NOTES:

- ⇒ Australia has agreed to resettle an additional 12,000 refugees who are fleeing the conflict in the Syrian Arab Republic and Iraq. The proportion of these places to be allocated to Syrian refugees has not yet been determined. The 12,000 additional places will be delivered over multiple years. A breakdown of visas granted for this group will be provided once these places are delivered.
- ⇒ Canada has committed to finalise a number of privately sponsored refugees by early 2017. Numbers will be clarified in coming months.
- ⇒ Between 2013 and 2015, France issued 2,622 asylum visas for Syrians. France has pledged an additional 1,500 humanitarian visas, and an additional 1,000 scholarship places.
- ⇒ 186 Syrian individuals have been admitted to Germany to participate in scholarship programmes. The individuals were selected on the basis of academic performance, rather than on humanitarian grounds.
- ⇒ Italy announced a private sponsorship project (Humanitarian Corridors) which aims to admit 1,000 persons, including a significant number of Syrians. So far 192 Syrians have been admitted through this project.
- ⇒ The United Kingdom have recently announced a programme for the resettlement of up to 3,000 individuals from the MENA region. The new scheme is additional to the UK's Vulnerable Persons Resettlement Scheme and will be specifically tailored to support refugee children at risk and their families. The figure has not been included in the table above because, in accordance with UNHCR's advice, the programme is not exclusively for Syrian nationals.
- ⇒ UNHCR has submitted 43,297 Syrian refugees for resettlement consideration to the United States of America (figure as of end of April 2016).
- ⇒ The EU Member States and Associated States committed to resettle Syrians as part of the July 2015 Conclusions adopted within the EU framework to resettle 22,504 refugees from priority regions for resettlement, and the EU committed to resettle Syrians in the framework of the EU-Turkey Statement of March 2016. These commitments are reflected through the individual pledges of European resettlement States in the table above, where confirmed.
- ⇒ The table above does not include asylum data, or pledges for other pathways for admission (family reunification, labor mobility schemes and medical evacuation) since no pledges have been received.
