Introduction

1. The present report is prepared pursuant to decision 1998/108 of the Commission on Human Rights, in which the Commission requested the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights to submit to the fifty-first session of the then Sub-Commission on the Prevention of Discrimination and Protection of Minorities, and every second year thereafter, a list of States in which a state of emergency was proclaimed or continued during the reporting period.
2. Under article 4 (3) of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (Covenant), States parties availing themselves of the right of derogation are to inform the other States parties immediately, through the Secretary-General, of the derogations it has made, including the reasons therefor and the date on which the derogations are terminated. However, for the period between June 2001 and May 2003, only some notifications were received by the Secretary-General.
3. The Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights has relied on information provided by United Nations sources, non-governmental organizations and a national human rights institution to draw up the requested list of States.

I. COUNTRIES OR TERRITORIES IN WHICH A STATE OF EMERGENCY HAD BEEN PROCLAIMED BEFORE JUNE 2001 AND CONTINUED THEREAFTER

Algeria

The President of the High State Council issued Presidential Decree No. 92-44 of 9 February 1992, decreeing a state of emergency throughout the national territory for a duration of 12 months, in accordance with articles 67, 74 and 76 of the Algerian Constitution.

The state of emergency is still in effect.

Israel

The Government of Israel notified that the state of emergency proclaimed in May 1948 has remained in force. As the situation constitutes a public emergency within the meaning of article 4 (1) of the Covenant, the Government found it necessary to take measures to the extent strictly required by the exigencies of the situation for the defence of the State and for the protection of life and property, including the exercise of powers of arrest and detention. Insofar as any of these measures are inconsistent with article 9 of the Covenant, Israel derogates from its obligations under that provision.

The state of emergency is still in effect.

Pakistan

On 14 October 1999, a state of emergency was proclaimed in Pakistan and the Chief Executive of Pakistan assumed office. The measure also suspended the Constitution while declaring that most of the fundamental rights would remain in force. The National Assembly, the Provincial Assemblies and the Senate were also suspended.

After the general election held in October 2002, the Constitution was restored.

United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland

A public emergency, within the meaning of article 4 (1) of the Covenant, was declared in the United Kingdom due to the existence of a terrorist threat to the United Kingdom from persons suspected of involvement in international terrorism.

As a result of the public emergency, provision was made in the Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001, inter alia for an extended power to arrest and detain a foreign national subject to certain conditions stipulated therein. The Government further informed the Secretary-General that it had considered whether the exercise of the extended power to detain contained in the Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 could be inconsistent with the obligations under article 9 of the Covenant. To the extent that the exercise of the extended power might be inconsistent with the United Kingdom's obligations under article 9, the Government decided to avail itself of the right of derogation conferred by article 4 (1) of the Covenant and will continue to do so until further notice.
