The UN agencies and NGOs in attendance gave an overview of their core relief items (CRI) distribution plans and strategies. All detailed plans feed into a matrix covering needs, ongoing activities and planned activities, which will be finalized in the coming days. At the same time UNHCR is developing information management tools using the information compiled in the matrix.

The agencies discussed challenges in establishing the needs of refugees in the host communities. One issue is that persons of concern are moving around from village to village, which limits the time validity of the rapid needs assessments and response strategy.
