Note: the initial review leading to a decision on whether or not the BAC will accept the appeal for further consideration will ordinarily be based solely on the information that is provided in this form. The grounds for the appeal should not exceed five pages and should be restricted to an outline of the procedural error alleged (including identifying the specific rule(s) said to have been breached) and how such error could reasonably have caused the athlete to be allocated an incorrect sport class and/or sport class status. General comments such as references to natural justice will not be considered evidence of a procedural error.

Subject to the BAC accepting to hear the case, the parties will have a subsequent opportunity to file more detailed written submissions and evidence.

Identify evidence:

List all documents, fact and expert witnesses, and other evidence that the Appellant relies on in support of this appeal. (Note: please do not submit these materials with this form, but only list them here.)

Alternative remedies exhausted:

Indicate what, or that all, available remedies have already been used to resolve the case.
