Report of the Secretary-General

Addendum

I. Introduction

The present addendum contains information from three additional replies to the request contained in paragraph 11 of General Assembly resolution 59/36 of 2 December 2004, received subsequent to the submission of the main report, from Germany, Jamaica and the International Committee of the Red Cross.¹

II. Information received from Member States

Germany

[Original: English]
[12 September 2006]

1. Germany has been a party to the Geneva Conventions of 1949 since 1954 and to the two Additional Protocols since 1991. Furthermore, Germany has made a declaration pursuant to article 90 of Protocol I recognizing the competence of the International Fact-Finding Commission. Germany signed the Protocol Additional to the Geneva Conventions of 12 August 1949, and Relating to the Adoption of an Additional Distinctive Emblem (Protocol III) on 13 March 2006. The ratification procedure has been initiated and will be completed shortly. Furthermore, the ratification procedure for the Second Protocol (1999) to the Convention for the Protection of Cultural Property in the Event of Armed Conflict has been initiated.

2. An expert group comprising representatives of the Federal Foreign Office, the Ministry of the Interior, the Ministry of Defence, the Ministry of Justice and the German Red Cross, as well as law professors specialized in international humanitarian law, advises the Government on matters relating to the implementation, development and dissemination of international humanitarian law.

3. The Federal Ministry of Defence is responsible for the implementation of the norms of international humanitarian law within the German armed forces, the Bundeswehr. As provided for by the law governing the legal status of soldiers, instruction in international humanitarian law and in other international regulations, agreements and commitments constitutes part of the training programmes for all military personnel in the German armed forces. Courses are held by legal advisers, teachers of law and the superior officers responsible. On the basis of this fundamental knowledge, personnel receive further in-depth instruction in this subject as part of their training and education programme, preparing them to be commissioned and non-commissioned officers, commensurate with their respective level of service. Under Zentrale Dienstvorschrift (ZDv) 15/1 (Humanitarian Law in Armed Conflicts — Basic Principles), ZDv 15/2 (Humanitarian Law in Armed Conflicts — Manual), ZDv 15/3 (Humanitarian Law in Armed Conflicts — Texts and Documents), soldiers and civilian employees at all command levels have access to the pertinent international treaties. Field cards with specific questions and description of situations supplement this information. Units selected for operations abroad receive extra training on legal components directly related to their mission and their operational area.

4. Germany actively supports the International Criminal Court (ICC). Legislative measures concerning the implementation of the Rome Statute were incorporated into German domestic law in June 2002. Amendments to domestic criminal law concerning vertical cooperation between Germany and ICC are contained in a separate code in order to achieve transparent and coherent regulation of the cooperation with ICC (Gesetz über die Zusammenarbeit mit dem Internationalen Strafgerichtshof), conceding to ICC, to the extent possible, all measures of judicial cooperation available between States.

5. Furthermore, a special penal Code of Crimes against International Law (Völkerstrafgesetzbuch) was adopted that penalizes crimes in domestic law that would fall within the jurisdiction of ICC or is punishable under customary international law, such as genocide, crimes against humanity and war crimes.

6. German support for ICC is also reflected in the constructive dialogue with nations that so far have been reluctant to sign or ratify the Rome Statute or that have even withdrawn their signature. Germany will continue to work for the objective that those States will disengage from their active opposition to the ICC and re-engage in a policy of “good-neighbourliness” towards ICC. In addition, via numerous bilateral contacts, Germany has shared its experience with other nations concerning the question of implementation of the Rome Statute.

7. Germany also continues to cooperate with the International Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia and the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda and supports the recently established Special Court for Sierra Leone.

8. Germany is intensely involved in fighting the illicit trade in small arms and light weapons as well as the use of anti-personnel landmines. As State party to the Ottawa Convention, Germany does not produce or export anti-personnel landmines. It has also signed and implemented a number of international agreements regarding small arms and light weapons. In the framework of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE), Germany has introduced, together with Norway and the Netherlands, principles on brokering of small arms and light weapons that were adopted in December 2004; Germany is currently drafting two chapters of a future OSCE best practices guide on ammunition.

9. On 21 December 2001, the Second Review Conference of the States Parties to the Convention on Prohibitions or Restrictions on the Use of Certain Conventional Weapons Which May Be Deemed to Be Excessively Injurious or to Have Indiscriminate Effects, with the consent of Germany, adopted a Final Document extending the scope of the Convention and its annexed Protocols to armed conflicts not of an international character. Germany deposited the instrument of acceptance with the Secretary-General on 26 January 2005. The amendment entered into force for Germany on 26 July 2005. Germany deposited its instrument of ratification of Protocol V to the Convention, on Explosive Remnants of War, with the Secretary-General on 3 March 2005, making it the fifth country to do so. Moreover, the amendment of the relevant service publications of the armed forces is under way in order to fully implement the Protocol.
