Afghanistan Security Update Relating to Complementary Forms of Protection

In the context of Afghanistan, UNHCR advocates for complementary forms of protection being considered for persons originating from areas where any or several of the following features have been reported or observed within the past months:

- Intensified counter insurgency activities, including aerial bombings, by ISAF/NATO which have escalated into open warfare in the south, south east, eastern, western and central provinces and which affect safe movement to and from these provinces;
- Possible military operation in places where the AGE have established their presence;
- Indiscriminate attacks by anti-government elements, inter alia through the consistent use of indiscriminate types of warfare (IED on the roads, missile attacks, bombs and suicide bomb attacks) including attacks on “soft targets” such as schools, teachers, and religious figures;
- Systematic acts of intimidation, involving arbitrary killings, abductions and other threats to life, security and liberty, by anti-government elements and by regional warlords, militia commanders and criminal groups, including on the highways;
- Illegal land occupation and confiscation with limited possibilities for redress;
- Religious and tribal conflicts and inadequate responses by the central government to address violence and protect civilians.

Furthermore, UNHCR considers that Afghans should not be reasonably expected to travel through unsafe areas to reach their final destination.

Any or several of the above mentioned threats have been observed or reported in the past months in the below mentioned parts of Afghanistan and thus assessed as being insecure:

South

- All districts of Hilmand, Kandahar, Uruzgan and Zabul (the highways to these provinces and also from Kandahar to Nimroz through Delaram).

South East

- Paktika: The whole province and the highways from Ghazni to Paktika and from Paktia to Paktika are assessed as being insecure,
