The Permanent Mission of the Republic of Suriname to the United Nations presents its compliments to the Chairman of the Counter-Terrorism Committee and has the honour to attach the following supplementary report submitted by the Government of the Republic of Suriname pursuant to paragraph 6 of Security Council resolution 1373 (2001) (see enclosure).

Information requested by the CTC, in addition to the report of the Government of Suriname, submitted pursuant to paragraph 6 of Security Council resolution 1373

Paragraph 1:

- The CTC would welcome:
 - An outline of the recommendations relating to the suppression of the financing of terrorism that are contained in the national report on terrorism prepared by the National Anti-Terrorism Working Group, with particular reference to legislative provisions and administrative procedures recommended for the following purposes:

There was one general recommendation with regard to terrorist financing, namely: make the necessary legal (amendments) arrangements regarding terrorist financing as soon as possible.

 - to enable the economic and financial system of Suriname to guard against operations carried out by persons or entities that are involved, or suspected of being involved, in criminal activities, especially terrorist activities or activities in support of terrorism;

Suriname has no specific legislation that guards the financial and economic system of Suriname against terrorist activities and activities in support of terrorism. However, there are laws that guard the financial and economic system of Suriname, in general, for example the Penal Code, the Reporting of Unusual Transactions Act, the Identification for Rendering Financial Services Act and the Supervision of the Credit System Act.
 - to provide for the freezing and provisional seizure of funds and assets relating to terrorism and its financing, both in the course of investigations and upon sentencing;

Suriname has no laws or regulations, which enable the freezing and provisional seizure of funds and assets related to terrorism and its financing. In the legislation concerning money-laundering there are measures included that enable the relevant authorities to freeze assets of suspected persons or organisations.
 - to require financial institutions, other intermediaries (e.g. lawyers) and other natural or legal persons to report suspicious transactions to the relevant authorities;

On September 5th, 2002, the law concerning the Reporting of Unusual Transactions was promulgated. This law entered into force in March 2003. In the Law "Reporting of Unusual Transactions" financial institutions, other intermediaries and natural legal persons who render financial services are obliged to report unusual transactions to the Financial Intelligence Unit.
 - to prohibit nationals of Suriname or any person or entity in Suriname from making funds, etc., available to persons or entities linked to terrorist acts;

Suriname has no specific law that prohibits nationals of Suriname or any person or entity in Suriname from making funds available to persons or entities abroad.
 - to ensure that funds and other economic resources collected for religious, charitable or cultural purposes are not diverted for other purposes, particularly for financing terrorism;

Suriname has no provision to ensure that funds and other economic resources collected for religious, charitable or cultural purposes are not diverted for other purposes, particularly for the financing of terrorism.
 - to regulate alternative remittance systems, including systems of, or similar to, the kind known as hawala; and

There is no specific system and there were no specific recommendations in this regard.
 - a progress report on the steps taken to give effect to those recommendations.

The progress report will be finalised later this year (2003).

- Does the reporting requirement of the Central Bank of Suriname have the force of Law? By what general criteria are transactions characterised as irregular for the purposes of the reporting obligation?

The guidelines for the prevention of money laundering, issued by the Central Bank of Suriname on November 14th, 1996 are not mandatory and there are no general criteria included in order to characterise an unusual transaction. However, these guidelines give a definition for an “unusual transaction”. This is defined as: any transaction that deviates from the normal (usual) account course, the usual (business) activities of the accountholder and from what are considered usual in the daily (banking) business.

Paragraph 2:

- The CTC would welcome:
 - An outline of the recommendations relating to the criminalisation of acts in support of terrorism and to the taking of other measures, as mentioned in the individual sub-paragraphs of this paragraph, that are contained in the national report on terrorism prepared by the National Anti-Terrorism Working Group, with particular reference to legislative provisions proposed:
 - To prevent those who finance, plan, facilitate or commit terrorist acts from using the territory of Suriname for those purposes against other States or their citizens; and
With regard to terrorism (in general), it was recommended that the necessary laws in Suriname be amended and / or drafted.
 - to ensure that any person who participates in the financing, planning, preparation or perpetration of terrorist acts or in supporting terrorist acts is brought to justice and to ensure that, in addition to any other measures against them, such terrorist acts are established as serious criminal offences in domestic laws and regulations and that the punishment duly reflects the seriousness of such terrorist acts; and
It was recommended to amend and / or draft the necessary legislation, related to terrorism (in general).
 - a progress report on the steps taken to give effect to those recommendations.
The progress report will be finalised later this year (2003).

- Please outline the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure that relate to mutual legal assistance in criminal matters.
According to article 467 and subsequent articles of the Criminal Proceeding Code, requests for legal assistance must be put forward to the Attorney General, if not determined otherwise through Agreement.
- What is the legal time frame within which a request for judicial assistance in criminal investigations or criminal proceedings (especially those relating to the financing or other support of terrorist acts) is required to be met under the Code Criminal Procedure and how long, on average, does it actually take in practice to implement such a request in Suriname?

Legally, there is no specific time set for implementing a request for judicial assistance. However, according to article 469 of the Criminal Proceeding Code, the Attorney General decides forthwith regarding the request, in order to get a speedy and efficient conclusion.

Sub-paragraph 2 (e)

- What is the competence of the courts of Suriname to deal with criminal acts of each of the following kinds:
 - an act committed outside Suriname by a person who is a citizen of, or habitually resident in, Suriname (whether that person is currently present in Suriname or not)
The Judiciary in Suriname is competent to take note of criminal acts committed on Suriname's territory, regardless of who committed this act. Criminal acts, according to the Penal Code and other laws that were committed by Surinamese nationals outside of Suriname can be presented to the judicial authorities in Suriname. Suriname's criminal law can be applied to anyone who commits criminal acts, as mentioned in article 4 of the Penal Code or as described in the Act on Narcotic Drugs (S.B. 1998 no.14).

The Ministry of Foreign Affairs (particularly the Consular Division) regularly co-operates and exchanges information with the consular divisions of the foreign embassies in Suriname, in particular the USA, in order to detect forged documents.

- Intensified border control;
 - Establishment of a mobile anti-terrorism unit, with specific skills.

The offenses set forth in the Vienna Convention are related to illicit trafficking in narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances, whereas the bilateral agreement with the Netherlands is based on extradition and legal assistance in criminal matters. The offenses in the Vienna Convention, regarding illicit trafficking in narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances, have been included as extraditable in the bilateral agreement with the Netherlands.
