Enclosure

Question 1.1

What measures does Bulgaria have in place to prohibit by law and to prevent incitement to commit a terrorist act or acts? What further steps, if any, are under consideration?

1. The Bulgarian Criminal Code contains specific provision (corpus delicti) for the punishment of “incitement to terrorist act/acts”.
2. Article 108a, para. 1 of the Criminal Code contains definition of terrorism and provides for punishment of terrorism (see the annex).

Under Art. 320, para. 1 of the Criminal Code a person shall be punished who openly abets to the perpetration of a crime by preaching before many people or by distribution of printed works or in any other similar manner;

Paragraph 2 of Article 320 of the Criminal Code provides that the punishment for open instigation towards perpetration of a crime under Art. 108a, para. 1 (i.e. for instigation towards terrorism) is up to six years of imprisonment. It means that the Bulgarian Criminal law considers the “incitement to terrorism” as a serious offence.

Besides this, Art. 320a of the Criminal Code provides that “a person who threatens to commit a crime under Art. 108a, para 1 ... and where such threat might give rise to justified fear of its perpetration shall be punished by imprisonment for up to two years”.

The above-mentioned provisions were introduced in the Criminal Code by the amendments adopted in September 2002.

Under Art. 20, para. 1 from the General Provisions of the Criminal Code the abettor is the one who has deliberately persuaded somebody else to commit a crime and is punished as follows — under Art. 21, para. 2.

Accordingly, the Bulgarian Criminal Code provides for criminalization of the incitement to terrorist act/acts.
