ACTIVISTS AT RISK AFTER COLLEAGUES MURDERED

Several political activists in Mexico are at risk after pushing for justice in regards to the recent case of the abduction and killing of three of their colleagues.

On 30 May members of the Popular Unit (Unidad Popular, UP) Arturo Hernández Cardona, Héctor Arroyo Delgado, Efraín Amates Luna, Gregorio Dante Cervantes, Ángel Román Ramírez, Nicolás Mendoza Villa, Félix Rafael Bandera Román and Jimmy Castejón were last seen outside Iguala, Guerrero state. They had been taking part in a protest against the local government. Other members of the UP and relatives have accused the local government of involvement in their abduction, highlighting a complaint by UP members against local authorities and a dispute between federal police and protesters that happened shortly before the disappearances.

On June 3 the bodies of Arturo Hernández Cardona, Ángel Román Ramírez, Félix Rafael Bandera Román were found blindfolded and with apparent signs of torture on a nearby highway. Four of the other five missing men reportedly managed to escape their captors and have gone into hiding. An investigation by Guerrero State Attorney General's Office is underway, but the suspected involvement of local officials in the abductions and killings has led UP activists to urge for the investigation to be carried out by the Federal Attorney General's Office (PGR).

On 2 and 4 June UP members reported being watched and followed, on two separate occasions, by men in vehicles. On 8 June, a UP leader, Justino Osoros Narciso, received an anonymous note warning the group to stop its activities. On 17 June the wife of Arturo Hernández Cardona and a UP activist, Sofía Lorena Mendoza, reported being followed by suspicious cars on route to a meeting with government officials. On 19 June, Bertoldo Martínez Cruz, a local political activist linked to the UP who had been in contact with the survivors, received a threatening phone call at his home.

Please write immediately in Spanish, English or your own language:

- ✓ Urging authorities to ensure the safety of all other members of the UP and their families, including Justino Osoros Narciso, Sofía Lorena Mendoza and Bertoldo Martínez Cruz;
