

Escalating conflict has spread to 19 out of 22 governorates, significantly exacerbating the humanitarian crisis in Yemen. Over the past month, conflict has resulted in at least 1,080 killed and more than 4,350 injured. Critical civilian infrastructure has been destroyed as a result of the fighting and an estimated 150,000 people have fled their homes in the past month alone. Widespread insecurity is constraining humanitarian access and hampering humanitarian response efforts. About 90 national and international humanitarian agencies continue efforts to deliver life-saving humanitarian assistance and protection inside the country, to the extent possible.
