Suriname

The Government of Suriname has strengthened legislation against commercial sexual exploitation of children. Nevertheless, the worst forms of child labor in Suriname continue in the agricultural sector. Gaps remain in the enforcement of child labor laws and establishment of policies and social programs to eliminate the worst forms of child labor.

Prevalence and Sectoral Distribution of the Worst Forms of Child Labor⁴⁷³¹

Children in Suriname are exploited in the worst forms of child labor, particularly in agriculture. Children harvest fruit and rice where they may work with dangerous tools, risk exposure to pesticides and chemical fertilizers, and carry heavy loads. Children are also employed in fishing, where they are exposed to risks of drowning, injury, and use of sharp tools. Children also work in mining and logging.⁴⁷³²

Children are also involved in prostitution and are trafficked both internally, particularly between Paramaribo and mining camps in Suriname's interior and across the country's borders. Adolescent girls are most likely to be trafficked for sex.

Laws and Regulations on the Worst Forms of Child Labor

Suriname's Labor Code of 1963 sets the minimum age for employment at 14⁴⁷³⁵ and prohibits children under the age of 18 from performing hazardous work.⁴⁷³⁶ Children age 14 to 17 are prohibited from working between 7:00 p.m. and 6:00 a.m.⁴⁷³⁷ Minors under the age of 15 are not allowed to work on boats.⁴⁷³⁸

The Safety Act prohibits young persons under the age of 18 from engaging in work activities that may be injurious to their health and safety. The Preparatory Working Group of the National Commission on Child Labour (PWGCCL) created a draft decree containing a list of hazardous work prohibited to children. However, this draft has not yet been adopted by the Surinamese Government.

	Free Public Education	Yes

Article 15 of the Constitution bans forced labor. 4741 Article 307 of the Penal Code prohibits trafficking in persons. 4742 Prostitution is illegal, 4743 and in July 2009, the Criminal Code was amended with specific penalties against child prostitution and a prohibition on child pornography, including a minimum of ten years imprisonment. 4744

School is compulsory until the age of 12, but children cannot legally work until the age of 14. Children between these ages are vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor.

Institutional Mechanisms for Coordination and Enforcement

In November 2009, the National Commission for the Eradication of Child Labor (NCECL) was established by the Preparatory Working Group of the Commission on Child Labour (PWGCCL). The NCECL recommends additional laws and improves those that already exist in order to ensure accordance with international labor standards, including on the worst forms of child labor.⁴⁷⁴⁵ The Commission consists of officials from the ministries of labor, social affairs, and education, and individuals from labor unions, NGOs, and the private sector.⁴⁷⁴⁶ The Anti-trafficking Working Group is led by the Chief Prosecutor and coordinates the Government's anti-trafficking efforts. This body also works with other countries in the region for this purpose.⁴⁷⁴⁷

The Ministry of Justice and Police (MJP) and Ministry of Labor, Technology and Environment (MLTE) are jointly responsible for enforcement of child labor and related laws. The Youth Affairs Police is also responsible for issues relating to any persons under the age of 18. The Hamiltonian street and Police (MJP) and Ministry of Labor.

The Ministry of Labor, Technology and Environment's Department of Labor Inspection has 75 inspectors and 25 more new inspectors in training. The Department of Labor Inspection is responsible for workplace inspections for issues of health and safety conditions and child labor, and inspector visits were carried out within the private sector, primarily in urban areas. The police generally have responsibility for investigating worst forms of child labor issues in the informal sector.

The Special Anti-trafficking Police Unit (a six-person unit) raids brothels twice a month to determine whether minors are being trafficked or involved in prostitution. The Trafficking in Persons Police Unit (TIPPU) investigates reports and allegations of trafficking in persons, including those involving children. A child trafficking case is usually resolved within 6 to 9 months. Tchildren who have been trafficked are typically referred to the Foundation Against Trafficking in Persons, which is a private organization comprised of local NGOs that provides shelter services for trafficked victims.

There were three convictions for trafficking in minors during the reporting period. However, the sentences of two years, 1.5 years, and 9 months respectively were not equivalent to the Penal Code standard of 5 to 20 years imprisonment for trafficking in persons for sexual exploitation and for labor exploitation and the sentences were not fully served.

Government Policies on the Worst Forms of Child Labor

Research found no evidence of any policies to address the worst forms of child labor. 4759

Social Programs to Eliminate or Prevent the Worst Forms of Child Labor

The Government of Suriname participated in a regional project to combat the worst forms of child labor in the Caribbean, which was funded by the Government of Canada. The project's outcomes included a sub-regional workshop on combating child labor in indigenous communities in Suriname and the formation of a national steering committee on child labor. Although the Government of Suriname participated in a regional project to address the worst forms of child labor, research found no evidence that it has carried out programs to assist children in agriculture specifically.

The Ministry of Social Affairs administers a welfare and daycare system for indigent children to prevent them from seeking employment. Vocational programs have also been supported by the government to provide dropouts and older children with an alternative to child labor. The Ministry of Education and Community Development (MOECD) requested a reformulation of the Program for Improving Basic Education, which was implemented in 2004. Funded by a loan from the Inter-American Development Bank, the project aims to improve basic education and reduce student dropout rates in Suriname's education system. The question of whether these programs have an impact on the worst forms of child labor does not appear to have been addressed.

Suriname also took part in a regional initiative to raise awareness of trafficking in persons, funded by IOM. 4765 The Maxi Linder Foundation, an NGO funded by the Government, provides resources for victims of trafficking for prostitution, including children. 4766 The Child and Youth Hotline, called the "1-2-3 Hotline," is a simple number that children can dial to report instances of abuse and trafficking. 4767

Based on the reporting above, the following actions would advance the reduction of the worst forms of child labor in Suriname:

IN THE AREA OF LAWS AND REGULATIONS:

- Define hazardous types of work prohibited to children through adoption and publication of the draft hazardous decree.
- Raise the compulsory education age to 14, the established minimum age for work.

IN THE AREA OF COORDINATION AND ENFORCEMENT:

• Ensure that those convicted for trafficking children for sexual exploitation and labor exploitation are given the appropriate punishment equivalent to the Penal Code standard.

IN THE AREA OF POLICIES:

Adopt policies to address the worst forms of child labor.

IN THE AREA OF PROGRAMS:

- Assess the impact that existing programs may have in addressing the worst forms of child labor.
- Expand and develop social programs to assist children engaged in or at risk of entering the worst forms of child labor, in particular children working in agriculture.

⁴⁷³¹ Data provided in the chart at the beginning of this country report are not available from the data sources that are used by USDOL. Reliable data on the worst forms of child labor are especially difficult to collect given the often hidden or illegal nature of the worst forms.
