Committee against Torture

List of issues in relation to the fifth periodic report of China*

Articles 1 and 4

1. In the light of the Committee's previous concluding observations (paras. 32 and 33),¹ please indicate whether the amendments proposed in 2014 to the Criminal Law introduce a definition of torture that is compatible with article 1 of the Convention.² If not, please provide information on the measures envisaged to ensure such compatibility. Please also indicate the legal provisions under which State agents who are not judicial officers or officers of an institution of confinement and other persons acting in an official capacity, at the instigation of or with the consent or acquiescence of public officials can be prosecuted for the crime of torture.³ Please also indicate under which legal provisions acts of torture perpetrated for purposes other than to extract confessions can be prosecuted.

2. Please clarify the status of the Convention in the domestic legal system. Have the rights contained in the Convention and the definition of torture set out in article 1 been invoked by parties in court proceedings or applied by national courts, either as a ground for a case or as interpretative guidance for legal norms? If so, please provide detailed examples.

Article 2⁴

3. In the light of the Committee's previous concluding observations (para. 11), please provide information on the measures taken to prevent torture and ill-treatment during detention and, in particular:

* Adopted by the Committee at its fifty-fourth session (20 April–15 May 2015).

² See A/HRC/25/5 and Corr.1, para. 186.49.

³ See CAT/C/CHN/CO/4/Add.2, p. 19.

⁴ The issues raised under article 2 could also be addressed under other articles of the Convention, including article 16. Paragraph 3 of the Committee's general comment No. 2 (2007) on the implementation of article 2 by States parties reads: "The obligation to prevent torture in article 2 is wide-ranging. The obligations to prevent torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment (hereinafter 'ill-treatment') under article 16, paragraph 1, are indivisible, interdependent and interrelated. The obligation to prevent ill-treatment in practice overlaps with and is largely congruent with the obligation to prevent torture. ... In practice, the definitional threshold between ill-treatment and torture is often not clear." See also chapter V of the same general comment.

(a) To bring detainees promptly before a judge, in order to allow them to challenge the legality of their detention or treatment, and to reduce the 37-day maximum period of police custody, in line with international standards. Please clarify the special circumstances that can justify an extension of police custody to 7 days, the type of criminal suspects to which the 30-day extension period applies and whether a warrant for an extension is to be requested in those cases.⁵ Please provide annual statistics, disaggregated by location, criminal charge and gender, on the number of criminal suspects who have had their police custody extended to 7 days and the number of those who had it extended to 30 days or longer, and indicate the proportion of the total number of detainees in police custody those numbers represent. Please also comment on reports that police custody continues to apply beyond the 37-day maximum period, and in cases involving State secrets, for indefinite periods;

(b) To systematically register all detainees and keep records of all periods of pretrial detention. In relation to paragraph 31 of the State party report⁶ and the letter of the Rapporteur for follow-up to concluding observations dated 29 October 2010, please specify whether the detainee registration system includes records of the actual time of detention, the time the detainee is placed in formal custody or under arrest, the names of the officers who accompanied the detainee to the detention facility and the names of the officers who registered the detainee. Please indicate the number of detainees currently registered, and the percentage of detention facilities participating in the registration system; whether the relatives of detainees have access to such records, including medical records; the measures taken to ensure compliance with record keeping; and the penalties applied in the period under review for failure to complete the registers properly;

(c) To ensure that detainees promptly undergo an independent medical examination and are able to gain access to treatment by a doctor of their choice on request. What safeguards are in place to ensure that medical personnel are able to examine victims out of the hearing and sight of police officers, and are able to report in strict confidentiality signs of torture, without fear of reprisals?⁷ In how many detention centres and prisons are there medical doctors available to conduct an initial medical examination of the newly arrived detainees/prisoners? To which authority are those doctors reporting? What guidelines are in place to ensure that they can identify cases of torture and ill-treatment?

(d) To ensure that detainees are able to promptly gain access to a lawyer of their choice or free legal assistance, including during interrogations. In relation to paragraphs 102 and 103 of the State party report, please provide information on the type of cases that fall under the category of “crimes endangering State security”, for which lawyers are to ask for approval before meeting their clients. Please explain the approval procedure, who decides on the matter and under which criteria,⁸ and include information on the annual number of requests for approval submitted in these cases, on how many requests have been granted and denied, and on the reasons for any denials. What is the maximum time period during which a detainee may be denied access to a lawyer in these cases? When a lawyer’s request to see a detainee is approved, can police officers monitor, through the use of audio devices or otherwise, conversations between a lawyer and a detainee? Please include information on the number of complaints lodged regarding violations of the right to counsel and the outcome of those complaints, including penalties applied;

⁶ CAT/C/CHN/5.

⁷ Ibid., pp. 4–5.

⁸ Letter of the Rapporteur for follow-up to concluding observations.

(e) To ensure that all detainees can enjoy, in practice, their right to contact relatives within 24 hours. Please explain how the implementation of article 83 of the Criminal Procedure Law, according to which the notification of relatives may be restricted in certain cases if it hinders the investigation, is monitored, and which legal safeguards apply to prevent abuse and disappearances from taking place. What is the maximum time period during which a detainee may be denied access to family visits in these cases? How many complaints have been lodged during the period under review on the grounds that family members did not receive official notification about the detention; what were the outcomes and what penalties were applied? Please comment on reports that during the so-called Jasmine Revolution of 2011, and between 2014 and 2015, several dissidents were subject to incommunicado detention for more than three months, and that many of them were allegedly tortured during that period;

(f) To adopt the draft provisions on informing detainees of their rights and the obligations of criminal detention facilities, referred to in paragraph 99 of the State party report, and the measures to implement those provisions effectively. What stage of the adoption process have the draft provisions reached?

(a) The measures taken to amend legal provisions that undermine the independence of lawyers, including article 306 of the Penal Code and article 39 of the Criminal Procedure Law, in line with the recommendations of the Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination,⁹ and the proposed amendment to article 309 (4) of the Criminal Procedure Law. In addition, please indicate the measures taken to prevent and combat unlawful or unjustified interference of any kind with the work of human rights lawyers, such as the detention or eviction from court of lawyers during the exercise of their duties, as in the cases of Wang Quanzhang, detained in April 2013 in the courtroom allegedly for speaking loudly during a hearing, of Zhang Keke, detained in December 2014 in the courtroom, and of Xiangdong and Wu Liang Shu, evicted from the courtroom while exercising their duties as defence lawyers; and the revocation of lawyers' licences to practice law, as in the cases of Tang Jitian and Lieu Wei¹⁰ and of Teng Biao, Jiang Tianyong, Li Heping, Wen Haibo, Liu Shihui, Chen Wuquan, Wang Cheng and Wan Quanping. How many complaints of lawyers being unreasonably barred from court or unreasonably deprived of their licences were documented during the period under review?

What is the current situation with regard to the availability of information, including statistics, on detainees in all forms of detention and on unnatural deaths in detention? Does the amended law contain provisions ensuring that the determination as to whether a matter is a State secret can be challenged before an independent tribunal, and does every suspect in cases involving State secrets have the right to have prompt access to a lawyer of his or her choice? Please provide, for the period under review, the number and the outcome of cases in which detainees have challenged decisions as to whether a matter constitutes a State secret. Please also clarify the process by which information becomes classified under the State secrets system, the criteria by which such determination is made, and the legislative process required for authorizing an adjustment of what constitutes a State secret, including procedures through which classification as a State secret can be challenged.

Please confirm this information and inform the Committee about their fate upon return. Are there post-return monitoring arrangements in place to ensure that those returned to the Democratic People's Republic of Korea are protected from the danger of being subjected to torture?¹⁵ In this regard, please comment on the findings of the commission of inquiry on human rights in the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, according to which illegal immigrants in China, including victims of trafficking, are forcibly repatriated, and then subjected to persecution, torture, prolonged arbitrary detention and, in some cases, sexual violence or forced abortions at "gathering centres", detention centres or prison camps in the Democratic People's Republic of Korea.¹⁶
