

COUNTRY OPERATIONS PLAN

Executive Committee Summary

Country: Korea

Planning Year: 2005

Part I: Executive Summary

A. Context: Beneficiary Population(s) and Theme(s)

The Republic of Korea (ROK) is party to the 1951 Convention and 1967 Protocol relating to the Status of Refugees. ROK acceded to the 1951 Convention in 1992 and amendments to the immigration law took effect in 1994. ROK contributed to the burden-sharing associated with the Indo-Chinese refugee boat arrivals. Only recently, it has hosted a small population of urban refugees and asylum-seekers of various nationalities, numbering less than 150 annually, although the numbers have increased dramatically during the latter quarter of 2003. The number is inclusive of those in the process of applying for refugee status as well as those who had claims rejected, some of whom were accorded mandate status by UNHCR. There is a need to develop the asylum system to satisfactorily fulfil its obligations to international protection standards.

In contrast with the limited engagement of ROK in matters related to non-Korean asylum-seekers on Korean territory, the issue of citizens of Democratic Peoples' Republic of Korea (DPRK) in third countries retains prominence for both the government and the public at-large. The increase in the total numbers of DPRK nationals received in ROK and the degree to which this impacts on the perceptions of people, both official and private, as regards the theme of refugees, continues to make the issue one of interest to the UNHCR Representation in Seoul (Seoul Office).

ROK remains supportive of UNHCR, both politically and financially, through participation in the Executive Committee (ExCom) deliberations and through their annual contributions to UNHCR programme. ROK continues to be considered a donor with some potential – evidenced by the Government's average annual contribution of just over US$ 1 million in unearmarked funds over the last six years, and in-kind contributions to the Afghan emergency in 2002 that nearly doubled this amount and again a further contribution to Iraq in 2003.

This context provides the rationale for UNHCR's presence and involvement in ROK. The Office's role also derives from Headquarters (HQs)' global strategies and the operational objectives in the Regional Bureau for Asia and the Pacific, including the promotion of asylum and international protection and the mobilisation of resources and other support for UNHCR activities. On this basis, the overall objectives of UNHCR operation in 2005 in the ROK will be threefold; (a) the provision of international protection to persons of concern through the strengthening of RSD procedures, (b) the further capacity building of domestic non-governmental institutions and (c) the promotion of relations with the Government, public information and public awareness with a view to broadening support of towards the work of UNHCR and its programmes of assistance world-wide. A cross-cutting theme related to the above-objectives will be the evolving situation related to DPRK and the extent to which this requires engagement with government and non-governmental actors in the field of emergency preparedness, contingency planning and response, as well as the public awareness elements related to a refugee population with direct blood ties to the people of ROK.

The overall challenge for UNHCR in ROK will be determined by the extent to which advances noted in the domestic asylum procedures in late 2003 and 2004 (12 Convention recognitions and 8 humanitarian permits in the course of 5 months) are furthered during the course of 2005. The Seoul Office will continue to strive to foster even more active engagement of policy makers in domestic asylum issues with a view to raising the potential for increased contributions to UNHCR. In the sphere of public awareness, some degree of specialized effort will have to be brought to bear on tapping potential wells of public support for UNHCR. On the other hand, continued efforts will be needed in the area of refugee protection where substantial improvements are still required, especially in removing obstacles to asylum procedures.

The Country Operations Plan for 2005 foresees implementation of four inter-linked operational themes, i.e., (1) provision of international protection and on-going assistance to the rapidly increasing beneficiary population of urban asylum-seekers; (2) exploring the nature of UNHCR's role in improving the general public's understanding of the issue of DPRK nationals within the wider context of global refugee matters; (3) broadening of public awareness and the mobilisation of support/resources for domestic and international refugee relief efforts; and (4) public information. UNHCR will continue to pursue strengthening the capacity of local, national partners who can advocate stronger protection mechanisms with government agencies while the office gains wider latitude to promote public awareness, and ultimately, mobilization of greater public and private resources. Increased knowledge of and engagement with government and non-governmental actors in ROK will similarly provide a firmer foundation of knowledge about their operational and strategic objectives, while increasing the relevance of UNHCR to the needs of the domestic audience.
