ACTIVITY TWO: HUM DISCUSSION 20’

Put the participants in pairs and ask them to analyse the protection issues previously identified during session 1 from a rights-based approach. Assign each pair a specific issue - for example forced recruitment, access to education, risk of displacement by disasters, political participation – and ask them to:

- Identify a human right potentially under threat and the group of rights it belongs to.

A. Civil and political rights related to people's lives, safety, physical wellbeing and family unity.

B. Economic, social and cultural rights related to food, basic shelter, health and primary education

D. Civil and political rights related to personal documentation and freedom of movement, expression, opinion, religion and voting

C. Economic, social and cultural rights related to housing, land and property, livelihoods and secondary and higher education

- Describe how the Guiding Principles regulate these protection issues and rights

The focus question for each pair should be:

Which guarantees do international legal frameworks establish for the protection of IDPs' specific rights and concerns?

Ask each pair to write down their ideas on a flipchart and to nominate one person to feed back in plenary.
