Response in 2018

The overall situation in Central Africa and the Great Lakes region continued to be characterized by complex political situations and both new and protracted displacement in 2018. UNHCR declared three new emergencies in the sub-region in the course of 2018: Cameroon, the Central African Republic (CAR) and the Democratic Republic of the Congo. At the end of the year, the sub-region hosted more than 1.5 million refugees and asylum-seekers, with the largest caseloads in the DRC (534,830), Cameroon (388,450), the United Republic of Tanzania (317,980) and Rwanda (145,780). In addition, 5.36 million people were internally displaced within the sub-region, with the vast majority, 4.52 million IDPs, in the DRC. Furthermore, 45,370 refugees returned to Burundi and 35,130 to the DRC. The number of stateless persons stood at 641,940, of which 99.8% were in CAR.

The political situation in Burundi remained complex and difficult, due to the forthcoming elections in 2020. Serious human rights violations continued to be reported throughout 2018, also having a negative impact on the socio-economic situation in the country. The main refugee population in Burundi consists of, mostly protracted, Congolese refugees living in five camps along the border.

In the Far North region of Cameroon, Boko Haram continued to commit serious human rights abuses and violations against civilian populations. Meanwhile, clashes between the government and armed separatists in the northwest and southwest regions intensified. The situation in Cameroon accounts for over 668,000 of the IDP population in the sub-region, with approximately 514,000 displaced during 2018 alone.

In CAR, some armed groups and their factions continued to control several parts of the territory. Regular violent clashes between armed groups, intercommunal tensions and violent attacks on civilian populations contributed to new displacement of about 266,000 IDPs and some 49,000 newly displaced refugees. Despite the continued insecurity, CAR also experienced unprecedented level of progress towards peace and reconciliation as the Government stepped up its engagement with armed groups mainly through dialogue, with support of member states from the region and the African Initiative for Peace and Reconciliation. In parallel, the UN Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic (MINUSCA) maintained its lead in local peace and dialogue processes, which resulted in restoration of peace and stability in some areas. The combination of these efforts led to a significant reduction in violence and enabled conditions for safe voluntary return of 35,128 refugees in addition to 306,246 IDPs, including 9,391 assisted by UNHCR. UNHCR worked with the Government to support the integration of the residual caseload of Sudanese refugees in Bambari (nearly 200 people), who opted to remain following the voluntary return of some 1,500 refugees in December 2017.

The situation in the DRC remained complex and challenging, comprising some 4.5 million IDPs and a further 825,000 Congolese refugees in the region. UNHCR declared an internal L2 emergency in August 2018 in the Ituri and North Kivu provinces of DRC, in view of the continued internal displacement crisis coupled with the outbreak of Ebola. UNHCR has since enhanced its protection monitoring and capacity, as well as strengthened its leadership through the Protection Cluster. Ebola continued to constitute a major threat with the number of cases steadily increasing throughout 2018. The outbreak is now the second biggest since the epidemic in West Africa in 2014. Responding to the crisis has proven difficult as the areas affected are also active areas of conflict.

UNHCR experienced a number of challenges in the United Republic of Tanzania in 2018. New arrivals from Burundi faced a stricter approached to territory, asylum and livelihoods to the Burundian refugees already in the country. The closure of all border entry points across north-western Tanzania significantly reduced the protection space available to refugees. Over the past two years, the United Republic of Tanzania has naturalized many of the Burundian refugees who arrived in 1972. However, a joint verification exercise of UNHCR and the Government identified the pending cases of approximately 58,000 Burundian people of concern (linked to the 1972 Burundian population), as well as pending cases from the initial naturalization process. UNHCR supported the Government to continue the naturalization process for those who qualify, as well as resolve protection issues, and work on alternative stay arrangements.

The sub-region made significant progress in advancing the #IBelong Campaign to eradicate statelessness by 2024 with the launch of N'Djamena Initiative for the Eradication of Statelessness in Central Africa, to which member states include Chad, Cameroon, Central African Republic, Democratic Republic of Congo, Equatorial Guinea, Gabon, Republic of Congo and São Tomé and Príncipe pledged to support.

UNHCR's operatons in the sub-region in 2018

Operations in Burundi, Cameroon, Central African Republic, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Republic of the Congo, Rwanda and United Republic of Tanzania are presented in separate country summaries.

Refugees in Gabon enjoy access to the labour market on the same basis as nationals, and now have reliable access to farm land in key provinces. Refugees in formal employment accessed the National Insurance Fund for Illness, although 686 without employment are not yet covered. Four Chadian refugees who had been born in Gabon three who married nationals were granted citizenship in 2018. The Government issued 90 residence cards to 129 Chadian refugees who had been in the country for a significant period. The cost of and administrative process to obtain residence cards meant that 165 applications remain pending.
