With reference to your letter dated 20 September 2004, I have the honour to transmit herewith the fourth report of the Islamic Republic of Iran prepared in response to the questions formulated by the Counter-Terrorism Committee (see enclosure).

EnclosureAnswers to questions raised in the letter dated 20 September 2004 of the Chairman of the Counter-Terrorism Committee regarding the implementation of resolution 1373
(Fourth report of the Islamic Republic of Iran)*Answer to Q1.1:

- The Anti-Terrorism Bill, in line with the procedural requirements envisaged in the Constitution, is under scrutiny and consideration by the relevant specialized committees of the Islamic Consultative Assembly (the Parliament).
- The Bill against Money Laundering, which had been adopted by the Parliament, was not endorsed by the Guardian Council (Constitution supervisory body) and, therefore, was returned to the Parliament for reconsideration. Since the latter insisted on its adopted text, the Bill has been referred to the State Expediency Council for final review and approval, as the Constitution prescribes.
- Ratification of the Anti-Terrorism Bill as well as the Bill against Money Laundering stands as the priority of the Islamic Republic of Iran in this respect, while other relevant conventions and protocols are also under the process of consideration in the respective governmental committees. Furthermore, to remedy the present legal shortcomings, the Supreme National Security Council has adopted certain guidelines and directives to set forth basis for cooperation and interaction among various executive institutions and organizations. The mandate and responsibilities of such organizations have also been specified in those guidelines.

Answer to Q1.2:

As stated in the Islamic Republic of Iran's third report, articles 512 & 516 as well as article 5 (paragraph 1) of the Islamic Penal Code provide for the punishment of the perpetrators of offences and crimes against other countries and the foreign security of the state. Moreover, the Law for the Punishment of Perpetrators of Offences and Crimes against Foreign Countries adopted in 1971 provides for the punishment of persons who use the territory of Iran against the security of other states.

Answer to Q1.3:

Based on Article 9 of the Special Measures for Prevention of Money Laundering, a Specialized Anti-Money Laundering Committee, with the Financial Intelligence Unit as one of its important bodies, has been set up in one of the departments of the Central Bank. This Committee consists of seven members including a member of the Executive Board that monitors the activities of the banks (who chairs the committee), and Director Generals of: Department for Monitoring the Activities of Banks, Department for Foreign Exchange Policies, Department for International Affairs, Department for Foreign Exchange Operations and Legal Affairs, as well as representatives from the Ministry of Intelligence and the Ministry of Justice.

The functions and powers of the Specialized Anti-Money Laundering Committee are as follows:

1- Verifying compliance with the Special Measures for Prevention of Money Laundering in financial institutions. These financial institutions are specified in Paragraph 3 of Article 1 of the Special Measures for Prevention of Money Laundering and are as follows:

i -Public and private banking agencies,

ii - Credit institutions authorized by the Central Bank, iii – Private brokers dealing with foreign exchanges, iiii-State Cooperative Fund, Interest Free Loan Funds and Credit Cooperative Funds operating under the rules set by the State Money and Credit Council and other relevant regulations in place,

2- Considering and approving the internal rules of procedure of financial institutions specified in Para 3 of article 1 of the Special Measures for Prevention of Money Laundering concerning identification of customers and suppression of money laundering. To be approved, the said rules of procedures should contain enough information about the policies and proposals of the relevant financial institutions regarding the following elements:

i- Methods of gathering, processing, classifying and keeping record of any information related to the identity of the customers or their representatives (be it natural or legal person), ii- Methods of keeping documents related to the verification of the identity of customers and their operations, iii- Methods of detecting any suspicious activities and their reporting to the Central Bank accordingly,

5- Considering and deciding about any other identification methods proposed by financial institutions with regard to the verification of the identity of customers (under para 4 of article 12 of the Special Measures for Prevention of Money Laundering).

6-Considering the report of the financial institutions on suspicious instances of money laundering within the monitoring mechanism.

7- Setting the policy and strategy for training the staff of the Central Bank and financial institutions on detection and reporting of instances of money laundering.

8- Investigating the instances of violation of the provisions of the Special Measures for Prevention of Money laundering by financial institutions and their staff.

9- Considering and deciding about any urgent case of money laundering and financing of terrorism referred to the Committee by its chairperson.

Answer to Q1.4:

In line with its international obligations, the Islamic Republic of Iran has regularly submitted lists of the names of the persons and organizations suspected of involvement in acts of terrorism (received from relevant United Nations mechanisms), to the banking agencies as well as credit and financial institutions of the country for identification and freezing of the accounts of such entities and individuals. To this end, the banking system and financial institutions of the country are regularly furnished with the updated information received from the relevant committees of the Security Council.

Following thorough investigations conducted by relevant authorities of the country, it has been concluded that the persons and groups affiliated to Al-Qaeda and Talibans do not have any account in the banking and credit agencies of the Islamic Republic of Iran, except for the case reported orally to the Chairman of the Security Council 1267 Committee, during his visit to the Islamic republic of Iran from Dec. 7th, 2004 to Dec 9th, 2004. The accounts relating to this case have been frozen.

As to the organizations operating out of the banking system of the country through wire transfer of money or Havaleh, a single suspected organization has been detected in Iran. Since the case is under the process of investigation, it is not yet possible to openly disclose the details of this case and publish the related information. Upon completion of the process of investigation, the Committee will be duly informed of the details of the case.

Regarding the groups and organizations designated as terrorist groups, the Islamic Republic of Iran has repeatedly announced that the MKO and its affiliates NCR, NCRI and NLA have been involved in terrorist acts against Iranian and other nationals both inside and outside Iran during the past three decades, killing and wounding thousands of innocent people. The said group and its affiliates, with their headquarters in Baghdad, have developed an extensive terrorist network which operates in different countries of the world especially in Europe and the United States and are engaged in designing, conducting and financing acts of terrorism.

These groups had special systematic links with the Saddam regime in Iraq and have set up a large training and operation base named "Ashraf Camp" in Iraq. Detailed information about the activities of these terrorist groups will be submitted to the CTC in a separate report.

Answer to Q1.5:

The most important network of non-banking agencies involved in money business operations in Iran are Interest-Free loan Funds, which are required to operate under the rules set by the State Money and Credit Council and comply with the procedures prescribed by the Central Bank.

According to the rules in place, the Interest-Free Loan Funds are obliged to prepare their financial statements and submit them to the Central Bank for investigation, if so requested.

The Central Bank is authorized to revoke the licenses of such funds if they are found violating the relevant rules and procedures. Recently, tougher measures have been taken to ensure stricter control over such funds and disband them, if they are found operating out of the supervisory framework of the Central Bank. Moreover, subject to article 10 of the Special Measures for Prevention of Money Laundering, opening of accounts for and providing any banking services to unauthorized credit institutions are prohibited. The financial institutions subject to the Special Measures are required to freeze the accounts of such institutions and discontinue their services to them.

Furthermore, under the Executive Directive adopted by the Cabinet of Ministers on the foundation and operation of non-governmental organizations, all entities operating as societies, associations, centers, foundations and organizations are required to obtain the authorization provided for in the Directive from the relevant authorities. Accordingly, such entities are obliged to inform the relevant inspection authorities of any contributions or assistance that they may receive from foreign sources.

According to article 16 of the said Directive, if such non-governmental entities are established for monetary and credit purposes or for providing interest-free services, they are obliged to obtain prior authorization from the Central Bank for their foundation and operation. In this context, the activities and financing of charitable entities are also governed by the said Directive and strictly monitored by the relevant inspection authorities.

Answer to Q1.6:

Under the provisions of the State Monetary Law, the Central Bank issued an Executive Order (No 2709) on July 25, 2003 which required the banking agencies of the country to collect and provide information related to the applicants for any wire transfer of money or the originator of such money in view of the recommendation of the International Swift Institute to replace MT103 messages for MT100 messages. It is worth mentioning that wire transfer of money in the financial institutions of Iran is subject to the provisions of Special Measures for Prevention of Money Laundering and the relevant provisions on prevention of financing terrorist activities.
