned, there shall be furnished all possible information of a personal character which may help to identify the individual whose extradition is sought.

Article 6

When a person whose extradition is sought shall be under trial or shall be already condemned in the State from which it is sought to extradite him, for an offense committed prior to the request for extradition, said extradition shall be granted at once, but the surrender of the accused to the demanding State shall be deferred until his trial ends or his sentence is served.

Article 7

When the extradition of a person is sought by several States for the same offense, preference will be given to the State in whose territory said offense was committed. If he is sought for several offenses, preference will be given to the State within whose bounds shall have been committed the offense which has the greatest penalty according to the law of the surrendering State.

If the case is one of different acts which the State from which extradition is sought esteems of equal gravity, the preference will be determined by the priority of the request.

Article 8

The request for extradition shall be determined in accordance with the domestic legislation of the surrendering State and the individual whose extradition is sought shall have the right to use all the remedies and resources authorized by such legislation, either before the judiciary or the administrative authorities as may be provided for by the aforesaid legislation.

Article 9

Once a request for extradition in the form indicated in Article 5 has been received, the State from which the extradition is sought will exhaust all necessary measures for the capture of the person whose extradition is requested.

Article 10

The requesting State may ask, by any means of communication, the provisional or preventive detention of a person, if there is, at least, an order by some court for his detention and if the State at the same time offers to request extradition in due course. The State from which the extradition is sought will order the immediate arrest of the accused. If within a maximum period of two months after the requesting State has been notified of the arrest of the person, said State has not formally applied for extradition, the detained person will be set at liberty and his extradition may not again be requested except in the way established by Article 5.

The demanding State is exclusively liable for any damages which might arise from the provisional or preventive detention of a person.

Article 11

Extradition having been granted and the person requested put at the disposition of the diplomatic agent of the demanding State, then, if, within two months from the time when said agent is notified of same, the person has not been sent to his destination, he will be set at liberty, and he cannot again be detained for the same cause.

The period of two months will be reduced to forty days when the countries concerned are conterminous.

Article 12

Once extradition of a person has been refused, application may not again be made for the same alleged act.

Article 13

The State requesting the extradition may designate one or more guards for the purpose of taking charge of the person extradited, but said guards will be subject to the orders of the police or other authorities of the State granting the extradition or of the States in transit.

Article 14

The surrender of the person extradited to the requesting State will be done at the most appropriate point on the frontier or in the most accessible port, if the transfer is to be made by water.

Article 15

The objects found in the possession of the person extradited, obtained by the perpetration of the illegal act for which extradition is requested, or which might be useful as evidence of same, will be confiscated and handed over to the demanding country, notwithstanding it might not be possible to surrender the accused because of some unusual situation such as his escape or death.

Article 16

The costs of arrest, custody, maintenance, and transportation of the person, as well as of the objects referred to in the preceding article, will be borne by the State granting the extradition up to the moment of surrender and from thereon they will be borne by the demanding State.

Article 17

Once the extradition is granted, the demanding State undertakes:

- (a) Not to try nor to punish the person for a common offense which was committed previous to the request for extradition and which has not been included in said request, except only if the interested party expressly consents.
- (b) Not to try nor to punish the person for a political offense, or for an offense connected with a political offense, committed previous to the request for extradition.
- (c) To apply to the accused the punishment of next lesser degree than death if according to the legislation of the country of refuge the death penalty would not be applicable.
- (d) To furnish to the State granting the extradition an authentic copy of the sentence pronounced.

Article 18

The signatory States undertake to permit the transit through their respective territories of any person whose extradition has been granted by another State in favour of a third, requiring only the original or an authentic copy of the agreement by which the country of refuge granted the extradition.

Article 19

No request for extradition may be based upon the stipulations of this Convention if the offense in question has been committed before the ratification of the Convention is deposited.

Article 20

The present Convention will be ratified by means of the legal forms in common use in each of the signatory States, and will come into force, for each of them, thirty days after the deposit of the respective ratification.

The Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Republic of Uruguay shall transmit authentic certified copies to the governments for the aforementioned purpose of ratification. The instrument of ratification shall be deposited in the archives of the Pan-American Union in Washington, which shall notify the signatory governments of said deposit. Such notification shall be considered as an exchange of ratifications.

Article 21

The present Convention does not abrogate or modify the bilateral or collective treaties, which at the present date are in force between the signatory States. Nevertheless, if any of said treaties lapse, the present Convention will take effect and become applicable immediately among the respective States, if each of them has fulfilled the stipulations of the preceding article.

Article 22

The present Convention shall remain in force indefinitely but may be denounced by means of one year's notice given to the Pan-American Union, which shall transmit it to the other signatory governments. After the expiration of this period the Convention shall cease in its effects as regards the party which denounces but shall remain in effect for the remaining High Contracting Parties.

Article 23

The present Convention shall be open for the adherence and accession of the States which are not signatories. The corresponding instruments shall be deposited in the archives of the Pan-American Union, which shall communicate them to the other High Contracting Parties.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the following Plenipotentiaries have signed this convention in Spanish, English, Portuguese and French and hereunto affix their respective seals in the city of Montevideo, Republic of Uruguay, this 26th day of December, 1933.

Reservations

The Delegation of the United States of America, in signing the present Extradition Convention, reserves the following articles:

Article 2 (second sentence, English text);

Articles 12, 15, and 18.

Reservation to the effect that El Salvador, although it accepts in general principle Article 18 of the Inter-American Treaty of Extradition, concretely stipulates the exception that it cannot cooperate in the surrender of its own nationals, prohibited by its Political Constitution, by permitting the transit through its territory of said nationals when one foreign State surrenders them to another.

Mexico signs the Convention on Extradition with the declaration with respect to Article 3, paragraph f, that the internal legislation of Mexico does not recognize offenses against religion. It will not sign the optional clause of this Convention.

The Delegation from Ecuador, in dealing with the Nations with which Ecuador has signed Conventions on Extraditions, accepts the stipulations herein established in all respects which are not contrary to said Conventions.

Optional clause

The States signing this clause, notwithstanding Article 2 of the preceding Convention on Extradition, agree among themselves that in no case will the nationality of the criminal be permitted to impede his extradition.

The present clause is open to those States signing said Treaty of Extradition, which desire to be ruled by it in the future, for which purpose it will be sufficient to communicate their adherence to the Pan American Union.

INTER-AMERICAN CONVENTION ON EXTRADITION

Signed at Caracas on 25 February 1981 at the Inter-American Specialized Conference on Extradition

Text: OAS, Treaty Series, No. 60, p. 45

The Member States of the Organization of American States,

Reaffirming their goal of strengthening international cooperation in legal and criminal law matters, which was the inspiration for the agreements reached in Lima on March 27, 1879, in Montevideo on January 23, 1889, in Mexico City on January 28, 1902, in Washington on February 7, 1923, in Havana on February 20, 1928, in Montevideo on December 26, 1933, in Guatemala City on April 12, 1934, and in Montevideo on March 19, 1940;

Taking into consideration resolutions CVII of the Tenth Inter-American Conference (Caracas, 1954), VII of the Third Meeting of the Inter-American Council of Jurists (Mexico, 1956), IV of the Fourth Meeting of that Council (Santiago, Chile, 1959), and AG/RES.91 (II-0/72), 183 (V-0/75) and 310 (VII-0/77) of the General Assembly of the Organization of American States, as well as the draft Conventions proposed by the Inter-American Juridical Committee in 1954, 1957, 1973, and 1977;

Believing that the close ties and the cooperation that exist in the Americas call for the extension of extradition to ensure that crime does not go unpunished, and to simplify procedures and promote mutual assistance in the field of criminal law on a wider scale than provided for by the treaties in force, with due respect to the human rights embodied in the American Declaration of the Rights and Duties of Man and the Universal Declaration of Human Rights; and

Conscious that the fight against crime at the international level will enhance the fundamental value of justice in criminal law matters,

The Member States of the Organization of American States

ADOPT THE FOLLOWING INTER-AMERICAN CONVENTION ON EXTRADITION:

Article 1

Obligation to Extradite

The States Parties bind themselves, in accordance with the provisions of this Convention, to surrender to other States Parties that request their extradition persons who are judicially required for prosecution, are being tried, have been convicted or have been sentenced to a penalty involving deprivation of liberty.

Article 2

Jurisdiction

1. For extradition to be granted, the offense that gave rise to the request for extradition must have been committed in the territory of the requesting State.
2. When the offense for which extradition is requested has been committed outside the territory of the requesting State, extradition shall be granted provided the requesting State has jurisdiction to try the offense that gave rise to the request for extradition and to pronounce judgement thereon.
3. The requested State may deny extradition when it is competent, according to its own legislation, to prosecute the person whose extradition is sought for the offense on which the request is based. If it denies extradition for this reason, the requested State shall submit the case to its competent authorities and inform the requesting State of the result.

Article 3

Extraditable Offenses

1. For extradition to be granted, the offense for which the person is sought shall be punishable at the time of its commission, by reason of the acts that constitute it, disregarding extenuating circumstances and the denomination of the offense, by a penalty of not less than two years of deprivation of liberty under the laws of both the requesting State and the requested State. Where the principle of retroactivity of penal law exists, it shall be applied only when it is favourable to the offender.
2. If the extradition is to be carried out between States whose laws establish minimum and maximum penalties, the offense for which extradition is requested shall be punishable, under the laws of the requesting and the requested States, by an average penalty of at least two years of deprivation of liberty. Average penalty is understood to be one-half of the sum of the minimum and maximum terms of each penalty of deprivation of liberty.
3. Where the extradition of an offender is requested for the execution of a sentence involving deprivation of liberty, the duration of the sentence still to be served must be at least six months.
4. In determining whether extradition should be granted to a State having a federal form of government and separate federal and state criminal legislation, the requested State shall take into consideration only the essential elements of the offense and shall disregard elements such as interstate transportation or use of the mails or other facilities of interstate commerce, since the sole purpose of such elements is to establish the jurisdiction of the federal courts of the requesting State.

Article 4

Grounds for Denying Extradition

Extradition shall not be granted:

1. When the person sought has completed his punishment or has been granted amnesty, pardon or grace for the offense for which extradition is sought, or when he has been acquitted or the case against him for the same offense has been dismissed with prejudice.
2. When the prosecution or punishment is barred by the statute of limitations according to the laws of the requesting State or the requested State prior to the presentation of the request for extradition.
3. When the person sought has been tried or sentenced or is to be tried before an extraordinary or ad hoc tribunal of the requesting State.
4. When, as determined by the requested State, the offense for which the person is sought is a political offense, an offense related thereto, or an ordinary criminal offense prosecuted for political reasons. The requested State may decide that the fact that the victim of the punishable act in question performed political functions does not in itself justify the designation of the offense as political.
5. When, from the circumstances of the case, it can be inferred that persecution for reasons of race, religion or nationality is involved, or that the position of the person sought may be prejudiced for any of these reasons.
6. With respect to offenses that in the requested State cannot be prosecuted unless a complaint or charge has been made by a party having a legitimate interest.

Article 5

Specific Offenses

No provision of this Convention shall preclude extradition regulated by a treaty or Convention in force between the requesting State and the requested State whose purpose is to prevent or repress a specific category of offenses and which imposes on such States an obligation to either prosecute or extradite the person sought.

Article 6

Right of Asylum

No provision of this Convention may be interpreted as a limitation on the right of asylum when its exercise is appropriate.

Article 7

Nationality

1. The nationality of the person sought may not be invoked as a ground for denying extradition, except when the law of the requested State otherwise provides.
2. In the case of convicted persons, the States Parties may negotiate the mutual surrender of nationals so that they may serve their sentences in the States of which they are nationals.

Article 8

Prosecution by the Requested State

If, when extradition is applicable, a State does not deliver the person sought, the requested State shall, when its laws or other treaties so permit, be obligated to prosecute him for the offense with which he is charged, just as if it had been committed within its territory, and shall inform the requesting State of the judgment handed down.

Article 9

Penalties Excluded

The States Parties shall not grant extradition when the offense in question is punishable in the requesting State by the death penalty, by life imprisonment, or by degrading punishment, unless the requested State has previously obtained from the requesting State, through the diplomatic channel, sufficient assurances that none of the above-mentioned penalties will be imposed on the person sought or that, if such penalties are imposed, they will not be enforced.

Article 10

Transmission of Request

The request for extradition shall be made by the diplomatic agent of the requesting State, or, if none is present, by its consular officer, or, when appropriate, by the diplomatic agent of a third State to which is entrusted, with the consent of the government of the requested State, the representation and protection of the interests of the requesting State. The request may also be made directly from government to government, in accordance with such procedure as the governments concerned may agree upon.

Article 11

Supporting Documents

1. The request for extradition shall be accompanied by the documents listed below, duly certified in the manner prescribed by the laws of the requesting State:

Article 12

Supplementary Information and Legal Assistance

1. The requested State, when it considers that the documents presented are insufficient, in accordance with the provisions of Article 11 of this Convention, shall so inform the requesting State as soon as possible. The requesting State shall correct any omissions or defects observed within a period of thirty days in the event the person sought is already detained or subject to precautionary measures. 2. The requested State shall provide, at no cost to the requesting State, legal assistance to protect the interests of the requesting State before the competent authorities of the requested State.

Article 13

Rule of Speciality

 - (a) That person leaves the territory of the requesting State after extradition and voluntarily returns to it; or
 - (b) That person does not leave the territory of the requesting State within thirty days after being free to do so; or

2. When extradition has been granted, the requesting State shall inform the requested State of the final resolution of the case against the person extradited.

Article 14

Provisional Detention and Precautionary Measures

1. In urgent cases, a State Party may request by the means of communication provided for in Article 10 of this Convention, or any other such means, the detention of the person who is judicially required for prosecution, is being tried, has been convicted, or has been sentenced to a penalty involving deprivation of liberty, and may also request the seizure of the objects related to the offense. The request for provisional detention shall contain a statement of intention to present the formal request for the extradition of the person sought, a statement of the existence of a warrant of arrest or of a judgment of conviction against the person issued by a judicial authority, and a description of the offense. The request for provisional detention shall be the sole responsibility of the requesting State.
2. The requested State shall order provisional detention and, when appropriate, the seizure of objects and shall immediately inform the requesting State of the date on which provisional detention commenced.
3. If the request for extradition, accompanied by the documents referred to in Article 11 of this Convention, is not presented within sixty days of the date on which the provisional detention referred to in paragraph 1 of this article commenced, the person sought shall be set free.
4. After the period of time referred to in the preceding paragraph has expired, the detention of the person sought may not be again requested except upon presentation of the documents required under Article 11 of this Convention.

Article 15

Requests by more than One State

When the extradition is requested by more than one State for the same offense, the requested State shall give preference to the request of the State in which the offense was committed. If the requests are for different offenses, preference shall be given to the State seeking the individual for the offense punishable by the most severe penalty, in accordance with the laws of the requested State. If the requests involve different offenses that the requested State considers to be of equal gravity, preference shall be determined by the order in which the requests are received.

Article 16

Legal Rights and Assistance

1. The person sought shall enjoy in the requested State all the legal rights and guarantees granted by the laws of that State.
2. The person sought shall be assisted by legal counsel, and if the official language of the country is other than his own, he shall also be assisted by an interpreter.

Article 17

1. The surrender of the person sought to the agents of the requesting State shall be carried out at a place determined by the requested State. This place shall, if possible, be an airport from which direct international flights depart for the requesting State.
2. If the request for provisional detention or for extradition is accompanied by a request for the seizure of documents, money or other objects that result from the alleged offense or may serve as evidence, such objects shall be collected and deposited under inventory by the requested State for subsequent delivery to the requesting State when the extradition is granted and even though the extradition is impeded by force majeure, unless the law of the requested State forbids such delivery. In any event, the rights of third parties shall not be affected.

Article 20

Deferral of Surrender

1. When the person sought is being tried or is serving a sentence in the requested State for an offense other than that for which the extradition is requested, his surrender may be deferred until he is entitled to be set free by virtue of acquittal, completed service or commutation of sentence, dismissal, pardon, amnesty or grace. No civil suit that the person sought may have pending against him in the requested State may prevent or defer his surrender.
2. When the surrender of the person sought would, for reasons of health, endanger his life, his surrender may be deferred until it would no longer pose such a danger.

Article 21

Simplified Extradition

The requested State may grant extradition without a formal extradition proceeding if:

- (a) Its laws do not expressly prohibit it;
- (b) The person sought irrevocably consents in writing to the extradition after being advised by a judge or other competent authority of his right to a formal extradition proceeding and the protection afforded by such a proceeding.

Article 22

Period for Taking Custody of the Person Sought

If the extradition has been granted, the requesting State shall take custody of the person sought within a period of thirty days from the date on which he was placed at its disposal. If it does not take custody within that period, the person sought shall be set free and may not be subjected to a new extradition procedure for the same offense or offenses.

This period, however, may be extended for thirty days if the requesting State is unable, owing to circumstances beyond its control, to take custody of the person sought and escort him out of the territory of the requested State.

Article 23

Custody

The agents of the requesting State who are in the territory of another State Party to take custody of a person whose extradition has been granted shall be authorized to have custody of him and escort him to the territory of the requesting State, provided, however, that such agents shall be subject to the jurisdiction of the State in which they are.

Article 24

1. If prior notification has been given from government to government through diplomatic or consular channels, the States Parties shall permit and cooperate in the transit through their territories of a person whose extradition has been granted under the custody of agents of the requesting State and/or the requested State, as the case may be, upon presentation of a copy of the order granting the extradition.
2. Such prior notification shall not be necessary when air transport is used and no landing is scheduled in the territory of the State Party that will be flown over.

Article 25

Expenses

Expenses incurred in the detention, custody, maintenance, and transportation of both the person extradited and of the objects referred to in Article 19 of this Convention shall be borne by the requested State up to the moment of surrender and delivery, and thereafter such expenses shall be borne by the requesting State.
