MISSING PERSONS IN NEPAL

The right to know

Uncertainty about the fate of a relative is a harsh reality for countless families during and after armed conflict or other violence. All over the world, people are desperately searching for lost relatives. Not knowing whether relatives are alive or dead, families and communities are unable to put the violence of the past behind them. Their anguish continues years after peace has returned, and they are unable to move on to rehabilitation and reconciliation, either as individuals or as communities. These wounds harm the very fabric of society and undermine relationships between groups, sometimes decades after a conflict has ended.

The 1996-2006 conflict in Nepal brought tragedy for many families: thousands of people were killed during the conflict, and over a thousand families still do not know what happened to a relative. International humanitarian law (IHL) requires authorities to take all feasible measures to account for people who go missing, and to give families all the information they have on their fate and whereabouts. In other words, IHL requires the authorities to do all they can to provide families with answers that will end the agony of uncertainty, so that they can begin mourning the loss of a beloved husband, caring father, or loving son or daughter.

Since 1999, the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC), supported by the Nepal Red Cross Society (NRCS), has maintained contact with the families of missing persons across Nepal and has been encouraging the former parties to the conflict to clarify the fate of those who remain unaccounted for. Over the years, the ICRC has received 3819¹ reports from families regarding the disappearance of a relative in relation to the conflict. While the fate and whereabouts of hundreds of people has been established, 1383² people are still missing, nearly five years after the end of the conflict. Their families are anxious to know what happened; they need a formal answer so they can get on with their lives. Until then, they are torn between despair and hope: despair at the loss of a relative and hope that he or she may reappear, against all odds.

For three consecutive years (2007, 2008 and 2009) the ICRC and the NRCS published lists of missing persons in Nepal. These lists contained 812, 1227 and 1348 names respectively. In 2010, the ICRC published the updated list of 1369 names on its website, in English and Nepali (www.familylinks.icrc.org).

Since 2007, 42 families have received an answer and have been able to move on with their lives; meanwhile many more have come forward and asked the Red Cross to help them obtain information.

The present document contains an updated list of 1383 missing persons, taken from ICRC records. This is not a comprehensive list of everyone who went missing during the conflict; it only includes people whose families have approached the NRCS or the ICRC looking for information about a missing relative. Each name represents the missing person, his or her family, the suffering of that family, the statements the families provided to the ICRC, and the ICRC's repeated representations to the authorities.

In May 2009, the ICRC published a study on the needs of the families of missing persons, as expressed by the families themselves. The picture that emerges from this study is of a group of families striving simultaneously to cope with the multiple effects of a relative going missing – especially the economic impact – while enduring the emotional strain of not knowing whether the person is alive or dead. The study shows that there is an urgent need for the Nepalese authorities to honour their public commitments to resolve the issue of missing persons. The government must address both the families' status and their right to know their missing relatives' fate. Clarifying the fate and whereabouts of missing relatives and taking measures regarding the status of missing persons are both critical: they will allow the families to begin the process of mourning and reconciliation.

² Total number of unresolved missing persons cases on Red Cross files as of 15 July 2011

The aims of this publication are to bring public recognition to the 1383 families of missing persons in Nepal and to highlight their suffering and their needs. It also constitutes an appeal to the government of Nepal, to clarify the fate of those who went missing during the conflict and to ensure that all families of missing persons are included in government programmes supporting the victims of conflict.

WHO IS A "MISSING PERSON"?

In Nepal, the ICRC defines a "missing person" as:

An individual who is unaccounted for as a result of the armed conflict that took place in the country between 13 February 1996 and 21 November 2006 and, whose family is still seeking clarification from the authorities about the person's fate and/or the location of the human remains.

WHAT ARE THE FAMILIES' "NEEDS"?

- A satisfactory answer from the authorities, clarifying the fate of the missing person
- If the person is deceased, information on the location of the mortal remains and possibilities to recover them
- Government acknowledgement in the form of a declaration of death, a death certificate or the granting of a special status
- Government assistance to receive reparations

A HIDDEN TRAGEDY

People have gone missing for as long as wars have been fought. The circumstances of disappearance vary: people are executed and buried in unmarked graves; they are taken off the street or from their homes and subsequently die in custody without their next-of-kin being informed. Other missing persons include people (civilians or fighters killed in combat) whose remains are not identified or recovered. Although it is a tragedy for the person who disappears, their family are victims too. With nothing to prove that the person is alive or dead, the family is unable to obtain closure.

CAUGHT BETWEEN HOPE AND DESPAIR

The suffering of the families is not only emotional – having a relative go missing can be financially crippling. Missing persons are often the breadwinners, and the loss of income can plunge a family into poverty. In Nepal, the situation is made worse by the legal requirement that a person must be missing for 12 years in order to officially be declared dead. During this period, family members are unable to move on, sell property, remarry, or simply perform funeral rites. Until they obtain adequate proof of death, relatives cannot mourn, and they may feel guilty if they do attempt to begin the mourning process.

THE "RIGHT TO KNOW" AND INTERNATIONAL LAW

The families of missing persons tell us that what they need above all else is to know what happened to the person. The right of a family to know what has happened to a relative is enshrined in international humanitarian law and human rights law and must be respected. The legal obligations are laid down in the Geneva Conventions, their Additional Protocols and in the International Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance. International law is clear on the matter: it is illegal to make people disappear, and the next-of-kin must be informed without delay when a person is captured, detained, or dies. Authorities must do everything they can to prevent people from going missing and to deal with the consequences of disappearances when they do occur. When a missing person is believed to be dead, locating, recovering and identifying their remains is an indispensable component of the healing process for the families and communities.

RED CROSS ACTION

The ICRC maintains dialogue with all former parties to the conflict in Nepal, regularly asking them to provide information on the fate and whereabouts of missing persons. The ICRC makes representations on behalf of families and with their consent. With an exclusively humanitarian objective, the organization conducts confidential discussions with the relevant authorities. The ICRC is working in partnership with the NRCS and its network of volunteers to support the families of missing persons. Thanks to this proximity, the families feel that they are not alone in their search for missing relatives. NRCS volunteers channel important information to them, help them to apply for the government's interim relief assistance or Red-Cross-supported programmes, and update information about their cases. Confidential findings about their missing relatives are transmitted solely by ICRC staff.

HELPING FAMILIES

The ICRC is implementing a comprehensive psychosocial support program for the families of missing persons in 10 districts of Nepal to address their psychological distress and socio-economic-cultural difficulties. It works in partnership with Nepali organizations namely Tharu Women Upliftment Center in Bardiya, Mahila Upakar Munch in Banke, Rural Women Upliftment Center in Dang, Namuna Integrated Development Council in Rupandehi/Kapilvastu, Diyalo Pariwar in Chitwan/Nawalparasi and Antarang in Kathmandu Valley.

With support groups at the core of its multi-faceted interventions, the program assists the families of missing persons to cope with the ambiguity of their loss, while helping them discover new connections to move ahead in life. The program also includes building solidarity networks of other service providers locally and nationally. It mobilises them to include the families of missing persons in their assistance, primarily for economical, legal/administrative and mental health support.

The solidarity network for referral consists of Heifer International, Advocacy Forum, Helvetas Employment Fund, CTEVT - Skill for Employment Project, Center for Mental Health and Counselling (CMC) and Women Rehabilitation Centre (WOREC).

MANAGING HUMAN REMAINS

The failure to identify people who have died during armed conflict and other situations of violence significantly increases the number of persons categorized as missing. Often, little or nothing is done to find, collect and identify their remains. Furthermore, bodies are sometimes buried in unmarked graves. As a result, important information on the dead is lost, and their families either do not know whether their relatives are dead or alive, or else know that they are dead but do not know the circumstances, nor the location of the person's remains. The ICRC therefore encourages government authorities to carry out exhumations when possible, and provides advice and training on forensics, in order to identify human remains and help resolve the fate of missing persons.

INTERNATIONAL ACTION

In 2002, the ICRC began studying ways of better helping people who go missing as a result of armed conflict or internal violence – and their relatives. Subsequently, it launched a mobilization process aimed at moving the issue up the international agenda. An international conference was held in 2003, bringing together approximately 120 participants from government bodies, human rights and humanitarian organizations, members of the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement, experts and the families of the missing persons. Following this conference, the 28th International Conference of the Red Cross and Red Crescent adopted the Agenda for Humanitarian Action, which sets out clear objectives for States and for the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement, with the families' right to know the fate of their missing relatives at its heart. Since then, the ICRC has continued to expand its activities related to missing persons and their families. This has included participating in the drafting committee that wrote the International Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance, adopted by the UN General Assembly on 20 December 2006.

FAMILY ASSOCIATIONS

Groups of families who share the common trauma of having a missing family member have formed family networks or associations. The ICRC and the NRCS encourage these initiatives, which aim to:

- provide mutual support and help to meet socio-economic and psychological needs;
- enable families to transcend the status of “victim” and start addressing their own needs;
- raise awareness among a wider audience of their plight and of their right to know;
- get State authorities and former parties to the conflict to fulfil their legal obligations.

MISSING PERSONS: INTERNATIONAL LAW APPLICABLE IN NEPAL

The conflict in Nepal, which lasted from 13 February 1996 to 21 November 2006, is considered a “non-international armed conflict” from the standpoint of international humanitarian law.

The specific provisions of international humanitarian law that apply to this conflict are contained in:

- the four Geneva Conventions of 12 August 1949 (common Article 3);
- customary international humanitarian law: families have the right to know the fate and whereabouts of their relatives (Rule 117). Furthermore, whenever circumstances permit, and particularly after an engagement, all possible measures shall be taken, without delay, to search for the dead, prevent their bodies from being despoiled, and decently dispose of them. This includes recording all available information prior to disposal and marking the locations of the graves (Rules 112, 113 and 116).

These provisions address the protection of victims of non-international armed conflict. They do not affect the legal status of the parties to the conflict (Art. 3 common to the Four Geneva Conventions).
