Context

Over one million refugees and migrants undertook the perilous journey across the Mediterranean into Europe in 2015, the majority having crossed the Aegean Sea from Turkey to Greece. Despite worsening weather conditions brought on by the onset of winter, movements did not subside. These were mainly driven by the absence of political solutions to major conflicts in the Syrian Arab Republic (Syria), Iraq and Afghanistan, as well as the increasing number of refugee populations in neighbouring countries of first asylum affected inter alia by deteriorating living conditions, leading to onward movements out of desperation.

Border restrictions in February 2016 and subsequent closure in countries along the Western Balkan route have led to a large build-up of refugees and migrants in Greece. Since early March, new sites are regularly being opened and operated by the Government on the mainland with some 55,000 people currently living in 40+ of these sites across the country.

Although the Greek Authorities, Military and NGOs and have been responding around the clock to the current crisis, thousands of PoCs still have little or no access to basic services and of particular concern is access to water and sanitation. Under the coordination of the National Level Inter-Sector Inter-Agency Coordination Structure, the WASH Sector Inter-Agency National Level Working Group has been established as a response to the refugee and migrant influx into Greece. The Working Group aims to coordinate the efforts of the humanitarian agencies and key actors for the refugees in camps/sites and in host communities across Greece.

Objective

The objective of the National Level WASH Sector Inter-Agency Coordinator is to guide, lead and coordinate the WASH Sector and its established sub-national (regional) WASH working groups to ensure the effective and timely provision of coordinated WASH actions in support of Persons of Concern (PoC). The National Level WASH Sector Inter-Agency Coordinator reports to the Senior Inter-Agency Coordination Officer. The role aims to promote:

1. Responses based on needs.
2. Comprehensive and credible assessments of needs, resources and capacities.
3. Implementation based on agreed appropriate Minimum Standards, indicators and timelines.
4. Monitoring and reporting against the above standards, indicators and timelines.
5. Strengthened humanitarian WASH response through high standards of predictability, accountability and partnership.
