About UNHCR

The Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees was established on 14 December 1950 by the United Nations General Assembly. The agency is mandated to lead and coordinate international response to protect refugees and resolve refugee problems worldwide. Its primary purpose is to safeguard the rights and wellbeing of refugees. It strives to ensure that everyone can exercise the right to seek asylum and find safe refuge in another State, with the option to return home voluntarily, integrate locally or to resettle in a third country. It also has a mandate to help stateless people.

Brief Background of the Project

The overall operational landscape in Libya remains volatile. In 2019, the instability and ongoing conflict may continue to lead to forced displacement and to restrict the access of UNHCR's persons of concern to essential services, deteriorating living conditions and impacting on people's safety and security.

The crisis in Libya may continue to present targeted attacks on civilians, including women and girls, rising civilian casualties, restricted access to safety and freedom of movement, alarming levels of SGBV, arbitrary detention and torture, child protection and threat as a result of presence of explosive hazards. Under these conditions, people in Libya will continue to be highly vulnerable, exposed to violence and unable to have a sustained access life-saving medical assistance, essential medicines, food, safe drinking water and sanitation, shelter and education. The current liquidity crisis will continue to affect people's ability to access basic commodities and services due to a decrease in their purchasing power to acquire goods.

According to 5-12 October UNHCR Flash Update for Libya, there are an estimated 56,045 refugees and asylum seekers in need of humanitarian assistance in Libya, of which approximately 55,000 coming mostly from Syria, Iraq, Eritrea, Ethiopia, Sudan and Palestine have been registered with UNHCR. Available information and assessments concluded that refugees and asylum seekers are the least resilient to the impact of the current crisis in Libya. They are more likely to have been displaced several times, to live in more vulnerable shelter types and to have been exposed to threats, intimidation, harassment, physical assault or violence.
