

In 2016, Chad made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Government approved a Five-Year Plan for Development that aims to strengthen the Labor Inspectorate's directorate charged with combating the worst forms of child labor and drafted a guide for law enforcement officials on assisting victims of human trafficking. The Project to Revitalize Basic Education in Chad, which is led by the Ministry of Education, received an additional $7 million from UNICEF and UNESCO to expand access to education for 8,500 children affected by conflict. However, children in Chad engage in the worst forms of child labor, including forced labor in cattle herding and domestic work. The country's legal framework does not contain criminal penalties for forced child labor, child trafficking, or the use of children in illicit activities.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Chad engage in the worst forms of child labor, including forced labor in cattle herding and domestic work.(1-6) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Chad.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	48.8
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	49.5

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Chad

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Child trafficking occurs primarily within Chad for the purposes of forced labor in cattle herding and domestic sex tourism. Children are occasionally trafficked to neighboring countries for forced labor in domestic work and commercial sexual exploitation. (1, 3, 4) Domestically, boys known as mahadjirine may be sent to Koranic schools to receive an education, but they are forced to beg and to surrender the money they receive to their teachers. (2-4)

The Constitution and the Law Orienting the Education System mandate free and compulsory education in Chad. (13, 14) However, there is a lack of schools, classrooms, and teachers throughout the country. Some schools do not offer all grade levels, and parents are often required to pay for school-related fees, which may prevent some children from attending school. (15-17) In addition, some schools near Lake Chad were occupied or attacked by Boko Haram elements, or closed as a result of military operations, forcing approximately 180,000 children ages 3 to 17 to miss the 2015–2016 school year. (12, 18-22) In September 2016, teacher strikes closed schools throughout the country for several months. Only 7 of the 450 public schools in the Lake Region opened for the 2016–2017 school year, leaving more than 200,000 children unenrolled. (1, 23-26) The Government, supported by UNICEF and other partners, encouraged schools to reopen by distributing school supplies to more than 22,000 children, but the majority of schools remain closed, with the exception of 64 schools located in refugee camps in Eastern and Western Chad. (24)

During the reporting period, Chad experienced an economic crisis, which led to significant cuts to public servant allowances as part of severe austerity measures, as well as internal unrest due to presidential elections. These issues affected the Government’s ability to address the worst forms of child labor. (1, 21, 27, 28)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR THE WORST FORMS OF CHILD LABOR

Chad has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

The Government has established laws and regulations related to child labor, including its worst forms (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Chad’s legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor.

[‡] Age calculated based on available information (13)

In December 2016, the National Assembly adopted a new Penal Code that has provisions criminalizing trafficking in persons; it is awaiting signature by the president and promulgation.(36) Several laws are awaiting approval by the National Assembly, including the Child Protection Code, Labor Code, and Family Code, which contain additional provisions criminalizing child trafficking and extending protection to children working in the informal sector.(1, 2, 37-41) A draft law on trafficking in persons, which has been pending adoption by the General Assembly since March 2015, will bring Chad's laws into compliance with international standards.(4, 36, 42-44) Existing laws do not criminally prohibit child trafficking.(14, 30, 31)

In addition, the Decree Relating to Child Labor prohibits certain hazardous activities for children under age 18 and some other activities for children under age 16.(29, 41) This means that children ages 16 and 17 can work legally in hazardous tasks, such as working with hand- or foot-powered machinery, operating machinery with sharp blades, and working on scaffolding in construction sites.(29)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON THE WORST FORMS OF CHILD LABOR

The Government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor, including its worst forms (Table 5). However, gaps in labor law and criminal law enforcement remain and some enforcement information is not available.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Public Service, Employment, and Social Dialogue (MOL)	Implement and enforce child labor laws.(1, 15) Includes a directorate and specific point of contact to assist in coordinating child protection and human trafficking issues.(45)
Ministry of Justice, Human Rights, and Guardian of the Seal (MOJ)	Draft and enforce laws and coordinate efforts to protect human rights.(1) Through its Directorate for Protection and Legal Monitoring of Children, enforce child labor laws.(46)
Ministry of Women, Childhood Protection, and National Solidarity (MWC PNS)	Protect children's rights, provide temporary shelter to victims, and assist with reintegration when appropriate.(4, 36) Through its Child Protection Directorate, lead Government efforts on child protection, including child labor, and liaise with the Child Protection Directorate at the MOJ.(36) In 2016, drafted a guide for civil society and law enforcement officials on assisting victims of human trafficking, particularly during investigations and prosecutions.(36)
National Police	Enforce and investigate criminal laws against child labor, including child trafficking, and refer them to the MOJ for prosecution. In the case of the Child Protection Brigade, specifically monitor violations of children's rights.(1) Located throughout the country.(45, 47)

Chad

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

The Child Protection Committees did not carry out activities during the reporting period due to a lack of resources. Research indicates that although the Child Protection Brigade within the National Police is tasked with responding to child welfare concerns, it was not well-known by the public.⁽¹⁾ In addition, the judicial system ceased functioning in November 2016 when magistrates and court clerks went on strike to protest government austerity measures.⁽²⁶⁾

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2016, labor law enforcement agencies in Chad did not take actions to combat child labor, including its worst forms (Table 6).

* The Government does not publish this information.

The number of labor inspectors is insufficient for the size of Chad's workforce, which includes almost 5.5 million workers.⁽⁵⁰⁾ According to the ILO's recommendation of 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed economies, Chad should employ roughly 136 labor inspectors.⁽⁵⁰⁻⁵²⁾ Inspectors lack sufficient resources such as equipment, transportation, and fuel to conduct investigations outside the city where they are based.^(15, 36) In 2016, the labor inspectorate did not receive any funding to conduct inspections, and inspectors were on strike from September 2016 to January 2017 to protest the nonpayment of salaries and government austerity measures.^(1, 36, 46) Research indicates that the informal sector, in which the majority of children work, is largely unmonitored, and some establishments in the formal sector may go years without receiving an inspection.^(2, 15, 48)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2016, criminal law enforcement agencies in Chad took actions to combat the worst forms of child labor (Table 7).

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor

Research indicates that investigators had inadequate resources, which hindered their ability to respond to complaints of child labor violations.(1) All newly hired law enforcement officials—including police, military, judiciary officials, and social workers—receive a mandatory course on child protection as part of their training.(12, 49, 53)

Civil society organizations typically assist with providing temporary shelter, legal assistance, and family reintegration; they also track prosecutions and convictions.(12, 45) An underdeveloped judicial system, inadequate deterrents, and under-enforcement of existing penalties pose barriers to prosecution.(4, 15, 45) Police and traditional leaders sometimes resolved cases of child trafficking outside the legal system.(15) In addition, the police commissioner in Kélo was arrested in February 2016 following allegations of complicity in a child trafficking network; the investigation remains ongoing.(4)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON THE WORST FORMS OF CHILD LABOR

The Government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor, including its worst forms (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Working Group on the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Coordinate government efforts on child trafficking, including by providing training, conducting awareness-raising activities, and strengthening the network of government organizations that address human trafficking.(45, 54) Chaired by the MWCPNS's Child Protection Directorate and includes representatives from four other ministries, including the MOL.(36)
Inter-Ministerial Committee on Trafficking in Persons (ICTIP)	Coordinate government efforts to combat child labor, including its worst forms, and propose revision of national legislation to conform to international standards.(12, 36, 55, 56) Led by the MOJ's Directorate General of Human Rights and includes representatives from four ministries, including the MOL, international NGOs, and civil society organizations.(36)
Inter-Ministerial Committee on Child Soldiers	Coordinate government efforts to eliminate the use of children in armed conflict and address the worst forms of child labor.(36) Located in each of the eight military regions and includes representatives from the government, army, gendarmerie, and civil society organizations.(36) Conduct awareness-raising activities and trainings in the military.(10, 57, 58)
MWCPNS's Regional Child Protection Committees	Coordinate regional government efforts to address the worst forms of child labor.(59) Includes representatives from three ministries and the police.(10)

None of the coordinating bodies met in 2016, and the Government noted that a lack of technical and financial resources has hampered its ability to improve its coordination and response to child labor.(36, 46)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON THE WORST FORMS OF CHILD LABOR

The Government has established policies related to child labor, including its worst forms (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor†

Policy	Description
2013 Child Soldiers Action Plan	Aims to permanently eliminate the use of child soldiers in partnership with the UN.(37, 58, 60-62) Integrates training modules on child soldiers for all military personnel and includes monitoring and age verification in all military training centers by officials from the MOJ, the MWCPNS, and the Ministry of Defense.(4, 45) In 2016, developed modules on child soldiers with the support of UNICEF and integrated them into all military training, established cells to perform age verification at military centers, and raised awareness of child soldiering issues in all eight military zones. In addition, conducted several joint missions with government and UN representatives to sites in the Lake region housing alleged Boko Haram affiliates who had surrendered. Children were referred to a transition center in Bol for family reunification.(22, 24, 25)

Policy	Description
N'Djamena 2010 Declaration of Regional Conference: Ending Recruitment and Use of Children by Armed Forces and Groups	Represents a commitment among six signatory countries, including Chad, to eliminate the use of child soldiers in their territories.(37, 63) Forms the basis for the 2013 Child Soldiers Action Plan and accompanying UNICEF Roadmap.(47)
MWCPNS's 2016 National Action Plan	Aims to provide free birth registration to 27,000 children in targeted areas, establish or strengthen the capacity of 70 child protection committees, reinforce law enforcement comprehension of standards on child protection, and develop a system for preventing and responding to cases of child exploitation.(64) In 2016, carried out many of its planned activities.(46)
Five-Year Plan for Development (2016–2020) [†]	Ministry of Economy and Development Planning policy which aims to conduct a survey on child labor every three years, increase the rate of birth registration, increase educational opportunities, and strengthen the human and financial capacity of the MOL's directorate charged with combating the worst forms of child labor.(65)

[†] Policy was approved during the reporting period.

[‡] The Government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor.(66)

Although the Government has adopted policies on child trafficking and child soldiers, research found no evidence of a policy on other worst forms of child labor, such as commercial sexual exploitation, forced labor in domestic work, and herding cattle. Although the Inter-Ministerial Committee on Trafficking in Persons began drafting a National Action Plan on Human Trafficking, it was never completed.(46)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2016, the Government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor, including its worst forms (Table 10).

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor[†]

Program	Description
Transition Centers [†]	Run by the Ministry of Defense; provides family reunification and reintegration assistance to former child soldiers. MWCPNS, in collaboration with UNICEF, assists in demobilizing and reinserting child soldiers.(37, 55) In December 2016, reunited 58 children with their families.(22)
Reception Centers [†]	Run by MWCPNS and UNICEF, centers located throughout the country provide temporary assistance to victims of child trafficking, including food, education, medical, and psychological care, and reintegration services.(4, 45) The National Solidarity Fund, maintained by Prime Minister's Office, funds temporary shelter or reunification assistance for victims.(36) Child Protection Directorates at various ministries work together to provide support and reintegration services to victims of exploitation.(36)
UNICEF Country Program	In support of the UNDAF, aims to increase primary school enrollment, support training of community teachers, and promote birth registration rates.(67) Establishes child-friendly spaces and schools in refugee camps.(68) In 2016, drafted the UNICEF Country Program (2017–2021), which continues promotion of birth registration and access to education, and aims to promote a justice system that is sensitive to child rights.(28)
Project to Revitalize Basic Education in Chad (PREBAT)	$47.4 million program implemented by UNESCO and UNICEF, led by the Ministry of Education in support of the Transitional Education Plan, which aims to promote access to education, improve physical infrastructure, and reduce educational costs.(69, 70) In February 2016, an additional $7 million was approved to provide school lunches and access to education for 8,500 children in the Lake Chad region affected by conflict.(69) By the end of 2016, constructed 1,300 classrooms, distributed almost 2 million textbooks to teachers, and provided training to 1,100 teachers.(71)

[†] Program is funded by the Government of Chad.

[‡] The Government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor, including its worst forms.(55, 57, 58, 72)

Research indicates that the Government decreased funding to existing programs during the reporting period due to austerity measures, and it lacks the capacity to provide adequate care and reintegration support for demobilized child soldiers.(1, 40) Although Chad has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to address the extent of the problem adequately, particularly forced child labor in herding, begging, and domestic work.(9)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE THE WORST FORMS OF CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor, including its worst forms, in Chad (Table 11).

Data provided is the gross intake ratio to the last grade of primary education. This measure is a proxy measure for primary completion. This ratio is the total number of new entrants in the last grade of primary education, regardless of age, expressed as a percentage of the population at the theoretical entrance age to the last grade of primary education. A high ratio indicates a high

- degree of current primary education completion. The calculation includes all new entrants to the last grade (regardless of age). Therefore, the ratio can exceed 100 percent, due to over-aged and under-aged children who enter primary school late/early and/or repeat grades. 50. CIA. The World Factbook, [online] [cited January 19, 2017]; <https://www.cia.gov/library/publications/the-world-factbook/fields/2095.html#131>. Data provided is the most recent estimate of the country's total labor force. This number is used to calculate a "sufficient number" of labor inspectors based on the country's level of development as determined by the UN.
51. UN. "World Economic Situation and Prospects 2012 Statistical Annex." (2012); http://www.un.org/en/development/desa/policy/wesp/wesp_current/2012country_class.pdf. For analytical purposes, the Development Policy and Analysis Division (DPAD) of the Department of Economic and Social Affairs of the United Nations Secretariat (UN/DESA) classifies all countries of the world into one of three broad categories: developed economies, economies in transition, and developing countries. The composition of these groupings is intended to reflect basic economic country conditions. Several countries (in particular the economies in transition) have characteristics that could place them in more than one category; however, for purposes of analysis, the groupings have been made mutually exclusive. The list of the least developed countries is decided upon by the United Nations Economic and Social Council and, ultimately, by the General Assembly, on the basis of recommendations made by the Committee for Development Policy. The basic criteria for inclusion require that certain thresholds be met with regard to per capita GNI, a human assets index and an economic vulnerability index. For the purposes of the Findings on the Worst Forms of Child Labor Report, "developed economies" equate to the ILO's classification of "industrial market economies; "economies in transition" to "transition economies," "developing countries" to "industrializing economies, and "the least developed countries" equates to "less developed countries." For countries that appear on both "developing countries" and "least developed countries" lists, they will be considered "least developed countries" for the purpose of calculating a "sufficient number" of labor inspectors.
52. ILO. Strategies and Practice for Labour Inspection. Geneva, Committee on Employment and Social Policy; November 2006. <http://www.ilo.org/public/english/standards/relm/gb/docs/gb297/pdf/esp-3.pdf>. Article 10 of ILO Convention No. 81 calls for a "sufficient number" of inspectors to do the work required. As each country assigns different priorities of enforcement to its inspectors, there is no official definition for a "sufficient" number of inspectors. Amongst the factors that need to be taken into account are the number and size of establishments and the total size of the workforce. No single measure is sufficient but in many countries the available data sources are weak. The number of inspectors per worker is currently the only internationally comparable indicator available. In its policy and technical advisory services, the ILO has taken as reasonable benchmarks that the number of labor inspectors in relation to workers should approach: 1/10,000 in industrial market economies; 1/15,000 in industrializing economies; 1/20,000 in transition economies; and 1/40,000 in less developed countries.
