circumstances, including on grounds of national security or through judicial decisions. It further urged States to take effective measures to prevent torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment, and stressed that all allegations of such treatment or punishment must be promptly and impartially examined and that perpetrators must be held responsible and severely punished. The Assembly recalled that States should not expel, return (refouler) or extradite a person to another State where there are substantial grounds for believing that the person would be in danger of being subjected to torture. It furthermore urged all States that had not yet done so to become parties to the Convention as a matter of priority; invited all States to the Convention that had not yet done so to make the declarations provided for in articles 21 and 22 of the Convention, to consider the possibility of withdrawing their reservations to article 20, and to notify the Secretary-General of their acceptance of the amendments to articles 17 and 18 of the Convention as soon as possible; urged States parties to comply strictly with their obligations under the Convention, including, in view of the high number of reports not submitted in time, their obligation to submit reports in accordance with article 19 of the Convention; called upon the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, in conformity with the mandate established in General Assembly resolution 48/141, to continue to provide, at the request of States, advisory services for the preparation of national reports to the Committee and for the prevention of torture, as well as technical assistance for the development, production and distribution of teaching material for that purpose; urged States parties to take fully into account the conclusions and recommendations of the Committee; and requested the Secretary-General to submit to the Commission on Human Rights at its sixty-second session and the General Assembly at its sixty-first session a report on the status of the Convention.
